as the man who, though totally unfit, yet runs for office. The sooner he gets over the melady and is discharged cured, the better for himself and his folks.

And talking of running for office, we would not have our remarks apply to the man who honestly seeks a nomination and honorably tries to be elected to the position be desires. It is the being erect on two legs and bearing the outward form and semblance of a man who is con-tinually smelling around and showing his sores and whining, that is to all decent minded men an object of mingled deriminded men in object or mingled deri-sion and compassion; the individual whose ability is in inverse ratio to his in-clination and whose only plea for app-port is that he needs it. There are oc-casions when a man cannot well refuse to accept an office—but those occasions are very rare quite as rare as the cases

To-morrow about 1,500 citizens of Clatsop county, and about 50,000 citizens of the commonwealth of Oregon, will walk up to the respective polling places and there declare their individual preference for certain parties to fill certain offices for certain parties to fill certain offices from congressman down to constable. Then the men that we, the sovereign people, pay for the purpose, sweat and count, and decipher scratched ballots and keep tally lists and get tired and send out for lunch and about midnight will be able to tell how many thought they would like to see A. fill that office, and how many had expressed a similar preference for B, and whoever has received the greatest number of expressions is declared "elected" and the other fellow is mad for about three days, and thus the sovereign will of the people and thus the sovereign will of the people is vindicated. The congratulations are usually bestowed upon the successful can-Chaplain Scott will preach at the Baptist church at 11 a. M., and deliver a lecture on "Temperance and good morals" in the evening. That will be a notable assemblage that goes surging through the hotels of Chicago to morrow and the next day settles down to a me the next president of the United States. The Republicans of this country have got into the fashion of naming a man every four years, usually in the early summer months, more often at Chicago than elsewhere, and inaugurat river.

A clasp knife with the letters "C. H.
F." cut on the handle, was brought to THE ASTORIAN office yesterday morning.
It was picked up on the weather beach by the body of the unknown men who came ashore tangled in the net, and may them by the almost unanimous express-ion of Republican sentiment. In '76, at Cincinnati, Blaine had 351 years ago, sat the lordly Conkling, with his solid 306 for Grant, "first, last, and all the time;" there was Sherman, of Ohio, who many thought was the coming man, and in his interest came the gallant Garfield to whom came the unexpected honor of the nomination, the brilliant success of November, and, alas, through that very success the assassin's builet the following July, the agonizing months of pain, and the sad ending at Elberon in September. Never was truer paraphrase than Garfield's life, of the line "The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

What a whirligig time is! Now the man whom Hayes "fired out" of the New York custom-house, and who has been president for nearly three years, is laying plans to succeed himself. Conkling, who complacently knifed Blaine, is now willing that Blaine shall win the prize. Grant, whose "old guard" had bronze medals struck commemorative of their stubborn fight, is broken in body, spirit, and finances, and possesses none of his former prestige; and all the lesser lights are in temporary eclipse.

Oregon, by the sunset sea, sounds the sunrise gun of '84. It will be of fine ef-fect for the chairman of the Webfoot delegation next Tuesday, in the after-noon, to be able to catch the eye of the chairman of the national convention and hand up a dispatch in which the farthest northwest of all the sisterhood sends northwest of all the sisternood sense greeting to the nation and announces a Republican triumph, as a keynote for the coming presidential campaign. And if an answering telegram comes back that the great party has had the courage to come square to the front with the name of James G. Blaine for president, the thing will be complete.

KNAPPA CORRESPONDENCE.

ED. ASTORIAN:-A distressing causalty enlisted our sympsthies as the steam There is a difference in the Oregon and neared the wharf this morning. The Washington of '83 and '84. A year sgo body of Fannie Cusick, aged two and considerable money was paying out for one-half years, daughter of a settler in a construction, big schemes were on foot neighboring district, lay in its little coffin, for making money; no hamlet was so re- awaiting transportation to Vancouver mote or insignificant that didn't have a for burial. Tuesday the little one in little boomlet of its own, and every one company with mother and sister, left the had some little idea that he saw money boat on a return trip from a visit to its in. It didn't make any difference if it grand parents at Vancouver, full of life was Old Haysced up in Yamhill who and joyousness, with the exception of a mortgaged his farm to get money to bet on the Yambill foot racer, or Old Moneybags in Portland who put all he had scraped and saved in the O. & T. bubble, all alike, had their hopes of speedy gain, and a good many are left sucking their thumbs. The contrast between '83 and '84 is not pleasant, but the result is bound to be of lasting benefit. The lesson learned is: Don't be in a hurry to get rich. A man that wants to get to good fortune across lots is almost as badly off mortgaged his farm to get money to bet slight cough, the effects of a cold. Mrs.

and although we have no buried soldiers to claim the rites of the "Grand Army of the Republic," we have a grand army of loving hearts, many of whom mourn the departed, and as we gather around their lowly beds scattering the tokens of af fection, we think tenderly of the parents faction, we think tenderly of the parents whose eyes so lately dimmed, and who through long years of devotion and love made other lives a blessing; of the widows who sit desolate, only for the promise, "I will be a Father to thee and thine;" of the aching hearts who mourn a loved son torn ruthlessly from their embrace, we silently weep for those who are still dear to our memories, and though fallen from the ranks of the battle of life, we will deak their hallowed mounds life, we will deck their hallowed mounds with flowers and water them with our tents—rejoicing that one day has been set spart from the busy turmoil of life as sacred slike to the astional and individual dead.

An Eleventh Hour Boorback.

NEW YORK, May 30. - The Herald's Washington special: "Blaine has finally declared, on the eve of the assembling of the convention, that he has no desire for the empty honor, and he is reported as saying that, in his opinion, the Republican nominee, whoever he may be, cannot possibly be elected this year. He points to the uncertainty of the financial market as certain to cause a political revalsion, and whether from anathy on the part of the mass of the Republican voters, or the phenomenal popularity of the expected nominee of the Democratic convention (referring to Tilden), the result vention (referring to Iliden), the result will, in his opinion, be the same to the Republican nominee."

Herald, editorially: "James G. Blaine, having satisfied himself that he will not consider to Chicago for president.

be nominated at Chicago for presi boldly confesses his resolve to ruin the Republican party, since he cannot rule it. If Blaine, after making his declaration under such circumstances, does not in-stantly withdraw his name for very shame from consideration of the Chicago convention, it should be hooted by every delegate. It may be that the Republican party's time is up, but its bitterest foes must acknowledge that it has had too must acknowledge that it has had too grand a career to deserve to be thus betrayed, nor will they tolerate the traitor, though they may profit by his treason. Blaine may imagine that he is a political Samson in what he is doing, but the people of the United States, Democrats and Republicans alike, will be quick to recognize the traits of the Judas."

The above is pronounced by Blaine to be absolutely feise. The article was shown Blaine to-day, and when he had read it he said: "It is an absolute lie from beginning to end. You can make a denial as strong and broad as you choose.

denial as strong and broad as you choose. There is not a man in the United States slightest doubt that whoever is nominat ed by the Republicans this year will be elected. And now," continued Blaine, "I think it is incumbent on the Herald to bring forward the witness, or take back its charges."

proposes to forfeit the entire grant of the company, including grants earned and unearned, Mr. Cobb, chairman of the public lands committee, spoke in favor of the bill, repeating the argument that the company had failed to perform the stipulations of the contract with the government. Mr. Payson, of Illinois, also favored a sweeping forfeiture of all grants not legally earned. Mr. Cates, of Alabama, who has all along taken a more conservative view of the subject, opposed the forfeiture of any lands except those unearned. Mr. George, of Oregon, made a strong argument in favor of the company, and got into a very warm debate with Mr. Cobb, who persisted in contradicting Mr. George's statements. By means of a map, Mr. George pointed out the route of the Oregon Central; he showed that the company had constructed its road in good faith, and with the exception of the branch had completed it.

"What makes you talk so much?" said an old gentleman to a little boy. "Because I've got something to say," quoth the urchin; and that's fust the same reason why we of Oregon toot our respective horns and have so much to say about polities. You and I, and all the rest of us have a good deal to say about how this government shall be run. One voter in Oregon has as much to say as one handred voters in New York, and on that beautiful system of state representation, which must be studied to be appreciated, an Astorian has just about one hundred times as much to say (as far as his vote stinct to go somewhere to spawn, they Homer Gibson, the well-known cathery

THE WOMEN OF THE "CORNERS."

CONFEDERT X ROADS, ¶
(Wich is in the State of Kentucky,) April, 5, 1884. The wimmen uv the Corners are givin ns much more trubble than the men. We can get on with Bigler and Pollock, for we can fight them, but when the wives dawters and sisters uv the Corners get to invadin the sakred precinks, it worries us. Only last night there was almost a tragedy. They cum in and led out the Deekin Issaker Gavitt and Kernal Me-Pelter by the ear, took em home and locked em in their cold houses, and they returned and sot up in Bascom's barroom till 12 o'clock at nite. It was ter-I hey studied woman with great care and I am free to admit that she haz her vooses in this world; but she is not a man and never kin be. All the attempts to convert her into such will allux result in ignominyus failyoors. Woman is ornamental, and, in certain capacities, yoose full. In her proper speer-movin in her regiar orbit-nothin kin be better. The wife uv Issaker Gavitt is to Bascom a pleasin picter when she is in the fore-ground uv a wash-tub, perticklerly ex he knows that all the money she earns at that pursoot he will inevitably spend at his bar. Ther she is in her natural speer, and is good. But when that same bein flies out uv of her orbit and fires into hiz-ran, she is like a comet, which slockes flies out uv of her orbit and fires into hizzen, she is like a comet, which sloshes about among worlds and smashes things.

When she rushes frantikly into his bar,
with her four hungry brats close behind her, and forbids him to sell likker to issaker, ez she wants what she haz earned, at least, to buy pervishins and shus fer
the childrin, she don't please me at all; she is interferin with Issaker's prerogative ez a man; and, while I don't delite in brootality. I can't deny that she deserves brootality, I can't deny that she deserves the black eye which she a it a gi a on sich

I waz never so convinct uv the danger I waz never so convinct uv the danger uv women gettin out uv their speer ez I waz one nite when she waz tryin to git Issaker home, and he struck her. "Hevins! ef we only cood do sathin," said this brazen wretch, chokin with teers and pashun, "it's quick enuff we'd shut up sich holes ez yoorn!" This to Bascom.

The remark was full of menin to me. Issakur and the others who spend most uv their time and all uv their money with Bascom agreed with me that nothin' cood be so dangerous to our liberties ez wombe so dangerous to our liberties ex wom-en. They havn't the reasonin' faculties uv men, and havn't the stiddiness necesav men, and mayn't the stiddiness neces-sary to the proper exercise uv the gover-nin' function. Bascom's customers hev often commenced the discushen uv this question, and wood, doubtliss, hev struck out suthen startlin' ef they cood hev kept sober long cuuf to hev developed their idees; but this I know, that ev'ry man who frekents his bar is opposed to en, 'ceptin' at home in their place. The only proper marriage arr en, ceptim at nome in their place.

The only proper marriage arrangements I hav seen is among the Soo Injuns. The sooperior bein uv that tribe when he wants a wife, simply knocks down with a club the maiden onto whom he hez fixed his luv. Ef she survives, she rises and iramediately goes out and picks up dry wood, dresses the game in his lodge, cooks his dinner, which the gushin child uv nacher cats, and immediately goes to the nearest settlement and gusnin chiid uv nacher eats, and imme-jitly goes to the nearest settlement and gets ez drunk ez a lord; wich practice is continoed ev'ry day till death doth them part. She dresses the game, tans the akin uv the buffalo he kills, cultivates the corn, and in short, does the work uv life, wich cives har meater the fire life; wich gives her master the time necessary for mental and moral improve

Ah! with all our boastid civilizeshen we kin yit learn suthin from the noble red man! Ef sich customs prevailed among us, I would hev a wife at wunst; but rather than be coerced, ez the married men uv the corners are, I will remain sincle forever. Fit Level finds wat I kin borror barely supplies my appetite, and I don't keer to further burdin my capassity. The woman wich wants me must be willin too keer for me. No man with a consooming appetite hez any biznis with a wife. She don't who can say, with a particle of truth. that I ever said any such thing to any-body. On the contrary, I haven't the said murrors at cold rooms and bad clay.

No man kin support Bascom and a family at the same time. He must give up one or the other. Ef he hez a appetite for Bascom the wife must support herself and the children, and ef she is a loven wife she will help her husband out with Bascom. Sich a wife I cood cling to, but to no other.

ter from the rise to the fall of the our tain. When he appeared as the rising young barrister, attired as Punch, and showed how he would plead his far citent's cause, his efforts were greeted with peals of laughter, which continued long after the curtain rang down on the first act. Mrs. Kendall as the fascincting widow was simply be ritching, and sustained the character admirably, her delightful little ballad "No, Sh," being loudly apphaded. The other memiers of the company were, as usual, perfect, and nothing but praise can be written of the entire performance. It would not be just if the music was passed without notice.
