THE PENALTY OF RUNNING FOR OFFICE.

Charges Which the Governor Desires.

BUFFALO, July 22. The Evening Telegraph publishes a three-column story about Governor Cleveland's private life. The paper prints a long communication, accusing him of various immoralities, and says the ministers of this city and newspaper men from elsewhere have been investigating the matter. The Telegraph says the story is that Maria Halper was wronged by Cleveland. The woman lost a responsible position she had long held with Flint & Kent of this city. The result of her relations with the noted politician is a son, now living, who bears the Governor's name, if he does not bear his name. The woman implored Cleveland to redeem his pledge to marry her and properly care for the child and its mother. He put her off till her heart grew sick. Her former female friends, with two exceptions, deserted her. She was a woman of culture, proud spirit, and hitherto unblemished life. She insisted that Cleveland should marry her, but he refused, and she took to drink; she threatened the life of Cleveland and the boy, and it is charged that he procured the services of Robert Watts and another detective to work up a case against her.

The Telegraph continues as follows: "Naturally enough, Cleveland's desperation increased. Finally one night in the fall of 1877, one of these detectives and a physician now living in this city surreptitiously entered the rooms at 11 Genesee street, where Maria Halper still lived with her boy, who was at the time two and a half years old. They forcibly seized the mother, and, despite her cries and stubborn resistance, tore her from her baby, and rushed her down stairs, violently dragged her into a hack they had in waiting, and within an hour landed her in the Providence Lunatic Asylum, on Main street, near Humboldt Park way. The shrieks of the woman and heart-rending cries of her baby aroused some of the neighbors, but the work of abduction was speedily done. There was no pretense of a legal warrant for the seizure and the poor woman was landed in an asylum without legal process. A detective who assisted in the work told an acquaintance soon after that he got less than $50 for the job and said the woman nerved so stoutly that it took all his nerve and strength to overpower her.

"Dr. William Ring, an honored citizen of Buffalo, was then the attending physician at the Providence asylum. When visited by a Telegraph reporter he said he remembered Maria Halper. He said she was brought to the asylum without warrant or form of law. When he examined her he found she was not insane. She was drinking. The managers of the asylum had no right to detain her and she left in a few days; that is, as soon as she chose. After her terrible experience the wretched mother's first inquiry after leaving the asylum was for her baby. He had been spirited away, but his mother's love and zeal was not so easily cheated and she soon discovered his location and set on foot legal proceedings to recover him. An exposure of the infamous conspiracy was feared and to avoid it the child was surrendered. Lawyer Whitney, her attorney, corroborates her story and says the agreement was made in Cleveland's handwriting, whereby Maria Halper was to receive $5,000 and surrender her son, Oscar Folsom Cleveland.

The paper gives many details of the occurrence and the publication has created a sensation.

How a Cholera Patient Feels.

The patient feels well up to within a few hours of the attack, or it may be, goes to bed and sleeps soundly through the night, and immediately on rising in the morning is seized with violent purging and vomiting. If judiciously treated many patients recover from this, the first stage of cholera; but if neglected, the tendency of this disease is to grow rapidly worse. The patient complains of intense thirst and a burning heat at the pit of the stomach; he suffers at once from a most excruciating pain in the muscles of the extremities; he is terribly restless; and his urgent cry is for water to quench his thirst, and that someone might rub his limbs, and thus relieve the muscular spasm. The pulse is rapid and very weak, the respirations are hurried, and the patient's voice becomes husky. His countenance is pinched, and the integument of his body feels inelastic and doughy, while the skin of his hands and feet becomes wrinkled and purplish in color. The duration of this, the second stage of cholera, is very uncertain—it may last for two or three hours only, or may continue for twelve or fifteen hours; but so long as the pulse can be felt at the wrist there are still good hopes of the sick person's recovery. The weaker the pulse becomes, the nearer the patient is to the third, or collapse, stage of cholera, from which probably not more than thirty-five per cent recover. In the third stage of the disease the vomiting and purging continue, although in a mitigated form; and the skin is covered with a clammy perspiration, especially if the cramps are still severe. The patient remains terribly restless, longing only for sleep, and that he may be supplied with water. His intellect is clear; but he seldom expresses any anxiety regarding worldly affairs, although fully conscious of the dangerous condition he is in. Sleep and a plentiful supply of drinking-water are the sole desires of a person passing through a collapse stage of cholera. This condition seldom lasts more than twenty-four hours, and reaction either commences within that period or the patient dies in collapse, or passes on into the tepid stage, which in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred ends speedily in death.

GENERAL NEWS.

CONTRACT LABOR UPHHELD.

New York, July 24.—Notwithstanding the recent authoritative statements regarding the increase of undesirable foreign contract laborers in Pennsylvania, both the Times and Herald this morning seem in favor of the system. The Times says: "The importation of men able and willing to work under contract, to work out their passage money, although it horrifies Blaine and Logan and the California hoodlums, is not a grave public danger." The Herald says: "The condition of the mining regions of Pennsylvania and Ohio will, doubtless, serve Republican stump speakers as examples of what follows where labor is permitted to be imported under contract. It is true labor which costs $1.25 per day has been supplanted by labor that is paid only 60 cents per day, and even less; it is true that this labor is supplied chiefly by Hungarians; but only a small number have been brought under contract. They are good laborers, but cheap, and because they are cheap are persecuted." The Herald admits that they don't intend to stay in the country, and send nearly all they earn out of it, but asks it meant that the Republican party is willing to shut out voluntary immigration? The Evening Post joins its anti-Blaine contemporaries, the Times and Herald, in declaring legislation against contract labor impracticable, if not impolitic. After admitting that all the parties this year are thoroughly united against the system, the Post says: "Contract labor is simply another word for labor, and the United States will deliberately undertake to prohibit the immigration of laboring men, we shall believe when we see it." It says ironically: "Better adopt the anti-Chinese plan. We forbid Chinese to come here, why not Poles, Hungarians and Italians and any nation whose laborers are willing to work for too little pay?"

SULKOVSKY'S LOST MILLIONS.

New York, July 24.—The Sun has the following sensation: In 1830 the Russian General Sulkovsky came to America and soon became a millionaire. In 1837 the general had deposited at a bank in Boston money, stocks and shares amounting to $250,000. Two years later he died, leaving a will. It is not clear why his heirs did not claim the money bequeathed to them immediately after testator's death. In 1878 some of the relatives of the deceased general tried to find and get possession of his fortune, but they did not succeed. In 1856 many Poles, who claimed to be near or remote relatives of the general, tried their utmost to find the will. They claimed to have learned that the general ordered in his will that his money, with all interest, should be undisturbed for fifty years from the date of will, and that those millions with interest for half a century were then to be distributed (in 1888) to his heirs. The death record and the record of the probate court, both at Boston and in this city have been repeatedly searched but no traces of Sulkovsky and of his millions has been found anywhere, and the czar's government has been advised accordingly. But the hosts of claimants are not satisfied. The nearer 1888 comes the more excited are Sulkovsky's heirs. There are about a dozen lawyers in the employ of the heirs. About two years ago the Russian consul of this city published in the Sun an advertisement asking the American public for any information of General Sulkovsky, but no definite information was obtained.

GLOOM IN MARSEILLES.

MARSEILLES, July 24.—The aspect here is becoming more sombre. Only one steamer arrives weekly from Algeria, and the line to Syria is stopped. South America packets have ceased to call here. The custom office and quays are deserted. There are many funerals during the night, burials being performed by the aid of lanterns. The mayor has interdicted all annual affairs, and forbids a procession August 15. Official inquiry into the death of twelve sisters of charity and almshouses of the nunnery Retraite showed that the last rites of the church were performed over the body of the first sister who became a victim of the disease, and neither the clothing nor the cell of the deceased had been disinfected.

The following from an exchange fully and clearly covers the subject: "You have an undoubted right to stop a newspaper when you feel distressed, upon the payment of all arrears. Do not hesitate to do so on account of 'tenderness' for the editor. Don't you suppose he would stop buying sugar of you, or meat, clothing or dry goods, etc., if he thought he was not getting his money's worth? And why should you not exercise the same privilege with him? And when you discontinue a paper do so manfully. Don't be so spiteful as to throw it back to the post-master with a contemptuous 'I don't want it any longer' and have 'refused' written on the margin, and have the paper returned to the editor. No gentleman ever stopped it in that way, no matter if his head is covered with gray hairs that should be honorable. If you do not longer wish to receive a newspaper, write a note to the editor like a man, saying so; and be sure that arrears are paid. This is the way to stop a newspaper."

Maud Major, aged 19, has started a paper in Dakota. Heaven help the woman in her town who dresses better than Miss Major.
