Around the City.

Keep your horse warm by getting a blanket at E. C. Holden's.
 John Rutter is reported quite sick. He is suffering from pleurisy.
 At D. A. McIntosh's is a fine assortment of soft and stiff hats of the latest styles.
 J. W. Crow requests that it be stated that the dance at Knappa will be on the 25th inst.
 The Gen. Banning was advertised to sail to-day, but is detained at Portland by the ice.
 Capt. Worth, of the Umattila has many friends in Astoria who sincerely hope that he may be saved.
 The deep bass of the Fleetwood's whistle did not leave Portland.
 L. J. Arnold has made satisfactory arrangements with his creditors and will resume business to-morrow.
 A good way to judge of a man's "ability" is his slowness in paying his debts and meeting his honest obligations.
 Few wheels were turned on the Columbia yesterday; the wind, ice cakes, ducks and gulls had everything their own way.
 California papers advertise for sale Oregon butter. Oregon papers advertise "California butter," and homes are easy.
 The Miles took a crowd of skaters to Iwaco yesterday morning, and in the afternoon the Saw took an equally large number to Skipanon.
 Jos. Hume is in the city. He will take the ensuing season as general business manager of the North Shore and Knappa Packing companies.
 R. V. Monteith has accepted the position of bookkeeper at J. C. Trullinger's West Shore mills, and enters upon his new position this morning.
 Astoria blacksmiths have been unusually busy with sleigh and runner work this week, and for the short time allowed them have turned out some first-rate jobs.
 The Northwest Lumber Company of which previous mention has been made will operate and control the sawmills at Knappa, at Coos Bay and at Gray's harbor.
 The east wind had less goldity in it than the day before. In sunny spots the snow melted, greatly to the chagrin of the boys who found their coasting tracks disappearing. To-day rubbers will be in demand.
 This thing of packing water to make steam with is not a bit funny. If the boiler explodes and kills one of the operators the water company will have a big suit for damages on its hands or head or shoulders as the case may be.
 The Queen which left here yesterday morning was at 4 o'clock. If the boiler exploded and kills one of the operators the water company will have a big suit for damages on its hands or head or shoulders as the case may be.
 There will be a free sociable at the Y. M. C. A. rooms this evening under the auspices of the ladies connected with that excellent institution. If you haven't been there lately you will be surprised to see how cozy and comfortably the rooms have been fitted up.
 One of the boys that were coasting on Benton street last Monday night fell off his sled and blacked his eye. A doctor was called in who found on examination a contusion of the integuments under the orbit, with extravasation of blood and edema of the surrounding cellular tissue, which was in a tumefied state with abrasion of the cuticle.

Shoulder Pockets in Coats.

Pockets have taken a new freak and have invaded the hitherto sacred precincts of the back of the neck. Who put them up there first is unknown, as they have appeared simultaneously in a dozen different cities. They are used mostly as receptacles for newspapers and books of no special value. Overcoats are now made with two pockets directly over the shoulder blades and present a unique appearance. At first some difficulty is encountered in getting at these pockets, and the wearer is obliged to take off their top coats to get at the contents, but in time this trouble is dissipated. The man in the coat, however, never gets over a certain ungainliness in reaching over his shoulder for a newspaper, as he has to give an upward hitch of his whole frame in order to strike the desired spot. This never fails to amuse persons walking behind him, the action being so suggestive of the frantic attempts of a man to scratch the center of his back. It is not believed that this innovation will ever become popular, but those gentlemen who have tried the new style are enthusiastic over its advent and say that they would not return to a state of flatbackedness for anything.

CONDENSED FROM OUR EXCHANGES.

Salem wants the Indian school.
 The Knappa Box factory is running on time.
 Preliminary survey of a railroad is being made through the Minto pass.
 Prospective Marion and Malheur county candidates are already announcing themselves.
 The wife of Judge Van Cleave died at Woodard's Landing, Pacific county, W. T., on the 4th inst.
 Thomas Brennan, secretary of the Irish National League, addresses a Portland audience to-night.
 The Oregon State Register comes to hand with a great big double-jointed lottery advertisement. Better look a little over it.
 The recent snow storm with which Astoria was favored extended up and down the coast line a distance of 300 miles.
 The Columbia is informed by E. D. Marvin that "the seals are so thick in the Columbia river that they rob the men."
 The Whateam Recette states that Mount Baker is in a state of eruption. Smoke was noticed issuing from the summit last week.
 Mr. Adolph Schlant, aged 29, suicided by chloroform in Portland on the 11th. His death and husband's jealousy impelled the act.
 A recently admitted attorney in Walla Walla is called "No one" by his charitable friends, because ignorance of the law excuses no one.
 Fred Crozier, of Dungeness, immortalized himself by catching a salmon in the river there with a twenty dollar gold piece in its stomach.
 Douglas county encourages a growing industry by offering $12 a piece for coyote scalps. Last week $220 worth of "coyote" skins in the Columbia river at $23 a fine.
 On Monday night the Portland city council passed resolutions asking our congressional delegation to oppose the forfeiture of the N. P. land grant.
 The Olympia prosecuting attorney thinks that for legal and just reasons women are far superior to men, and seem to be more anxious to do their duty.
 The track of the O. S. L. is fast being completed toward Baker City. It has reached a point nine miles east of Huntington. From Baker to the mouth of the O. S. L. track is about fifty miles.
 The people of Colfax are organizing to resist in the courts the appropriation by the Northern Pacific railroad company of the line lands recently assigned by the interior department in the vicinity of that city.
 It is stated that the Oregon Improvement Company will pass its March and also September dividends, the directors thinking it best to apply the money earned on the route toward liquidating the floating debt, about $1,250,000.
 A deed from Chas. Crocker and wife of California to W. H. Bosse and New Bedford, Mass., for 37,783.15 acres of the Coos bay wagon road land, was last week filed for record in the clerk's office of Douglas county. Consideration, $175 per acre.
 The company formed at Victoria to run a line of steamboats between Victoria and points on the Fraser river and on the east coast route to the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company, has several Chinamen among its stockholders.
 The Mist learns that a party of loggers from Astoria has bought a large body of timber on the Perrine slough, below Cedar landing; and will shortly commence building a new chute and skid roads, preparatory to a season's work. They will put in logs and pilings.
 The Chamber reported to the senate committee on foreign affairs, is not very much like that proposed by the Pacific coast delegation. It is, in fact, the same bill presented to the delegation by Senator Miller, and which was not considered strong enough by house members.
 The Post says things are booming at Yaquina bay. Work on the railroad is progressing and preparations are under way to improve the forest lands. Logging shops are being erected at Yaquina City; the tunnels on the road are being driven from both ends, night and day; teams are in demand, and hay sells at $60 per ton and oats at 75 cents per bushel.
 Robert Harris, the president of the Northern Pacific Railroad, is described as a tall Yankee of the Lincoln type, black beard, eyebrows, and abundant stock of black hair, keyed up to the highest pitch of nervous intensity, and putting a man's lightning into all his doings, whether telling stories and having a good time, or running railroads.
 Gen. Miles, commanding the department of the Columbia, asks for improvement of the Fort Stevens, Oregon, and Vancouver barracks. $30,000. The sum of $12,000 will be required to put Fort Stevens in fighting order. Gen. Miles maintains that Fort Spokane, Coeur d'Alene, Wyo. and another Vancouver barracks should be the only permanent posts in the department at which troops should be maintained.
 The weather throughout Eastern Oregon and Washington is reported very cold, all points on the coast being below zero, with clear skies. The state of the thermometer was as follows at the points named at last accounts: Riparian 12, Dayton and Wallula 16, Walla Walla and Colfax 18, and The Dalles 20. 19, Willows 18, Grants 6, Blalocks 1, Pendleton 25, Hood River 4, all below zero. The eastern section has sufficient snow to protect grain.

TOTAL WRECK OF THE UMATTILA.

Fears for the Safety of Capt. Worth and Crew.
 On the morning of Saturday, the 9th, the collier Umattila struck near Cape Flattery a reef of rocks, and crushed her foremast. A blinding snow storm and a heavy gale were prevailing at the time. Captain Frank Worth, finding the vessel sinking, gave orders to launch the boat. He went in one boat with sixteen men, the second officer took the second boat, with thirteen men, and the first officer, John O'Brien, with four men, launched the life raft and made for land.
 When O'Brien looked back from a distance he saw the vessel floating. He turned his life raft for the Umattila, and heroically clambered aboard, and with his men set the foremast and attempted to make the Columbia river. The steamer Wellington then hove in sight. O'Brien made signals, and the Wellington gave the Umattila a line and towed her into Esquimalt harbor, where she sank in forty-two feet of water. The last seen of the boats with Worth and crew, and the second officer, they were nearing land, and it was supposed they were saved.
 Captain Frank Worth has commanded the American bark Edson's Landing, owned by Ainsworth, which plied between Portland and China. He has a wife and two children at Portland, and is regarded as an experienced sailor, and his gallantry on this occasion is commended in glowing terms.
 John L. Howard, assistant manager of the Oregon Improvement company, received telegrams from First Officer O'Brien, dated Victoria, which substantially corroborated the foregoing particulars. He characterizes the first officer's conduct as brave, and manifested great concern for Worth's safety. In relation to Worth he said that there is no better man on the Pacific coast. He is regarded as safe, and the company has the greatest confidence in his ability as a navigator.
 Flattery rock is a dangerous rock, and is always covered with water. While the Umattila was endeavoring to make the cape it is supposed she was driven from her course by a furious storm and struck on the reef.
 At a late hour on Sunday a telegram from Port Townsend states that no tidings had been heard of Capt. Worth and the thirty-four men who left the ship in the lifeboats. Fears are entertained that they may be lost, as the coast is filled with rocks and precipitous overhanging ledges.
 The revenue cutter was lying at Port Townsend when the news of the accident reached that place, and she immediately left for Neah bay, in search of the missing crew.
