nail its interests, both public and private.

Deeming honesty the best policy, and in striking contrast with the course of the opposition party, we have named an early day for the assembling of the state convention. Our principles as a party will then be enunciated, and our candidates placed in the field subject to the approval or consideration of the body politic.

bemocrats another contribute their twided support and bearty co-operation, not only in the actual canvass but in its very initiation—the county primaries. very initiation—the county primaries. We do not presume to tresposs upon the precincts of our popular convention, but do earnestly invoke all members of our party to put aside past differences and personal antagonisms, to units in harmonious action in the various primaries and to sand full delegations of representative men to attend the state convention. We have deemed it fitting to reduce the number of delegates, in the hope of securing the personal attendance of those to be chosen. We especially recommend the formation of local clubs, where practicable, throughout the state.

Believing that the success of the Democracy is the welfare of the people, we cordially invite all persons, regardless of past political affiliations, who favor simplicity, economy and frugality in the administration of public affairs to unite with us.

AFTER MANY YEARS

Notorious Florida Desperado Caught At Last.

A special from Kissimmee City to the Jacksonville, (Fla.) Evening Herald gives the graphic details of a thrilling adventure, resulting in the capture of one of the most picturesque ruffians of the South. Ralph Willingham has been for many years the wealthiest and most desperate cattle king in southern Florida. His career has been wild and checkered. but always successful. His wealth is said to be enormous and he is the terror of the region about Association five bloody murders are on his hands and there is a standing reward his delivery to the auof $2500 for his delivery to the au-thorities dead or alive. He is of tre-mendous stature and strength, dauntless courage, superb presence, and princely liberality to his favorites. He has been for years the wonder of the wilderness.

Yesterday Willingham and his handsome wife boarded the trading steamer Gertrude, Captain Pearce.
The captain, who is a man of iron courage, treated the desperado with a willing the captain. ervility. The two sat down to dinner. Willingham suddenly turned to his host and said: "What right have you to fit up and run a trading steamer on the river, anyhow?" "Why can't I do it?" the captain good humoredly replied, and he then went on to say that he had been permitted to do so in peace for a long time. At the end of the controversy he rose from the table and stepped out of the saloon. He was about to give some directions to one of the men below, when turning suddenly, he be-beld the desperado standing grimly over him, with a huge bowie knife raised with deadly intent. Captain Pearce evaded the deadly thrust of the knife and grappled with the sinewy pirate, who would no doubt have overcome him but for the prompt and gallant interference of several members of the crew. After a bloody struggle, in which two of the steamer's men were wounded, Willingham, covered with blood and wounds, was disarmed and bound hand and foot. He is said to have faced his captors with a grand scorn and defiance that even his detect could not subdue. In the lower feat could not subdue. In the lower part of the boat asleep was Redding Perker, a brother-in-law of Willingham and a desperado himself. As soon as Parker learned of Willingham's misfortune he made a desperate effort to effect his release, and it required another fierce struggle before Parker, too, was subdued. Parker then demanded to be allowed to get off the boat, as he was not an outlaw, but this was refused. Watching his opportunity he eluded his guard and suddenly plunged into the Kissimmee river, swam ashore and escaped into the swamp. The Gertrude put on extra steam and made good time to Kissimmee, where Captain Pearce, with his valu-able passenger, boarded the South Florida train from Orlando, the county seat, to claim the reward of And thus the career of the richest and most desperate of Southern Florida's cattle desperadoes is brought to a temporary halt. He confidently asserts that his doubloons will avail to give him back his liberty.

Mr. E. C. Robertson, Carthage, Mo., states: "I used St. Jacobs Oil for recumatism in my knee joint, and was greatly relieved."
