

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1883

Snow at The Dalles last Saturday.

Capt. A. Stream will command the new Shoalwater Bay boat Hunter.

Considerable wheat is being transferred across the Columbia to the Sound.

Portland is importing eggs from St. Paul, butter from Elgin, and ham from Philadelphia.

The oyster business at Shoalwater bay is picking up; the present season is a prosperous one.

Nathan Jones is back from the Coquille. He reports a prosperous season at Getchell's cannery.

It is rumored in Portland that Judge Stott will resign at New Years and practice his profession.

Miss Clara Woods got $4000 damages in a breach of promise suit against Dr. G. H. Davis, in Portland, last Monday.

Clark Longhrey is circulating around these days, ready and willing to accommodate any one that wants a tax receipt.

The stockholders of the Washington Packing company will hold their annual meeting at ten o'clock this morning.

The editor of the Roseburg Plaindealer will eat any squash that beats a 142 pound one raised or grown near Canyonville.

Mr. George Werner, the enterprising business manager of the Grismer-Davies troupe, leaves this morning for Olympia, Tacoma and Seattle.

The wife of J. J. Findlayson was beaten to death with an ax near Albany, Linn county, last Saturday. Her missing fifteen-year old stepson is suspected.

By the last steamer arrived a large quantity of desks and furniture for school district No. 1's new building. The directors intend to have it second to none in the northwest.

The scenery along the lower Columbia is of a nature that elicits the warmest admiration. The banks are lined with foliage that glow in flame and gold and crimson, while higher up, the stately dark green fir and fluted basaltic cliffs lend fitting background lines to the brilliant hues.

H. M. Scott, formerly of Snelling, Merced county, California, is wanted. The last heard from him he was working in a salmon cannery in Oregon or Washington. He is thought to be dead. F. M. Husted, 429 Montgomery street, San Francisco, Cal., will thankfully receive any information.

There is some little trouble in Portland, and here, too, over some insurance business in which the Bachman Bros. acted as agents. The general feeling is that "a trade is a trade," and if a man pays his premium and gets his policy he is or should be free from subsequent demands for repayment.

We hear some good names mentioned for mayor, among others, John Hahn, the present incumbent, who has worthily filled the office, D. K. Warren, W. E. Dement, F. J. Taylor, C. S. Wright, A. F. Johnson and others. Some good man will be found who has the wit to see the right and the sand to stay with it.

At the New York Novelty store is a large consignment of handsome baby carriages. One in particular deserves special mention. It is worth $50 and some fortunate baby will ride in the prettiest vehicle of the kind in the northwest, if his papa or mamma should be the holder of the lucky ticket. Tickets, one dollar each.

The circulation of THE DAILY ASTORIAN has reached such a figure that we direct the attention of business men who believe in pushing their business to the desirability of this paper as an advertising medium. It reaches nearly every family in Astoria and vicinity, and is read by a daily increasing constituency.

Cape Disappointment is still misapplied by some of our cotemporaries for Cape Hancock. It is time now, thinks the Commercial Herald, that the world has daily communication with Cape Hancock, that the "disappointment" of the after seafarer be dropped. It may be well for the Portland board of trade to post up in the history of Cape Hancock.

The body of an unknown man was found on Clatsop beach last Saturday. At the inquest it was found that the drowned man was about 30 years old, 5 feet 8 inches high, weight about 150 pounds, light brown hair, had on gray pants, blue woolen shirt, black vest, No. 7 leather boots; in his pocket was $41.55. The deceased was given proper interment. Beyond that given above there was no other means of identification.

Skates, Skates, Skates! Club skates, clipper skates, all sizes; lowest prices. New York Novelty Store.

That fine K. of P. charm will be raffled at B. F. Stevens & Co.'s this evening.

ONE YEAR AGO.

The British Ship Amarna Labeled.

[SPECIAL TO THE ASTORIAN.]

PORTLAND, OR., Nov. 6th.—The Portland tug company began suit today in the U. S. Court in this city, against the firm of Smith & Service of Liverpool, for salvage on the ship Nelo which was rescued one year ago today by the tug Pioneer, while in distress. (The British ship Nelo was towed across the bar on the afternoon of Nov. 4th, 1882. The next day a southwesterly gale dispersed her. On the 7th, Captain Pease heard of her condition and heading for Shoalwater bay he found her and making fast he hauled her to the shore.)

Capt. Milne asked to have the Pioneer tow him to San Francisco, but the salvage of a ship and cargo worth $150,000 was hardly worth bothering about, so came back again towing in the Zonova and letting the Nelo shift for herself. Pilot Daig meanwhile got the Pioneer down the coast in a search for the vessel, going as far as San Francisco and returning from an unsuccessful search on the evening of Nov. 14th, 1882.)

The vessel got her spare spars up and finally made her home port in safety. The Amarna is now in port and owned by the same firm, and the libellants ask that that vessel be labeled for such salvage as the court may deem just. The complainants value the ship at $75,000, and the cargo at $75,000 more.

Clava.

The Northwestern Trading Co. made a shipment to day by the Idaho, of machinery for the man-factory of alum at Killisnoo, Alaska. It consists of apparatus for drying fish, after the oil has been pressed out of them. Its total cost is about $5,000. The product of this fish dryer is called "chum." It is a first class fertilizer, and finds a market in every quarter of the world. This will be the first industry of the kind on the coast.

Something New.

THE WEEKLY ASTORIAN is read by thousands of people, to whom we make the following offer: For $3.50 we will send the WEEKLY ASTORIAN, post paid, and the Weekly S. F. Chronicle, from now until January 1st, 1885. This is an opportunity to get all the news at a cost but little exceeding the cost of a single paper. THE ASTORIAN will contain one-third more reading matter than before, and be improved in other material respects. Of the Chronicle it need be said it is the best weekly newspaper published in California. For $3.50 you will get the two from now till January 1st, 1885. We want to add 1,000 subscribers to our weekly list. We think this will help. Any old subscriber in renewing can have the same privilege.

The newest thing in the way of town sites is a location at the head of navigation on the Nehalem in Tillamook county. Coalburn is the name, and it may, one day, be a busy place. There is great water power and the finest forests of cedar, spruce, fir, hemlock and maple.

The greater portion of the road to the upper town canneries, from Booth's to the White Star cannery, is in very bad condition. If it is a county road it ought to be kept in something like repair. We understand it is in contemplation to extend the plank road from Johnson's along the beach to Alderbrook. This would be a decided improvement and it is to be hoped that the movement will be successful.

The loggers and mill men on the Sound have locked horns. The loggers say that the way labor and food is selling they can't afford to give logs for the price mill men offer. The mill men say the way manufactured lumber is selling they can't afford to pay what the loggers ask for logs. It's a good deal like the couple in Portland. The wife has hysterics because the husband drinks. He drinks because his wife has hysterics.

Talking about newspapers, Bob Ingersoll says: "The papers of the future, I think, will be 'news' papers. The editorial is getting shorter and shorter. The paragraphist is taking the place of the heavy man. People rather form their own opinions from the facts. Of course, good articles will always find readers, but the dreary, doleful, philosophical dissertation has had its day. The magazines will fall heir to such articles."

At Occidental Hall last evening the scenic play of "The World" was presented. The stage effects necessary to its proper production were not extraordinarily lavish in their profusion, and some of the finest passages were necessarily somewhat deficient in their presentation: Mr. Grismer took the part of a conservative English gentleman who meets with all sorts of adventures, and was well supported by Miss Davies and the entire troupe.

An Adventurous Voyage.

The Honolulu Saturday Press of October 20th prints a story to the effect that several Honolulu men, moved by a spirit of adventure, about a year ago purchased for $3,000 the small brig Niuito, with the intention of bartering with the savages of the southeast coast of Africa and also of hunting for gold there. Just then a Swedish sailor named Permen appeared and persuaded them to go to Siberia to combine gold-hunting with salmon fishing, and he was placed at the head of the expedition. March 21st last the Niuito, laden with salt for salmon, flour to trade with, mining tools and fishing tackle, sailed with a full crew and eight stockholders of the "East Siberia Fishing and Mining Company" on board. But the captain and mate forced the passengers to work, and the captain and one Nelson conspired to run for the nearest land, to land the passengers, then to sell the vessel at the next port, then to pocket the proceeds and abscond. Forty days out the brig sailed into the port of Hakodati, Island of Jesso. Nelson here tried to rob a passenger named Mason, and Mason, seeing a chance for the passenger party to gain the ascendancy, tried to kill Nelson, but failed. So the discordant ship's company again sailed out together. At Vladivostok, Siberia, where mining operations were to have been begun, it was found that no mining could be done without the permission of the Russian government. Mason told an Englishman then, about Permen's share in the venture, and Permen handed Mason over to a Russian officer on a charge of attempting to murder, but he was not held. Mason sailed out to Permen, worked his way to San Francisco, where he arrived with only three dollars in his pocket. Afterward he returned to Honolulu. One of the crew is said to be in Sacramento, he having deserted while in Siberia.

It has been ascertained that the spawn, thrown from the salmon being put up at the fisheries on the river, is hatching and filling up the streams with a new stock of salmon. It has been a prevailing opinion for years that the fisheries on this coast would eventually get away with all the salmon, but now it turns out that they are now advantageous to propagation. Salt water, it was thought, would pickle the spawn, but from that thrown overboard at the cannery, it is said, the water is a moving mass of young salmon.—Cognell City Herald.

The trade in salmon in Glasgow is quiet at present, merchants apparently delaying to purchase in the expectation of lower prices when the new pack come to hand in a month. Rates remain much as they were. Fraser river fish realize from 21s to 22s per case, while Columbia brands, which are reported to be an extra good catch this season, can be bought at 23s 6d to 24s. Some standard brands of the latter bring 6d more money. Though the Fraser river pack is said to be of poor quality and scarce, that does not affect the Glasgow market, the trade in that city depending chiefly on supplies from the Columbia.—Glasgow Corr. London Greener.

An Eastern paper has made an unwarranted attack upon Captain Rogers, master of the new iron ship, Tillie E. Starbuck, which met with misfortune on the way out from Chester to the Columbia. Captain Rogers has always sustained the highest respect as a shipmaster, his owners have perfect confidence in his ability, and contemplate building another iron ship which will be constructed under his personal supervision, and on completion will be commanded by him. The owners of the Starbuck are probably the best judges of Captain Rogers' ability, and they certainly have not lost confidence in him. The paper referred to has a reputation for accurate knowledge of maritime affairs, but its judgment in this case is at fault. The Starbuck was the first iron sailing ship built at the yard from which she was launched, and it was subsequently found her standing rigging was weak, she was improperly loaded, and there were other defects that will fully explain her misfortunes without attributing any blame to her able commander.
