ASTORIA AND VICINITY.

Who will check the elephant's trunk?
A circus performer should make a good politician because he is always "in the ring."

Sheik Abudalla Ben Said, of Cole's Arab troupe, is a great performer, so it has been said.

Jno. McCann has the contract for building the crossing of Genevieve and Jefferson streets, for $165.

Pete Wilhelm, an old-timer, now at Portland, was shaking hands with his friends yesterday evening.

Fourteen bare back running and ridden horses are to be seen in the several rings of Cole's circus at one time.

Post Chaplain Winfield Scott, U. S. A., who has been at Fort Canby, has been assigned to duty at Fort Spokane, W. T.

The City of Astoria will complete the foreign salmon fleet of 1884. There are 12,000 cases aboard and will take probably 50,000 more.

The Western Union Telegraph Company's office has been removed to room 5, Pythian building, in the office formerly occupied by Judge Taylor.

H. Staff and Anton Tassin were arrested yesterday on a charge of stealing from Aug. Norberg, and will be given a hearing before Justice A. T. Brakke today.

This rainy weather is getting to be a trifle monotonous. Now that the salmon season is closing we want to cut our hay and oats and get our wood in and do some road repairing and fix up generally.

It was stated on the street yesterday that the circus would pitch its tent at Alderbrook for the performance, and that the steamer would ply between here and that point for the benefit of all who attended.

Maxwell Young, who has a thrifty garden at Alderbrook, has some of the finest vegetables and fruit that came to hand this season. His peas, especially, are the largest and finest that have been brought to our notice.

The county court was in session yesterday auditing bills and adjusting claims. It was decided to have the court house cleaned and fixed up. The matter of building a new court house was taken under advisement.

Frank Fabre opens this morning at his new restaurant, on the corner of the old Adams building, ice cream, oysters etc., in first class style. His place is on Cass street, rear of Old Fellows' building, three doors above his former stand.

The Astorians are in receipt of a communication from Frank E. Hodgkin, secretary of the Firemen's Association of Oregon in reference to the coming tournament at Albany. Astoria will send two teams in friendly competition for the prizes offered.

Captain Scott, of the McLeod, who took the Northern Pacific transfer boat, the Kalamo, on her recent trial trip, says that she steers as easily as his own boat. When accepted, which will probably be on the 1st prox., she will be commanded by Captain Gove.

There is said to be a gang of light-fingered gentry following the circus, so that our citizens would do well to lock their doors to day before going to the show. The management are on the square, but from all accounts there are some pretty tough chaps in the outfit.

Hadi Mohammed, the giant Arab who supports the huge pyramid of eleven men in Cole's circus, has heard of the prowess of Sullivan the slinger, and the desert-born athlete says that he will agree to knock the famous pugilist into the arms of Abraham, or else he will sacrifice his own head to Allah the Great.

Parties who have given the matter considerable study are of the opinion that should active operation begin at the mouth of the river looking to permanent improvement, it would be more effectual to drive a double row of piles with mattresses between, than to attempt any costly stone work that would prove impracticable.

W. W. Cole is the richest man in the show business. He is the sole owner of his great exhibition, and his real estates in Chicago and San Francisco are a source of large revenues. He is only 34 years old, and has already made one trip around the world with his mammoth enterprise. His profits last season amounted to something over half a million.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE CITY COUNCIL.

Geo. Nolan, City Attorney-The Twelve O'clock Ordinance Not Repealed-The Police Judge's Salary Seventy-five Dollars a Month.

The six chairs wherein do sit the half dozen councilmen were filled last evening with the exception of that of Councilman Case, when Auditor Jewett called the roll, and the six gas jets overhead gleamed brightly, as Mayor Hume announced the regular order of business.

The first thing that was tackled was a petition from Mrs. O'Brien for a saloon license for one year, which was granted.

Councilman Cleveland moved that the petition of Washington street property owners be granted; he thought it was about time something was done in the matter. The petition in question was produced and read, after which Councilman Cleveland's motion was seconded and carried.

A remonstrance was then read from Arch street residents, remonstrating against the proposed improvement of that street, which had the effect of postponing said improvement until the indefinite future. Councilman Dealy moving that the remonstrance be granted.

The report of the committee to whom was referred the matter of improving Jefferson, Cedar, Cushing's Court and Farrell streets, recommending its amendment, was accepted.

The committee on health and police finding correct the report of the police judge for June, was adopted. The same thing was done in the cases of the street superintendent and city sexton.

The next thing was the consideration of ORDINANCES.

An ordinance refunding to the estate of M. J. Kinney $65 surplus assessment, was read first and second times and passed under suspension of the rules.

An ordinance providing for the time and manner of improving Squemoqua street from the west side of Cass street to the west side of Washington street, was read first and second times and passed under suspension of the rules.

An ordinance providing for the time and manner of improving Main street was passed under suspension of the rules.

An ordinance making an appropriation of the city claim of city treasurer, was passed under suspension of the rules.

An ordinance granting a license to Mrs. O'Brien, was passed under suspension of the rules.

An ordinance to provide for the prevention of fire was not carried, it being considered unjust by the committee to whom it was referred.

An ordinance repealing an ordinance requiring restaurants, barrooms etc., to close between midnight and five A. M., was read third time and lost; councilman Cooper, Cleveland and Stone voted for its passage; councilmen Dealy and Trenchard voted against its passage.

An ordinance providing for the time and manner of improving Cedar street was read third time and passed.

An ordinance providing for the time and manner of improving Cushing's Court street, was read third time, and referred back to committee on motion of Councilman Dealy.

An ordinance declaring the time and manner of improving Cedar street was read third time and passed.

An ordinance declaring time and manner of improving Cedar street was read third time and passed.

Councilman Trenchard then moved that the rest of the batch be referred, which was carried.

Councilman Trenchard then called for the ordinance in relation to raising the salary of the police judge. The ordinance in question was then read the second and third times and passed.

The ordinance in question places the salary of the police judge at $75 per month.

The following claims were then ordered paid by warrant on the treasury: Germania & Co., $17.50; $10.00; Astoria Gas Light & Heat Co., $4.75; $4.75; C. E. Jackson, $10.75; Astor House, $19; sundry persons, $6; Independent, $3.50; J. G. Hustler, $132.10. Astoria Iron Works $13.88.

A resolution introduced by Councilman Cleveland in regard to removing all obstructions and offensive material on the beach, was debated, and Councilman Trenchard suggested that any one found dumping such offensive material in the city limits be prosecuted. Mayor Hume said that the beach was in a fearful state.

There was a force of men employed and that the dead salmon drifted in very fast. Councilman Cleveland thought that there was not enough, and that it was good economy to put on enough to make a good job of it. Councilman Dealy seconded Councilman Cleveland's resolution. The resolution was unanimously passed.

A communication was read from C. F. McCormac resigning the position of city attorney. The resignation was accepted.

Councilman Dealy nominated F. D. Winston to fill the vacancy. The nomination was not confirmed. Councilman Stone nominated Geo. Nolan, who was unanimously confirmed.

Mayor Hume instructed the Chief of Police to notify all cameramen within the city limits that there must be no more salmon thrown on the beach. On motion of Councilman Stone the council adjourned.

The shattered booms have disappeared, and beaten are the blaring boomers; The buoyant hopes they once appeared Have been replaced by reckless rumors.

For now the heelers are perplexed; They civil each campaign carol. And murmur in a manner vexed, "Will Cleveland capture Tilden's barrel?"

COMMERCIAL LAWS; RECENT DECISIONS.

PARTNERSHIP LABEL.-One of a firm of dealers in furniture and draperies put upon a piece of furniture placed on the pavement, "Taken back from A. B. who could not pay for it; to be sold at a bargain." In a suit for libel upon this act, two questions were decided against the defendants, the firm: 1. That the court could determine whether or not the placard was a libel. 2. That every member of the firm is liable, though one only put up the libellous matter, and without the knowledge, direction or consent of the others. In this case, Woodlin vs. Knickerbocker, the supreme court of Minnesota, on appeal, reversed the court below.

The Chief Justice, Gilfillan, in the opinion said: 1. What meaning, whether injurious, or not injurious to the plaintiff, these words would convey to ordinary men who read them without a knowledge of the transaction to which they referred, was for the jury to determine, in view of the circumstances, under which they are exposed to the public perusal, and whether they are libellous or not, ought to have been left to the jury to say. 2. A person cannot be held liable for a libel published by another unless he has authorized him to make the publication.

There is nothing in the nature of the business of this firm-that of dealing in furniture and draperies-from which authority to one partner, or to a servant, to gratuitously publish a libel can be applied. The case is different from that of a partnership whose business is publishing or selling either books or newspapers, where each partner is supposed to have authority to publish or sell, and to determine what shall be published or sold, and also from that of the necessary correspondence of the firm, where each partner is presumed to be authorized to conduct it and to determine on his substance and terms.

SALE-PLACE OF DELIVERY.-Hardware merchants at Minneapolis agreed to sell and deliver to a resident in another town in the state a quantity of goods. The merchandise was not on hand, but had to be bought in St. Louis. The evidence as to the place of delivery was conflicting; that of the vendors, that the goods were to be put on the cars at Minneapolis, and that of the purchaser, that it was to be delivered to him at his town. In the trial of the action brought by the merchant to recover the price of the goods, the court charged the jury: "The burden of proof was upon the defendant to show that the goods were to be delivered to him at the place of his residence."

The defendant carried the judgment, which was rendered against him in the case, to the supreme court, where an affirmance was had. Judge Mitchell, in the opinion, said: "There was no error in the charge. If no place be designated by the contract, the general rule is that the articles sold are to be delivered where they are at the time of sale. This is a rule of construction predicated upon the presumed understanding of the parties when making the contract. This rule is not changed by the fact that the vendor does not have the goods at the place of sale at the time the bargain is made, but must procure for delivery. Potentially and prospectively the goods were as if then placed in the store of the vendor."

By vs. Sleeper, supreme court of Minnesota.

PARTNERSHIP AND LIFE INSURANCE.-L. and D. were partners. D. failed to furnish his portion of the capital, and to adjust the matter agreed to take out a policy of insurance for the benefit of L. The policy was issued and delivered to D., who retained it until the dissolution of the partnership, when he sold it to L. "to show that he intended to do what was right." D. paid the first two premiums and L. the rest. The application was signed by L. and D., and the policy, in consideration of a sum paid by L., insured the life of D., and promised to pay the "said insured," etc. It was declared to be accepted by the "assured" upon the condition that the persons "whose life is hereby insured," were L. and D. There is no distinction necessarily involved by the terms "insured" and "assured." The parties to whom they refer must generally depend on the collection of facts. Here the term "assured" referred to the party for whose benefit the policy was procured. The insurable interest of L. was sufficient to support the policy. The transaction having been made in good faith, statements of D. as to the amount of his interest in the life of L., though they might appear as excessive, will not be a breach of warranty, as in this case, no definite value could be assigned to such partnership interest. -Conn. Mutual Life Insurance Co. vs. Luchs, U. S. Supreme Court.

ASSIGNMENT FOR BENEFIT OF CREDITORS.-POWER RETAINED IN ASSIGNOR.-B. conveyed his stock of goods, fixtures, etc., to A. to secure his creditors, but in the deed directed that a certain bond be given him for the property assigned, but not payable for three years, should first be paid, and there was provision as to the disposition of the store, fixtures and goods. In fact the assignor retained in possession of the store, and sold and supplied the stock. A creditor filed a bill to set the assignment aside on the ground that a full and complete delivery of the assigned estate had not been made. In this case McCormick against Atkinson, the plaintiff succeeded, and the defendant took the decree to the Supreme Court of Virginia.

where it was affirmed. Lewis, the presiding judge in delivering the opinion, said: The deed for creditors is void, because the assignor retained substantial control of the property assigned for a deed of conveyance professing to secure creditors, in which the grantor expressly or implicitly retains a power inconsistent with the assignment, and the defeat of the avowed object of the deed, is void against purchasers or creditors.

EXAMINATION TITLE-LIABILITY OF ATTORNEY.-A. applied to a money lender for a loan of $5,000 and offered as his note therefor, secured by a mortgage on certain real estate property; B. the attorney of the money lender, examined the title to the real property, and furnished the latter a certificate to the effect that A's title was good and the property unincumbered, and thereupon the loan was made on the terms proposed; subsequently, and before the maturity of the note, it was assigned to the plaintiff, who foreclosed the mortgage and sold the property, when it was found that the property was incumbered by a prior mortgage, so that the plaintiff did not realize the amount of his debt and brought suit against A. and B. to recover. In deciding this case, Dundee Mortgage and Trust Investment Company vs. Hughes, the United States Circuit Court, District of Oregon, held there was no privity of contract between A. and plaintiff, and that he was not liable to the latter for the loss.

THE COMING STATE FAIR.
A copy of the annual catalogue of the Oregon State Agricultural Society has been received. As has been stated in this paper before the state fair will be held from the 15th to the 20th of September, inclusive, next. We observe several changes have been made by the society for the fair of this year which cannot but be appreciated by the public and add to the interest of the fair. Premiums have been proportionately equalized and several new ones added. Notably the rooster and graded draft horses have been reinstated to a place in the premium list: several new premiums have been made in the ladies' departments, and a committee of zealous ladies has been appointed to co-operate with the society in the interest of making this department more extended and attractive. Some special premiums are offered for county exhibits of grains and grasses which we think a good feature if the proper interest is manifested by the several counties. The society has determined not to grant licenses for the running of any gambling devices or for the sale of any spirituous liquors on the grounds, and has resolved to prosecute any persons found so engaged. Having been able to pay off its indebtedness at the rate of $3,000 per annum for the past three years the society is determined to go forward to make the fair of 1884 the best ever held in the state, as it is promised to spare no effort to that end. The transportation companies have assured the usual reduced rates.

In this connection it will be proper to suggest that the state fair is an institution that all our farmers and dairymen and their families should take an active interest in, and it is not too soon for such as purpose attending to lay out their plans for exhibiting something on that occasion. The mere desire to take a premium, however, should not be the sole motive for preparing an exhibit. The next fair will occur in the new year for Oregon, when there will be large numbers of strangers within our borders, many of whom will be seeking homes or investments, and few of these will fail to attend our state fair. This has always been the case to a limited extent, but this year the number of sojourners who will attend will be multiplied by thousands. The reports these people take or send back to their homes is a very important matter to Oregon, and if a fair interest is manifested by her own people and only half exhibited that may be, the impression on these strangers cannot but be pleasing, and will redound greatly to Oregon's future prosperity.
