Inefficient Wall Service

A short time since a statement was oblished in the various newspapers on this coast that two or more sacks of important mail matter had been stolen from the mail cars while in transit to the east. The further statement was made that this mail was from Victoria, B. C .: that it contained valuable matter, and that no traces of the thieves had been obtained. The theory is advanced that this mail was stolen from some baggage or freight car on the Northern Pacific railroad line. This, says the Standard, we believe to be the correct theory, because of the well known fact that ever since the mails have been attempted to be carried over that line, insufficient facilities for carrying and handling them have been the rule, and not the exception. The fault does not lie with the railroad company, but with one James McDowell, the superintundent of the railway mail service between Portland and Bismarck, who persistently refuses or neglects to provide sufficient car room or hands to work the mails.

Another instance of the negligence and inefficiency of this official is instance in the fact that on or about the 15th of April last a postal car was taken out of the yards at Helena, Montana—where this McDowell's headquarters are—where it had been standing for three weeks, and in which was found a case of envelopes for Dallas, Oregon, and same be carried over that line, insufficient fa-envelopes for Dallas, Oregon, and some sacks of mail for the Portland office of distribution.

It is a fact patent to everybody that since last October but half a car and but one messenger has been furnished to handle and distribute the vast amount of mail being sent to and from the Pacific northwest over the route named. Time and again begage and box cars have been stuffed with mail bags full of im-portant mail matter, without any sworn or otherwise authorized official to care for them, and thus brought through, piled up in the Portland postoffice—hun-dreds of bags at a time—if not stolen along the way; to be worked over here atime will permit and reshipped to its destination after days, and sometimes weeks, of delay. We believe there is a U.S. official termed a "detective of the railway and mail service;" and if we mistake not his name is J.J. Murphy. If railway and mail service;" and if we mistake not his name is J. J. Murphy. If we are correct in our conclusions as to the particular officer and his duties, then we respectfully beg to call his attention to the above state of affairs, and would suggest that the said James McDowell is a proper subject upon which to exercise his detective ability and its consequent corrective effects, when properly and energetically carried out. Further: The statement has been made that this same United States official McDowell was but recently caught in the act of smuggling dutiable goods from Victoria, B. C., into an American port on Puget sound. Be this true or false, it is another legitimate matter for the "detective" above referred to inquire into. By inquiring into and ferreting out the delinquent acts of the neglectful, ignorant and vicious agent, the mail service will be immensely benefited. By bringing the weight of official notice and authority to bear upon the matter, perhaps the evil may be corrected. At least it is worthy of the effort. And we trust the "detective" will give this matter the consideration its importance deserves. The citizens of this growing northwest coast section demand and deserve better service in the delivery of their mails than they are now receiving. Let the official, whoseever he may be, whose duty it is to attend to the mail service, look into this matter and see that the needs and demands of the people are not longer neglected.
