There should be an agency here for the sale of tide tables of the U. S. survey. The nearest agency at present is at Portland. Proper representation on the part of our Chamber of Commerce would, probably, correct the inconvenience. Some big papers have been left on our desk since New Year's, embracing holiday issues from all parts of the country. The largest was received from H. B. In some respects the officers like the change; the attractions that Boston affords are not counterbalanced by the discomforts arising from chill Atlantic winds.

An Upper Astoria subscriber has struck a new industry. is needed and he will probably get it.

The court house was full all day yesterday, too full; there is danger of a terrible assident from the floor of the court room giving way. Yesterday afternoon pieces of plaster fell from ceilings of the lower offices; should any panic occur, the horgor of the occasion would be increased by the miserably inadequate means of egress. The narrow door and squeezed stair way would not admit of getting out. It is bad enough to have a "court house" that would be a diagrace to any cow county on the cosat, but it would be terrible to have a score of human lives sacrificed.

The Emigration of '84

Conversation with Oregonians who statement: "There will be a big immigration to this northwest coast this year." And it is undoubtedly the case. Whenflock in. The completion of the N. P. R. R. was too late in the season for much travel over the finished line, but in short time will come hundreds and a short time will come hundreds and thousands on every conceivable errand, some to make homes, others to go into business, more to work at trades and professions, a still greater proportion tooking for something, they hardly know what, and the rest drifting, going because others, are going, and without definite aim or purpose. itm or purpose.

There are two kinds of emigration: the one desirable, the other undesirable the one helpful, the other hurtful. Home dwellers on this northwest coast have dwellers on this northwest coast have worked hard for what they have; when-ever a man in Oregon is found "well fixed," in ninety-nine cases out of a hun-dred it will be found that he has worked hard for it; that he has painfully earned it, that his money or his farm or his busit, that his money or his farm or his bus-iness or his stock of goods represent a-good deal of hard, unremitting toil. No man here has "jumped into a good thing." There are no "soft snaps." The right kind of men will do well when they come here in '84. They will help the country and themselves; the other kind will be of no account. Mere numbers signify nothing. A city may have 100,000 people and have few citizens; may disclose large census. A city may have 100,000 people and have few citizens; may disclose large census returns and possess little of the elements of prosperity, of stability or permanence. Men are the same wherever they go. Coming west won't change their disposi-tions. If a man is a cipher in Iowa or Pennsylvanin or Missouri he will not turn into an integer by emigrating to Oregon. The people that are needed here in '84 are g class that will help themselves and are a class that will help themselves and the place they will go to live; not a hin-drance and a burden; a man that is a bill of costs to the community to which he unfortunately goes, would do better to stay where he is now; it will be better for himself, for his children, present or prospective, and for the hapless community that might be a:ddied with him.

The emigration of '84 is a problem.

The port of Falmouth, which is this The port of Falmouth, which is this season optional with Queenstown for Astoria clearing vessels, is generally the first port appreached by Australian and Cape vessels nearing England, and is, among other characteristics, remarkable for swift vessels owned by enterprising Falmouth clothiers. They are sometimes met 100 miles west of the Scillies, craising about, and when a ship is sighted they board her and make sales to the sailors, which are deducted from their sailors, which are deducted from their pay when they get to port.

A Bro Scheme.-The latest idea in railroads is away ahead of anything that Villard ever dreamed of in his wildest flights of imagination. It is to build a line of road from San Francisco northward, to Astoria, and connecting at this point with roads from Portland, Forest Grove, thence running northward by ferry transfer to Puget Sound, and skirting the Alaska coast run northwest to Behring's Straits; the thirty odd miles of water to be crossed by another stoutly built transfer boat, and the rails laid down the Kamchatkan coast to Corea, and China, thence westward to Ispahan and the Caspian, finally terminating a

THE MUNDER THIAL.-The court-room was crowded yesterday, the third day of the trial of the three Leahy brothers for the alleged murder of John Leonard. Seldom has there such interest been evinced in any criminal case. The evidence was all in by three in the afternoon, when X. N. Steeves, on behalf of the prosecution addressed the jury. He

WELL OFF, RELATIVELY.-To a party who was commenting on the prevalent scarcity of money yesterday, a Portland visitor said: "Why, you folks here in Astoria don't know what tightness in the Astoria don't know what tightness in the money market is; you ought to try and borrow money in Portland, Last week I wanted $1000 and tried to get it of ——. He said (and I believe he told the truth), 'I haven't got it, but I'll endorse your note, though I don't think that will do my good.' He did so, and after a whole morning I got the money. I told him of and would take a week to thoroughly read it.

Under date of the 4th inst., W. S.

In September last, while superintendhave been east in '83 always elicits the ing repairs to a dam across Pearcy's ing with the following passengers: slough, a minor channel which connects W W Sweeny the Willamette and Columbia rivers at medium stages, but is bare at low water, ever the way is made easy, the multitude I observed a number of slides, such as J O Mack would have been made by dragging heavy, smooth, cylindrical bodies up the banks of the slough, which are five feet high and very steep, and across the low level island between the slough and the Columbia into the latter. The soil of the island and its banks, consisting of sandy loam formed by the annual deposits of the summer floods of the Columbia, with a scanty covering of grass and young willow sprouts from one to three inches high, was plainly marked with these alides, which seemed to have been made alides, which seemed to have been made by bodies from six to eighteen inches in diameter, all leading in direct lines to and terminating on the bank of the Co-lumbia. At first I thought they were made by beaver or seals, which penetrate the sloughs along the Columbia during the summer run of salmon, but the large size of one of the slides showed that it could not have been made by either seal size of one of the slides showed that it could not have been made by either seal or beaver. I inquired of the men employed on the work, one of whom, a fisherman, said, "That is a sturgeon trail." They get among the sloughs when the river is up, and when the water begins to fall they strike a bee line for the river. Sometimes they die before they get there." Acting on this suggestion, I looked carefully among the young willows near the bank of the the young willows near the bank of the Columbia and found at the end of a large slide, and within six feet of the bank, the carcass of a sturgeon nearly seven feet long, with its head pointing toward the river. Its strength exhausted by crawl-ing eighty feet overland, had failed when almost within reach of its native element. -Forest and Stream.

The Printers' "Thirty."

The printers of a newspaper office have significant term for nearly overything connected with their trade. They speak to an extent in a language common to themselves; and the novice or the apprentice has first to learn the language of the printers, and next the language of the types, Among the words peculiar to the types, Among the words peculiar to the craft the word "thirty" is perhaps most often used and possessed of the most meaning. "Thirty" is the end. It is what "finis" is to a book or death to an individual. When "thirty" is reached the weary compositor drops his stick. The day's work is done. How the term or invested to the standard work is done. and any swork is done. How the term originated nobody seems to know, but from the printer it has fallen to the editor and become a portion of the education of the telegraph operator who handles press reports. The last page of "copy" from the editor-in-chief bears the "thirty" which indicates that the "thirty" which indicates that the thoughts concerning the news of the day have been presented as fully as may be; the last proof from the proof reader tells the story in the appended "thirty" that his day's work is done; the "thirty" from the city editor denotes the completion of the record of the city's daily life, and the "thirty" on the manifold paper received from the telegraph operator conveys the information that the story of its waking
