Lost on the Bar.

Another unhappy fatal casualty to one of our best fishermen occured a day or two since on the bar. Peter Peterson, behing one of John W. Hume's boats was taking up his net as fast as he could car in increasing ebb tide. He had hauled hill in but about thirty fathom when he discovered his boat would invariably be drawn into the breakers if he did not cut loose. Pulling out his knife for that purpose, he told his boat puller to throw out the anchor. He then stooped to grab the net, and as he reached over, the boat suddenly stopped yielding to the strain on the anchor. When the: boat puller looked around Peterson was in the water apparently entangled in the net. He cried out to his mate "save yourself," and those were his last words. #### TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Life, Etc.

Dull times and scarcity of money is the complaint, here and elsewhere. The pendulum is swinging back this season. Last year was one of buoyancy, expansion, expectation, profit and investment. This year brings retrenchment, hedging, quiet and conservatism. It is the streak of lean alternating with the streak of fat, and is just as natural as anything St.00 that we see around us in the ordinary course of nature. Villard failed too soon or not soon enough, just as one looks at it. Had he never got control of Oregon railways and steamboats, the impulse of '82 and '83 would have been delayed. SUNDAY MORNING'S ITEMS.

Had he been able to swing his system of improvements through '84, the northwest coast would have been "booming" this plans. Our people fully appreciate the well. People lose their heads quickly enough anyhow, and the longer an era of speculation and suppositious prosperity is kept up the greater the reaction. For the same reason it was a thinly distinguished the boole wards yesterday.

Had he been able to swing his system of toria company somewhat, cannot materially injure it, and should not affect its plans. Our people fully appreciate the efforts of the Astoria people who proposed to come to their aid, in the matter of transportation, when the prospect was very gloomy, but they cannot be blamed for securing the transfer of much-needed freights. The company is kept up the greater the reaction. Had he been able to swing his system of the same reason it was a thinly disguised blessing to have the crash in Wall street this month. When the dust clears away it will be seen how flimsily constructed were the structures that fell.

Two weeks more of buzzing, and then well then there will be something else.

Three months after they would be keeping a restaurant or running a dry goods store, or something else, living well, making expenses and a good deal more, but ready to drop what they were at and grab at something that promised better the minute it hore in sight. Few expected to be in the same business that then engaged their attention one year from date. All things paid well; some better than others; and what paid the most, and the best, and the fastthe Columbia are usually too rough for triels of speed in cedar or paper shells, but some of these days we will have bost after. There was a good deal of a gamble about the whole thing, and it had the fascination of each one knowing that he could get up winner from the game whenever he felt like it. For some time our people have been expecting to be put in connection with Portland, and Columbia river points, through the agency of a new steamer now being built by the Coast Transportstion Co., of Astoria. We were recently in Astoria and saw the proposed vessel in process of construction, and there is not the slightest ground for doubting the fact that this company is, and has been, making every effort to keep faith with with the arrangements made by Mr. Hume when he was here some time since. A feature has recently arisen in the case, however, namely, competition on the part of Goodall & Perkins, which, while it may affect the operations of the Astition which has so suddenly put in an appearance. Had it chartered and put upon the route, any sort of craft that would have carried freight panding the construction of the new boat, our people would have had no occasion to become so descretely for transportation facilities. so clamorous for transportation facilities as to attract and command the attention of outside parties prepared to carry freights. This it neglected to do, and it freights. This it neglected to do, and it may be that so to do was a matter impossible. Be that as it may the results have been competition, but this should not be a source of discouragement. All that this valley has ever needed for development into an active and important business center has been adequate shipping facilities, and the fact that these are now fully supplied will without are now fully supplied will without doubt generally increase the volume of business, a fact which must naturally inure greatly to the benefit of common carriers.

The Astoria steamer will be a very handsome and capable craft. She will be fast and a good bar boat, capable of running to points south as well as north of the Columbia river, so that there can be no doubt but that she will get all the business she can do. From Mr. Hume we learned a fact which, taken in connection with the Actoria steamer, enterommon carriers we learned a fact which, taken in con-nection with the Astoria steamer enter-prise, can hardly fail to contribute large-ly to the success of the latter. It is a pro-position, in regard to which Mr. Hume is very earnest and proposes to see carried to a successful issue, to build a small steamer to run on the upper Chehalis, connecting with the new steamer at some point on the harbor. A competent ex-pert in the matter of river navigation will be sent here in August, who will will be sent here in August, who will thoroughly examine the Chemilis to the mouth of the Black river, and upon his mouth of the Bleck river, and upon his report a boat will be built which can successfully navigate both these streams. With this boat plying on the upper river and connecting with the new steamer below, a large and lucrative trade in produce must be developed and also a good business in the transportation of merchandise built up. We therefore think that the Astoria people have nothing to fear from the competition which has appeared, for it will only result in the more rapid development of the vast resources of this region, and consequently more business for those interested in it.—Chehalis Vidette, 15.

What They Think of Frank Taylor in Wasc

Believing that it is important that the position of circuit judge should be filled by a man of unexceptional character, it has been with real gratification that we have been assured by men of high standing of both political parties, that no more acceptable selection could be made for that important position than that of Hon. Frank J. Taylor, the nominee of the republican party for circuit judge.

Mr. Taylor was born in Clatsop county, Openers, graduated at the law school at Mr. Taylor was born in Clatsop county, Oregon, graduated at the law school at Albany. N. Y., was a member of the legislature, session of 1880, by joint representation for Clatsop and Tillamook.

Mr. Taylor is 32 years of age, a man of great natural and acquired ability, proverbially conscientious, honest and liberal in dealing with his fellow-men. A man of genuine thrift, an excellent law-yer, who, by his homographic course in busi-yer, who, by his homorable course in business and social life, has won the hearty good feeling of men of all parties, who are his neighbors and associates; as such we feel justified to recommend him to our republican friends, and hope to see him placed on the bench.—Wasco Sun, 14th. Dick Rogers was before a commission in insanity yesterday on examination as to his mental condition. Drs. Baker and Fulton were there in the interest of science, C. F McCormac ergued the case for the state, and his honor, Judge Mo-Guire, presided. It has been said that all mankind is more or less insane; that everyone is "a little off" on some point and that no matter who it is, from royalty down to members of the legislature, the people of this valley, in accordance all the hapless sons of clay have a soft spot somewhere in their respective craniums. Some have loved "not wisely but to well:" others are so unfortunate as to have the being on whom the wealth of their heart's affection is poured, coldly unmindful of the ardent admirer; still others are off on a wild goose chase after wealth; others pursue the fleeting phantom of fame, others seek to win renown by extravagance; more are "sot" on running for office: wome are "sot" on running for office: wome are "sot". by extravagance; more are "sot" on run-ning for office; some are confirmed cranks and keep up a perpetual quarrel with the Almighty because things are not different, and these facts are advanced as evidence that out of the 1,492,000,000 that Bohm says inhabit the earth, 1,491,999,999 are more or less affected that way. This is not very flattering, but when you get thinking of the folks next door, and across the street, and around the corner. across the street, and around the corner, and in the adjoining block, you'll allow that there may be those who are a little that there may be those who are a little queer sometimes. Of ocurse the reader is exempt. Dick Roger's peculiar form of insanity seems to be giving Chinamen what is usually known as "the grand bounce." It was clearly established in court yesterday that he would sit in sunny ease and careless freedom at the door of ease and careless freedom at the door of his favorite boozing place and appear en-tirely ignorant of what was going on. All the races of the earth might parade be-fore him from Greenland's icy mountains or India's coral strand, or East Portland, or the country round about the Wil-lamette, but let a Chinaman pass by and Richard rose in wrath and smote the hap-less heathen, hip and thigh. "He is a holy terror," spake one witness, and if anything can be a terror and at the same time processes any of the attributes of holtime possess any of the attributes of hol-liness, Dick would seem to fill the bill. In his careless way and with an easy grace born of practice, Dick would jump a passing Chinaman and knock him flat, caress him with his boot, terrify him with United States language and breathe unim, greatly to the horror of the m Mongolian, who would one and all go sixteen blocks out of their wey rather than meet that blood-thirsty man. Some there are who think it unwise to

Some there are who think it unwise to send Dick to seek the seclusion that the asylum grants, and argue that he is needed here to complete the work of Chi-nese subjugation; but the brethren thought differently: Dick goes to Salem to-morrow and Chinatown turns loose to-night for a season of rejoiding.

Twas on the shores that round our coar From Deal to Ramsgate span, That I found alone on a piece of stone An elderly naval man.

His hair was weedy, his beard was long, And weedy and long was he, And I heard this wight on the shore

In a singular minor key:

"Oh, I am a cook, and a captain bold, And the mate of the Nancy brig, And a bo'sun tight, and a midshipmi And the crew of the captain's gig."

And he shook his fists and he tore his hair,
Till I really felt afraid,
For I couldn't help thinking the man
had been drinking,
And so I simply said:

Then he gave a hitch to his trouse Is a trick all seamen learn, and having got rid of a thumpin' quid, He spun this painful yarn:

"Twas in the good ship Nancy Bell That we sailed to the Indian ses. And there on a reef we come to grief, Which has often occurred to me.

"And pretty nigh all o' the crew was drowned (There was seventy-seven o' soul), And only ten of the Nancy's men Said 'Here! to the muster roll.
