

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:

THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1884

ONE of the most curious customs that attract the attention of strangers in Panama is to see the native women walking along the streets smoking long, slender cigars, in much the same fashion as men do here.

MR. CARL SCHURZ is to receive a contribution of $100,000 from his personal and political friends. We are glad of this, but we think men could be found who would betray their party and break a newspaper for half the money.

A New York dealer, who does most of the importing from Europe, claims to have handled about 17,000 cases during the year ending March 1, or say 1,000,000 dozen eggs. These eggs are collected at Hamburg and Copenhagen from all over Europe.

THE Panama canal will not be straight or of uniform width; the general width will be about fifty yards, with expansions along the line to permit vessels to pass one another with ease. The cut at the deepest point will be nearly 150 to 160 yards deep and 300 yards wide.

THE Chicago Journal of Commerce estimates that we have now in this country about 350,000 manufacturing establishments, employing nearly 6,000,000 laborers, with $4,500,000,000 invested, and our manufactured products amount to $8,000,000,000 a year, or more than $2,000,000,000 more than those of Great Britain.

EX-CONGRESSMAN PIERCE, of Indiana, says there is no doubt about Blaine's popularity in his state, or his ability to carry it and New York also. Republican prospects in Indiana, Mr. Pierce believes, are better now than they were in 1880, because the tariff issue will be brought forward earlier in this campaign than it was four years ago.

THE white sails of the Columbia salmon fleet gleam in the sunshine. However we may differ on politics and other questions, we can all agree that the Columbia river salmon is a splendid institution, that his presence is an assurance of tangible property, that baked, roasted, fried, broiled or canned he is without compare; that he appreciates the delicate attention we all show him is manifest by the eagerness with which he forsakes the ocean and hastens to our hospitable banks.

CAPT. BULLOCK, who was sent to Europe by the Jeff Davis government to raise a fleet of private vessels for the purpose of preying upon the commerce of the United States, has just published a book giving the history of his operations. He did his work very well, it will be remembered, and his account of it is said to be quite interesting. The book ought to have a large sale in England, which country had to pay us some $15,000,000 on account of Captain Bullock's transactions.

FRANCE has, among European countries, the largest percentage of electors, namely, 26.55 in every 100 inhabitants; Switzerland stands second, with 22.55; then Germany, with 20.09; and Denmark, with 15.46. England is fifth, with 8.83. It thus appears that the franchise in England at present is more limited than in not only republics like France and Switzerland, but also monarchies such as Germany and Denmark. Speaking generally, twenty persons have votes in Germany and fifteen in Denmark for every eight in England.

A WESTERN friend of Mr. Tilden (alleged) writes that the Greystone Sage "would not, could not, take the office (the presidency), far less a nomination." Why, pray? Is he too old? He is four years younger than Mr. Payne, of Ohio. Physical disability? Does he not drive the most beautiful carriage in the country, being the fastest pair of Kentucky trotters on the road? Is he not building the most beautiful new house in New York? And is he not waiting on the banks of the lovely Hudson a leap-year proposal from his fair countrywoman? Mr. Tilden should pray to be delivered from his professed friends.

A STORY from Connecticut of a boy of twelve attempting suicide does not, we are and to say, represent an isolated case. Heavy as is the pressure of the age upon its men and women, and often as the weak turn in shuddering despair from life drained of pleasure, the young should be spared the insane resort for trifling ills. Children nowadays think more deeply than in previous generations. A thousand sources of information are open to them that their grand-parents could not dream of in their early years. Exaggerated ideas of their own importance, scorn of their surroundings, or envy of the lighter lot of other children are engendered where a century ago they could not take root. It is one of the penalties of modern progress. While, therefore, whispered knowledge is ripening young minds at such a rate, parents must remember to teach their children that only in the light of the sun and the freshness of the dewy breeze can sturdy plants be grown; that cheeriness—the sunlight of the soul—counts for as much in our modern life as earnestness.
