

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1883. ISSUED EVERY MORNING. (Monday excepted) J. F. HALLORAN & COMPANY, PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

Around the City.

High tides. The congregation of the M. E. church was completing a neat building in the rear of their new church, which will be used for purposes.

The wind blew fresh from the north-east yesterday, and its chilliness occasioned a demand for overcoats. The Independent, Scottish Prince, and other boats were down yesterday.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. German died of scarlet fever yesterday afternoon. The funeral will take place this afternoon.

The steamer for San Francisco yesterday; the freight steamer Santa Cruz arrived in the Astoria and Scottish Prince cleared for Queenstown. The steamer of the London Express today, which is out 22 days from Newcastle, N. S. W.

An alarm of fire at half-past six yesterday morning was caused by a burning tin at the hospital, that was fortunately put out without doing much damage.

The fire alarm tolled a sickly sort of a toll and sounded as though some one was dead. Not one in ten heard it.

Among other signs of the times, the new signs being put up on Commercial are artistic. Handcock & Wheeler recently had a prismatic sign placed in front of their place of business, and yesterday the new firm of Estor and Corbett had a very handsome sign put in position.

The sale of Alderbrook property yesterday afternoon at E. C. Holden's auction room, resulted in the disposition of sixty-two lots, bought partly by those who saw a good opportunity for realizing well on their investment in the future, and others who propose to build and sell. The property sold brought, in total, $4,160.

At the conclusion of the regular business at the meeting of the Rescue Juvenile League last evening a handsome silver badge was presented to F. P. Hicks, chief engineer, A. P. D., on behalf of the troupe. It is a handsome affair, appropriately inscribed and was appropriately received by the chief with a speech, in which he alludes to the fact that the badge would be to him a reminder that his office required and only silent prayer and active duty.

The new pilot steamer City of Napa, came aboard Wilson & Fisher's dock yesterday. Pilot Wood reports light and baffling winds all the way up. The vessel is a trim craft and will be ready to sail, altered to suit. She displays good sailing qualities, and is in every respect satisfactory to her purchasers. While in San Francisco she was intended for a 75-ton boat to be built in exact accordance with instructions and capable of making thirteen knots an hour.

IMPROVEMENTS.—At Arndt & Fendler's machine shop considerable work is being done; the engine formerly used at the Astoria Box Factory is being reconstructed, and other work is under way. A lathe is being set to lower machinery from the second story, which will be ready for a 75-ton boat to be built in exact accordance with instructions and capable of making thirteen knots an hour.

WATER LAYS.—It is reported that an organized band of river pirates at Portland are plundering the steamer and sailing vessels. The plan is to row alongside in a small boat and by the aid of a confederate aboard nip anything that may be "lying around loose," a coil of rope, a ball, landing net, block, anything that can be lugged off and sold for junk. The Ulick, E. T. Powell, Canfield, Chaffin, Chief and others are reported to be hot sailor articles in that manner.

SIXTH STREET'S WHALE.—About 2 weeks ago a whale came ashore on Clatsop beach and was captured by Ned Goodwin. He was about forty-five feet long, and from appearance was good for 1000 or 1200 gallons of oil. N. S. Smith having a little leisure time on his hands bought his whale, and is now engaged in the odorous manufacture of whale oil. He calculates that he will clear $500 on his purchase, as the oil yields a fine grade quality, and worth four bits a gallon.

DON'T WANT THEM.—When the Bohea arrived in last Tuesday afternoon, while still below the city a boat with four occupants put off to board her for the purpose of making some returning friends. Their boat being near the steamer they were obliged to drift with the tide, as it was impossible without a sail to make any headway against the strong ebb. Their non-return led to the rumor that all hands were drowned, but they arrived safe yesterday evening, having spent the night at Fort Stevens. They haven't got through blessing the captain yet.

MARRIAGE.—The marriage of Mr. Herman Wise and Miss Sarah Ostrook took place yesterday morning at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Johnson. The Rev. Dr. Bethlehem, of San Francisco, performed the marriage ceremony according to the Jewish rites. It was a private affair, none being present but a few intimate friends of the young couple. Mr. Wise came to this country from Germany about three years ago, and during his residence here has made many friends. The bride is a niece of Mr. Samuel Ostroski, of Oroville, California, and is an accomplished young lady.

INDIAN KILLED.—From Tillamook comes a report of a fatal encounter in which an Indian named King lost his life a short time ago. It seems that King and another Indian named Joe, Dunkel, a brother of the Dunkel that Edzant killed at Clatsop a few months ago, got into an altercation, in which King drew a knife and attempted to carve Dunkel, who naturally objected to such pointed attention. In the scuffle that ensued Dunkel got the knife every from King and stabbed him, King dying in the course of an hour. Dunkel was arrested, but it being shown that he had acted in self-defense he was allowed to go free.

SUNSHINE.—The scene at early dawn yesterday was one of great natural beauty. Fleecy veils of fog hung over the great river that flowed in silence underneath the starlit sky. The moon at its full swung westward behind the firs, and from the north floated light clouds toward the light at the Cape with the western morning star in brightness. The lessening mists in the eastern sky assumed a pearly gray that deepened fitting glow from which shot streams of yellow light. The setting moon faded into a ghost; the Cape light went out, and the ships in the stream glided in the level rays of the morning sun.

FOR THE MASQUERADE. Masquerade balls rented at reasonable rates in largest variety by M. D. KANT.

THE PACIFIC CAN COMPANY.

A New Departure in the Can Manufacture. The salmon business on the Columbia has grown to vast proportions in comparison to the extent of operations when Wm. Hixon began packing seventeen years ago. Year by year the pack increases in value; season after season the appliances required entail numerous and costly stores of various goods, tin, solder, thrusters, boats, hoppers, crannies, labels, and the annual invested, together with interest, insurance, etc., makes a considerable plant. Though it is to the interest of the manufacturer to carry as light a store from one season to another as he possibly can, yet a possible rise in prices of a "corner" on certain required supplies compels a man to take time by the forelock and lay in a large supply months before the goods may be required.

An important department of the business is this more manifest than in the can manufacture. A considerable space in every century is devoted to the manufacture of cans, and among those who have been around one of these establishments knows the familiar sight of a row of Chinaman each with a little checked banner in front of him, and his dog, which followed the operation from the shop to the factory, and back to the shop, and the Chinaman who slices the tinplate to the twelfth man from whose hand the appliances that take the finished can, and in every respect it is an "A" can, etc., etc. The cans are well made, and very true to the exception arising from any defect in that branch of manufacture, but any movement looking to a reduction in the price of furnishing the finished cans that are sold in Astoria, and vicinity every year will be of interest to those directly concerned.

It is in this connection that the Pacific Can Company of San Francisco, the Columbia river canners of better quality, fast of cost, and than that canner themselves manufacture them. It is a noticeable fact that there is under the present system an unavoidable waste; the refuse which is sent to the water in the shape of lumps of rusty tin scraps can, it is said be utilized by this company in the manufacture of other articles, and thus effect a great saving in that respect. Negotiations are now in progress looking to the starting of a factory to turn out the cans of wholesale, and under which they are to be made to hold by Norton Bros. of Chicago; the cans are made entirely by machinery, and thirty men can turn out 100,000 finished cans every day. The cost of the cans, including tops, is stated to be $19 per thousand.

ANOTHER INVENTION.—At the Astoria Iron Works the regular amount of work goes on. The foundry and machine shop are kept busy and a fine grade of work turned out. The latest invention of the works is a new kind of boiler, which is being constructed. It is a half circle of cast-iron to be set over a brick furnace, and to hold water solder, in which the steam is raised. The cans are sliding down an inclined plane, are caught by transverse fingers and whirled around the setting ring until completely soldered and then dropped into a bin below. Thus far it is purely experimental, but there seems no reason why it shouldn't answer the purpose required. Last season a New York party named Bliss was here looking up an alleged infringement of patent concerning a soldering machine in operation. The apparatus was being built in Astoria, and the work is a better and consequently more satisfactory manner.

MR. MEN'S SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

Almond-eyed Pupils Who Flirt With Their Teachers. "C. A. T." Cat—"D. O. G." Dog. This is the way the Chinese laundryman of the period begins to learn English. He learns it out of a child's primer, and his teacher is generally a good-looking young woman who thinks it great fun to try and enlighten the heathen every Sunday afternoon.

The mission Sunday-schools for the heathen Chinese are nearly all taught gratuitously by young ladies under the direction of a superintendent. There are several of these mission schools in San Francisco.

The Chinaman wants to learn English for commercial purposes, and he is very glad to learn it from the lips of a pretty girl. It is a very amusing sight—this Chinese mission school, with its little school-tunes, embroidered tops with thick white soles, form a pleasing contrast to lang, frizzes, Gainsborough hats, fluttering ribbons and high collars, and the teacher, who looks like the master seriously, from the school and religious standpoint, but the laundryman regards it in the light of flirtation.

The same Chinaman who will stand up with the school and sing "Rock of Ages" in Chinese, looking as glib as a theological student, will sit down by his benevolent young teacher and lead the conversation round, as far as his English will carry him, to his worldly prospects and his ambition for matrimony.

One day a Chinaman recently intimated to his teacher that he was in pursuit of a wife—a "Molien" wife. He looked numerous Chinese silk handkerchiefs upon the teacher, which she accepted because all the others did, in accordance with what she supposed to be Chinese custom. She took great pains with her pupils' English, and her own English sentences, such as "Some American men are good; some American men are bad." In which original sentiment the youth heartily concurred.

This young man looked about sixteen and had the merriest little countenance and the most ingenious manner imaginable. But behind it lurked duplicity and craft. "Teacher, I own a laundry—make fifteen dollars a week." "Teacher—"That is good, Lang; you will be Chinese soon." "Chin—"You no call me Lang—my name Quong Lang. In China young lady no call man by last name.

Teacher is not pleased with this remark. Meditates over the fact that wisdom issues from the lips of babes, satchlings and Chinamen. "Chin—"Teacher, I have a money in tomato can under board in back part of shop. Melian man like to find it, eh?" "Teacher suggests that it would be as well not to enlighten "Melian man" on the subject.

Chin—"Teacher, own house in Chin—most nice house—now want wife—fair money, me. My hundred dollars for wife—but American girl for good-looking girl. Pay forty dollars—no good—ugly, common thing. For hundred dollars—first-class wife. Teacher, you understand Chinese? I have a money in tomato can under board in back part of shop. Melian man like to find it, eh?"
