COULDN'T AFFORD IT ples. A Druggist Tells the Square Truth. "Now, my friend, let's be perfectly trank and candid about this little matter," the druggist said, placing both elbows on his plated show-case and looking his customer fairly in the eye. You have a lame back and want a plaster to put on it. You don't know me, and, judging of human nature as it runs in business, you are afraid I'll humbug you in some way, You may think it an odd statement, but I can't afford to cheat you. Even it did I haven't the means. "That's curious. (Oh, my back! I'll take chair I guess.) Don't you keep plasters?" "Oh, yes, one or two kinds. On ce I had shelves full of them-every sort that were ever invented to gull the ignorant and make money for imitators. But I sifted 'em out one by one, and now sell principally. They always give satisfaction. and in the end it pays me to sell them in preference to all others."

"Haven't you Allcock's? "Yes, but my customers and myself prefe Benson's Capeine-which are quick as electricity, safe as Government bonds and sure as the law of gravitation. The doctors order them, and what is more to the point, I have never heard a word of complaint from any one who has used them. You can go elso where-if your back will bear you out in the operation-and get another and a cheaper plaster, but-" "Don't talk to me about the money," broke in the comfort-seeking stronger, with some heat. "What's ten or fifteen cents to gettirg rid of this confounded-oh, Lordy!-this pain and lameness? Let me have one of Bensen's Capcine. That's the real a ticle, is it? with the word CAPCINE cut in the body of the

"You'll be around in a week, straight and strong," added the diplomatic druggist, throwing the money in his cash drawer.
