AROUND THE CITY.

Ascension Day.
The Jesse Jamison will begin loading salmon to-morrow.
A slight improvement is reported in the run of salmon this week.
Read the adv. of the auction sale at E. C. Holden's auction rooms next Saturday morning.

A $25 pound was attracted considerable attention in front of Bergman & Berry's yesterday.

Morning prayer and celebration of the Holy communion in Grace church this morning at 10 o'clock.

Charles Jackson, who deserted from Fort Canby a few days ago, has been captured and returned.

The Portland tug boat company report their financial affairs in good shape and that they will soon declare a dividend.

The second day's session of the Grand Lodge of Oregon adjourned at 9:30 last night to meet at nine o'clock this morning.

Any one wanting a second hand engine, two horse power, can get a bargain by applying to THE ASTORIAN office, where it can be seen in operation.

At a meeting of the Baptist church last evening it was arranged that Rev. Winfield Scott, D. D., should fill the pulpit Sundays, morning and evening.

Hon. T. A. McBride, the next district attorney for this district, was shaking hands with many friends last evening. He brings good reports from eastern Oregon.

A tattooed woman and an elephant will be on exhibition next Wednesday. Kate Castleton and Rice's Surprise Party will appear the same evening, and will play to a full house.

Several of the members of the Grand Encampment take the morning train for home. The remainder of the visiting members go to-morrow. They are all and all express themselves in terms of the heartiest appreciation.

About a hundred of our visitors took a pleasure trip to the cape yesterday. On their return they held an afternoon social and after adjournment attended a complimentary ball given by Beaver Lodge, No. 25, and friends in honor of the officers and members of the Grand Lodge of Oregon.

J. K. Armsby, head of the well known firm of J. K. Armsby & Co., Chicago, arrived here on Tuesday per Oregon, and of course came ashore to view the city. J. K., whose name is a household word among the general grocery trade, was unloading along with the steamer, but at the same time the steamer was making for Portland, and though the Oregon is slow, Jake is slower and the result was that he was "left." He says that next time he will "come a-purpose."

The "change racket" is now being worked on a large scale in the interior. The style is about this: Two shavers, No. 1 and No. 2, go into a bank and ask the teller if he can give them two two-and-a-half gold pieces. The bank official hands out the confederates put down a $100 note. The teller hands over $55, when No. 1 says: "Please let me have a $50 bill for this change, it is easier to carry." The obliging bank official hands out a $50 bill and No. 1 puts down $50 of the change. Just as the banker finishes counting it, No. 2 puts the $50 bill on the $50 in change and says: "If it's all the same to you, would you please give me back the $100 bill, as the change is too heavy to carry." The bill is handed over, the $50 bill and the $50 in change is picked up and put away, the rush of business goes on, but when the blinds are pulled down that afternoon and the books balanced, the bank finds that it is just $50 lower.

STATE AND TERRITORIAL NEWS.
The upper Columbia is rising fast. Saleen is to have a "red hot" daily paper.
E. Murray was drowned near Albany last Tuesday.
The Globe hotel at Albina has been closed out on an attachment.
D. P. Thomson gets $500 per month as receiver of the Holladay property.
The Elita theatre in Portland was nearly cleaned out by fire last Tuesday.
A "regulator ticket," a temperance ticket, and a woman suffrage ticket, enliven Seattle local politics.
Wool shearing is over in eastern Oregon, and 1,000 acres are being daily shipped to San Francisco.
The insurance policies on the burned Clarendon hotel at Portland had only two more days to run.

Saw logs have gone down in price on the Sound to $1.50. Considerable difference between now and one year ago.

The Statesman thinks that investigation would prove some ugly connection of ex-Governor Thayer with the swamp land swindle.

Stanley robbed a Baker county stage on the 15th, was arrested on the 14th, tried on the 15th, and sent to the Salien penitentiary on the 17th.

Cow Wanted.
A fresh milk cow with calf. Apply at this office.

Girl Wanted.

1, 2, 3, 4 and 5.
Just received another large invoice of the celebrated reading matter, the best and cheapest in the market. Come before they are all gone again. At Carl Adler's Crystal Palace Book Store.

Of Interest To The Ladies.
A full line of Ladies' Silk, Lisle and Cotton Hosiery and Muslin Underwear at greatly reduced prices for a few days only, at the Leading Suit and Cloth House, next to Keene Engine house.

At the Empire Store.
You will find the finest laces and em broderies, of richest quality.

The most popular bitters in the market is Dr. Henry's Dandelion Tonic.

A full line of ladies' and children's shoes, latest styles, to be found cheap at Arnold's, sign of the Golden Shoe.

Arnold will sell a large stock of Boots and Shoes at cost, at the Leading boot and shoe store.

Dr. Henry's Dandelion Tonic tickles the palate and gladdens the heart.

THE GRAND ENCAMPMENT.

At the ninth annual session of the grand encampment of Oregon I. O. O. F., which closed its session last Tuesday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

A. G. Walling, of Portland, Grand Patriarch; D. S. K. Baile, of Myrtle Creek, Douglas county, Grand High Priest; I. W. Case, of Astoria, Grand Senior Warden; J. M. Bacon, of Oregon City, Grand Scribe; I. R. Moore, of Salem, Grand Treasurer; R. M. Day, of Eugene City, Grand Junior Warden.

The committee on petitions reported favorably upon the petition for a new encampment to be located at Ashland, Jackson county, to be known as the Pilot Rock Encampment, No. 16. The report of the committee was adopted.

The matter of authorizing or adopting the "degree of Uniformed Patriarch" was upon motion adopted, and under the law, the formation of such uniformed degrees is left to the option of the patriarchs in the several lodges.

Geo. H. Chance, Grand Representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge, made his report, which is comprehensive. From it it is learned that at that session the Grand Sire was authorized to issue proclamation commanding all members of the order to abandon what is known as the "Patriarchal circle" under penalty of expulsion.

UNIFORMED DEGREE CAMPS.
The legislation on the new degree had reference more particularly to arranging and perfecting some minor details connected with its workings. "In some of the jurisdictions the uniformed degree is being received with much favor, and camps are being instituted wherever the membership is sufficiently large to warrant their introduction. These uniformed degree camps being a component part of legitimate Odd Fellowship, the members can participate in public parades and displays of the order. They can visit subordinate encampments in a body in full uniform, when over it shall be so determined by the commander or the body itself without in any case having to ask for a dispensation for that purpose from any higher authority." A state grand encampment may adopt or reject the Uniformed Camp Degree. The report then treats of matters relating to "the good of the order," and in conclusion, referring to the death of the Sovereign Grand Treasurer, Joshua Vassant, Dr. Chance fittingly says:

"Though this is not the time for eulogy, yet, in reflecting upon the death of Brother Vassant, your representative is most forcibly reminded of the other two great lights of Odd Fellowship, and how bodily the three stand out, each in its own sphere, as the exponents of the true motto of our order, 'Friendship, Love and Truth,' for, in the founding of American Odd Fellowship it was 'Friendship' toward man that provided the cement in the breast of the rugged Wilkey, and the gentle influence of Love, manifested in the life of the Pauline Ridgely that supplied the weapons, it is no less the fact that in the life and character of Joshua Vassant, 'Truth' concentrated their efforts and led them on to victory.

"Let us then as Odd Fellows of the Patriarchal branch, in living exponents of the principles they inculcate, and so emulate their example that when our bodies, like theirs, shall crumble into dust, our works, like theirs, may become imperishable."

The Indian Language.
One singular fact is the infinite diversity of language. Not only every tribe, but every band, of which there are sometimes fifty in a single tribe, has its own dialect or jargon, perfectly unintelligible to all who do not belong to the band. In all times the Indians have been disinclined to learn even a few words of an enemy's language. Stranger yet, the Cheyennes and Arapahoes for three-quarters of a century have been firm friends, camping and hunting together, and making war upon the same enemies at the same time. The children constantly romp and play together in the common camp. Yet not one in ten, in either tribe can hold the most ordinary conversation in the language of the other.

Unable to speak each other's language, the Indians of the west have constructed a wonderful sign language by which they hold intercourse. Gestures, signs, are more or less natural to every one. Among the plains Indians alone have they reached their most wonderful development. So complicated and elaborate is the sign language, consisting of countless gestures and movements, the slightest variation of which marks wide differences in meaning, that only a few Indians in a tribe are complete masters of it, and the masses can only use it slightly. The signs do not indicate letters or words, as with the deaf and dumb, but ideas. There is one sign to indicate hunger, another for "stop talking," another for "sum, mer, and so on, indefinitely. To an expert sign-talker will either make or interpret a long speech, which consists of an infinite number of signs, following each other with lightning-like rapidity. Two strange Indians will meet on horseback, each unable to understand a spoken word of the other, and while holding the reins with the left hand, will converse for hours in their right, telling stories or relating their experience without a single misunderstanding.

A LETTER THAT WILL HELP BLAINE.

There was a big meeting of business men in New York last Tuesday night, to help along Arthur's chances for the nomination. Henry Ward Beecher and other big guns spoke. An interesting part of the affair was the following letter written by Ex-Astorian General Wayne Macdonald to Ex-Secretary Bristow. It is the richest thing the present campaign has developed. Its truth is among the least of its merits.

At the threshold I ought to warn you that while nobody envies Arthur his great prize, as far beyond his expectations as his deserts, which he drew in the lottery of assassination, nobody has forgotten the pregnant fact that Guitau was an original Arthur man; that he killed Garfield expressly to make Arthur president, and that he did make him president by that act for nearly four years. Now, in view of this awful tragedy and its result, it has always seemed to a good many people, outside of Wall street, of course, that a proper sense of decency and the fitness of things demanded that Arthur and his friends to see that his true course was to be satisfied with the one term thus secured to him, and not to challenge his countrymen to review his political career. I assume that your first words of eulogy will be devoted to what is your candidate's chief political achievement and upon which his admirers have always rested his title to fame, the building up and managing of the republican "machine" of the city of New York, the latest triumph of which at Albany causes the hearts of all true patriots to throb with joy for the distant and distant leaves O'Brien at liberty to continue those "deals" with corrupt politicians and politicians which gave Mr. Arthur his first renown as a practical statesman. You will not doubt introduce copious extracts from the commission which investigated Arthur's administration of the customs house and found it worthy of such high commendation. And a rebuke could be neatly administered at this point to Roosevelt; the son, by reminding your audience how his honored father was rejected as collector of the port in order to keep Arthur in that important office, in spite of the expressed opinion of both of his superior officers that he was an unworthy official and deserved to be turned out.

If you wish materials for a pathetic and thrilling picture you will readily find them in some of the well known incidents of the Chicago convention of last year. You can tell how everybody was determined that Conkling must be placed at any cost, and how everybody begged him not to force Arthur upon the convention, and how everybody was determined to consider any other name. You must reserve your highest flight of eloquence for an adequate description of that occasion where your candidate displayed his true nobility of soul, and made his only recorded public speech. I need not say I alluded to the Dorsey banquet at Belmont's in February, 1891. I can tell your audience, and I can tell your audience, that it was the first and last occasion in our history when one man publicly praised another for bringing out a Republican in the chair of a United States Senator. Arthur's part in the character of "Honest John" was a successful contradiction, that it was the first and last occasion in our history when one man publicly praised another for bringing out a Republican in the chair of a United States Senator. Arthur's part in the character of "Honest John" was a successful contradiction, that it was the first and last occasion in our history when one man publicly praised another for bringing out a Republican in the chair of a United States Senator.

Washington by the sound of Guitau's pistol, perhaps, you would better touch lightly. The Republican party, and the Republicans in this state, as well as in New York and Ohio, who don't quite enjoy these reminiscences, and I would not advise you to dwell too long upon that and not of course, and the destruction of the dead Garfield in which, for many months, the inmate friends and associates of Mr. Arthur indulged, without any signs of disapproval by him, and in the cases of Guitau, Hatton and Hastings, with abundant signs of approval.

You will, of course, admit that when Guitau promoted him to the presidency, Mr. Arthur was proved to be a known and avowed supporter of the "boss" system, the "spoils" system, the third term or general grant, and the unit rule. He was then fifty years of age, and your task is to persuade anybody and everybody that he is under no obligations to a single one of his delegates; all of them were secured for him by his own officeholders.

The only proposition you will need will be to read the roll call of the discredited patriots whose names you will find in the conference with him during his visit to you of last week, when he returned to New York, and his boom in your city, and started the movement for your meeting, and listen to their illustrious names: Stephen B. French, Robert G. McCord, John Lytle, John E. Smith, De Witt Clinton Wheeler and John G. O'Brien. And I recommend these patriotic and high minded gentlemen, and your fellow workers, to your charge for consideration. In this world no man has trusted themselves in your company, and even now they will harbor a lurking suspicion that you intend to reduce them. That is the penalty you have to pay for having been a reformer.

It strikes right in to the acute agony, and for a cure of pain St. Jacobs Oil has no equal.

Gentlemen:—Like most of my profession, I am cautious about planning my fee to any new medicine or curative agent. But your BENSON'S CAPSICINE PLEURAL PLASTER has broken through the barriers and won its way to my good opinion. My attention was first called to it some eight months ago by a patient of mine. Although I was well acquainted with the superior excellence of your other plaster and antiseptic dressing, made especially for the profession, the Benson's was comparatively new to me. I had heard, however, of its merits as a remedy, in cases of Lamé Back, Local Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Congestion of the Bronchial Tubes and Lung, Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver and the like affections, and have since begun to experiment with it personally. I find BENSON'S CAPSICINE PLASTER an exceptionally clean, plaster to use, and rapid in its action. Many tests of its qualities, made in my own family and among my patients have convinced me that there is no single article so valuable for popular use, nor so helpful in the diseases I have named.
