Among the first bills passed by the resent lower house of congress was thet colaring the unearned part of the land rant to the Oregon Central railway for-sited and restored to the public domain. The bill is now before the senate and aght to be the regular order for a day his weak. We need hardly say that the ction of the house on this bill is in acpresent lower house of congress was that grant to the Oregon Central railway forfeited and restored to the public domain. The bill is now before the senate and ought to be the regular order for a day this week. We need hardly say that the this week. We need hardly say that the action of the house on this bill is in ac-cord with public opinion, and that the senate will do a popular thing by passing it quickly, regardless of what the courts may possibly do hereafter in the premi-ass. The Oregon Central is that corpor-ntion which was organized nearly a score of years ago to construct a railway from Modimnville, in the Willamette vallley to Astoria, near the mouth of the Colum-bia. The route is difficult, and the grant was made liberal on this account—suffi-cient, as was believed, to pay all the con-struction expenses and leave a surplus, for most of the land is covered by a dense growth of the best timber on the Pacific action of the house on this bill is in acation which was organized nearly a score of years ago to construct a railway from McMinnville, in the Willamette valler, to Astoria, near the mouth of the Colum-bia. The route is difficult, and the grant was made libered to pay all the con-struction expenses and leave a surplus, for most of the land is covered by a dense growth of the best timber on the Pacific coast, which, with a railway, could be cut into timber and brought into the market at a low cost. This timber land is easily worth $10 per acre. The grant covers over $,000,000 acres, only an insignificant part of which has been earned. It was forfeitable more than ten years ago, in all of which time the communy has done no work. What parts of it are not cov-ered by timber are small valleys of the very best agricultural lends, and all the unearned parts have for years been closed against estilers, though thousands are sager to make homes upon them and add sage to make homes upon thousands are sage to make homes upon them and add to the annual production of the state and to the volume of its taxable proper-ty. In the long list of forfeitable grants there is not another the state of the stat ty. In the long list of forfeitable grants shere is not another that might be se-lected by the senate than this one as an unassailable precedent. If the act of forfeiture against the Oregon Central will not pass muster in the federal courts, then there is no use in trying it against any other rallway grantees.—S. F. Chron-iele 15.
