The Portland papers say that the only original Wizzard oil singers appear there every night this week. It is thought so who are the folks in the wagon?

The Washington Packing Company report that the Astorian's estimate of its pack was too high by 500 cases, and that their pack for the season was 18,000 cases.

A handsome tower clock has been placed in front of Carl Adler's store by that enterprising merchant. It cost $800 and is a marvel of ingenious mechanism.

The usual Monday array of drunks and opium fiends showed up yesterday at the police court, some in person and some represented by the coin they forfeited by their non-appearance.

A. P. Ankeny has found some white larch in some of his timber tracts in this county supposed to be the first species of white larch ever found on the banks of the lower Columbia.

A crematory is to be established in San Francisco. Unless the Glasgow road is built to enable funerals to go to Glasgow cemetery in other style than by rail, a crematory will become one of the economical necessities of life in Astoria.

Bob Ingersoll will sport for coin at Occidental hall on the 10th. When Hank Beecher was here, the house was full, and when the redoubtable Robert appears it will be fuller. Next season they will travel together and pool their winnings.

No One's new horse cart arrived on the steamer yesterday, and was a source of gratification to the boys who pay for it themselves and who are very much pleased with their new purchase. It cost $350 and is a strong and serviceable looking piece of work.

A short time ago the captain and the crew of the Shirrick came out in fine new uniforms, and now it appears that good, dear old Uncle Sam is going to uniform the light corps boys also. The material will be dark blue cloth, and the buttons will be of brightest brass.

Twenty-two Swedish fishermen who worked at the mouth of the Columbia during the past season, bought through tickets to Norway via the Northern Pacific last week. The fare is $91.50. All of them seemed to have saved a good "stake," and said they would return here next year - Oregonian, 3rd.

The City of Sydney which sailed from San Francisco for Australia on the 1st, carried 14,031 cases of salmon. The Mariposa sailed the same day with 408 cases and 102 barrels salmon for Honolulu, the Colony also sailed, and the Central America with 47 cases, and the W. R. Grace cleared for Liverpool with 3,041 cases aboard.

"There isn't a mosquito in the place" was the highest praise a young lady could think of in writing from here to her folks in Portland a few days ago. Astoria is singularly free from insects of all kinds, and it is said there is not a single species of mosquito, or other insect in Clatsop county, all across that other favored country far above the deep blue sea.

At the regular monthly meeting of Rescue No. 2's last night the sum of $500 was appropriated for the expenses of the company's team at the Albany tournament. Following is the team: E. L. Parker, Clark Loggins, F. W. Frazer, R. E. Frazer, Geo. Neely, L. W. Neely, W. E. Warren, J. W. Hare, F. S. Hare, H. Higgins, W. C. Logan, A. W. Dolson, L. L. Lewis, G. T. Goodell, B. S. Worsley, C. W. Fulton and B. S. Worsley were elected as delegates.

The friends of Fred W. Congdon were shocked last Sunday to hear of his death. He went to Portland from here some time ago, and he went from there to the Kikickat valley, dying near the Dalles last Friday of rheumatism of the heart. Fred was a '98er, and was known from Mazatlan to Alaska. For the last three years and a half he was a river pilot between here and Portland. He was about 32 years old, was a member of Hassalo Lodge No. 15, I. O. O. F., and was given burial at Portland yesterday.

A strange sight was witnessed off Cape Flattery last Friday. The water, as far as could be seen, was thick with plentiful show of herring, in the midst of which spouting and diving, was a school of large whales, quite forty in number, ranging from twenty to 100 feet long, tail, and coming up again with wide-open mouths, would capture immense quantities of the finny tribe, the blood of the herring pinched in the process distinctly tinged the waters of the ocean.

At the regular monthly meeting of Astoria Engine Co. No. One last evening it was decided to give a grand anniversary ball on the evening of the 30th inst., in commemoration of the 13th anniversary of the organization of the company. The sum of one hundred dollars was appropriated to pay the expenses of the team at the coming Albany tournament. C. J. Curtis and L. E. Solig were chosen as delegates to the tournament. THE CLOSE OF THE SALMON SEASON.

The man who said the longer he lived the more, etc., he found out, must have, at some period of his career, been engaged in the business of packing salmon on the Columbia river. The season just closed has in almost every instance increased the individual stock of useful information.

Probably at no time for the last eight years has the same state of affairs existed as at present. About half the pack is sold; a little over 300,000 cases remain unsold. The market either in this country or across the sea is not overstocked; buyers appear to exercise more than ordinary discrimination.

Different estimates made yesterday place the number of cases packed at from 80,000 to 120,000. Assuming that there were 100,000 cases packed would give us as the yield of the salmon, 2,000,000 fish, which netted to the fishermen, whether they caught them outside boats at 70 cents or in canneries at 50 cents, 40 cents apiece or $800,000 paid for the fish, two-thirds of which amount was distributed in this city. There were probably 1,400 boats on the river and how poorly the fishermen averaged may easily be figured. Of these 2,000,000 fish, 20 per cent may be credited to the traps and seines, leaving 1,600,000 fish to divide among 1,400 boats or an average of 1,143 to the boat. At forty cents apiece this would make the average pay of each crew for the season, $457. This divided between two men for four months' arduous work would give them about $50 a month each for their days and nights of toil. Of course some made more than this, but that would not show that others made less. The figures demonstrate one fact - that there are too many boats on the river. Were there fewer boats the fishermen would make better wages, the cannerymen would be under less expense.

The manner of business is not as productive of good to Astoria as another system might be which would be more with a view to aiding our municipal growth and our municipal prosperity. The same rules of business apply to all branches of general business. Any man that has to pay ten per cent interest on his capital, five per cent commission to his agent, three per cent insurance and sundry other little percentages which will readily suggest themselves to those who "have been there" can very clearly see that whatever profit is in the business does him or the town where he lives very little good. The shrewd old man who says that Astoria is the business principle of his life that "six per cent interest will in the long run beat any game." He made his millions by putting his precept into practice. The difference between six per cent, and twenty-five per cent, indicates the length of the run. What THE ASTORIAN aims at is the permanent good of this community, and just as long as the salmon packers of the Columbia river allow others to skim the cream, just so long they will find themselves in the same financial straits they are at present.

JUST A FEW PLAIN FIGURES.

The city assessment roll foots up $2,129,986; $172,025 is allowed for indebtedness, leaving a balance of $1,727,891, on which is levied an assessment of 12 mills for the expenses of running the city government. On the tax list are 661 names; a 12-mill tax on $1,727,891 aggregates $20,734, which would make each of the 661 whose names appear, pay about $31 apiece for their share of expenses in the Astoria city government of 1884.

On the 1st of January, 1883, there was over $12,000 in the city treasury; on the 1st of July, 1884, there was $3,247.75.

Some of the figures for 1883 are both interesting and instructive. The receipts for the year were $37,247.72. Of this amount $9,800 was received from liquor licenses, $2,194.71 was had from other licenses, $4,515 was received from the police court, $7,062.68 from street assessments, and the remainder from miscellaneous sources. Of the tax for that year, $10,351.58 (not quite half the tax for the present year) was collected. During the year there was $21,089 spent for street improvements.

The present expense of running the city government, exclusive of supplies, is about as follows: Salaries, $550; city officials, $465; fire department, $285; or a total of $1,300 per month; little bills that drop in from time to time will average between $200 and $400 a month more.

On the 1st of last month the city's finances showed the following amounts in the treasury: Cemetery fund, $881; Water street fund, $5; Main street fund, $225.45; General street fund, $616; G. and P. fund, $1,529.30.

Drowned At Upper Astoria.

Last Sunday morning Jas. A. Bell, Jr., with his brother Thomas brought their horses to the river beach near their home at upper Astoria. In some way one of the horses reared, throwing his rider into the water. His brother, Thomas, went to his assistance as did Mr. Thomas, but unfortunately, it was found impossible to save him. The body was recovered in a short time and will be buried at Clatsop county to-day. Deceased had he lived to next February would have been twenty-one years of age. The funeral services will take place at ten o'clock this morning at the Swedish church at upper Astoria. A steambot will be at Badollet & Co.'s cannery to carry the friends and acquaintances of the deceased to the cemetery. Friends of the family are invited to attend.

Although the new steam ferry boat Kalama was completed according to contract, says the Commercial, her trial trip was not altogether satisfactory. In her present condition her boilers cannot generate steam rapidly enough to propel her when loaded. The Northern Pacific people are therefore putting in an apparatus for heating the water to a higher temperature before it enters the boilers. Electric lights are also being put in. The boat is still lying at Smith Bros. & Watson's wharf. It will be ready in about a month, by the time the approaches at Kalama are finished. The cost of this boat will be over $400,000, more than the cost of the steamer Oregon, and nearly enough to purchase another Queen of the Pacific. It is reported certain contractors have cleared $100,000 in building her.

The following order was found on the grave digger's slate last Tuesday morning says the Spokane Falls Chronicle:
 "Wanted, nineteen ready made graves for Chinamen when work is commenced by them on the water works. Get them ready." - Neeble Committee.

The Seattle Hop Growers' association expects to employ between 400 and 500 Indians in the big yard at Snoqualmie Prairie during the hop picking season. Fearing a scarcity of pickers on this side they have written over to Yakima for a lot of Indians from the eastern side of the mountains.

The business men of Seattle have petitioned the P. C. S. S. Co. to employ Seattle stevedores at Seattle. It is alleged that the officers of the steamer Mexico, at least, are in the habit of taking stevedores on board at Victoria, taking them the round of the Sound ports and paying them off at the last named city.

There has been a heavy corps of traps and hilks, says a Douglas county exchange, ever since the railroad struck the valley, and the people should look out for them. We have many people being swindled by fellows who seem to make it a business to stop in a place long enough to owe everybody who will trade them.

J. N. Baker, of Hoquiam, has begun work on a small steamer. He will build the hull at his mill and run it down to the harbor where the machinery will be put in. She is to be built for the upper Chehalis river trade, and will be 70 feet in length and 19-foot breadth of beam, and will be built on the shovel-nose canoe model as near as possible.

A Lafayette correspondent of the Reporter says: Perhaps no man was more of a time in the history of Oregon when money was so scarce as now. But harvest is here now; threshing will soon commence, and then wheat ought to go into market as soon as possible to relieve the stringency and help those who have not only emptied their pockets but stretched their credit to its utmost extent.

A large real estate transfer was recorded in the auditor's office this week, says the Pacific Journal. It was M. M. Simon and wife transfer the property known as the Knapp Mill Co. to the Northwestern Lumbering Co., of San Francisco, for the consideration of $25,000. Whether this is simply a consolidation of the various mills of which Simpson is owner or not, it is not known, but is thought such is the case.

A resident of Lewiston informs the Walla Walla Union that the people of that place and surrounding country have applied to the governor of Idaho for enough arms and equipments for four companies of militia, which will be organized at once, and prepared for the return of Joseph and his band of outlaws or any possible outbreak by the whites on - by the Indians on the whites surrounding the Nez Perce reservation.

Four Nookla sound Indians were poisoned from eating raw clams at Port Discovery last week. Their tongues became frightfully swollen and protruded from their mouths, while the lower jaws dropped and their bodies were affected with violent tensions of the nerves. They narrowly escaped death. The remedy used by them was the bark of cedar, and the cedar leaves were strung and which was chewed and the juice swallowed. During the summer months clams are said to be very unhealthy as to their breeding season.

THE PROVINCE OF JOURNALISM.

The province of journalism is no doubt, primarily, to print the news of the day. People pay for newspapers and read them for information in regard to current events. While this is true as a general proposition, it does not follow that a newspaper should publish every scandalous occurrence which comes to its knowledge. Newspapers have become the daily educators of the family. They have become a part of the mental pabulum of the household. If they were only read in the office, the store or saloon, it would not make as much difference what they contain. But they are read by the young of both sexes. By being subscribed for and left in their reach by the parents, the newspaper is looked upon with a feeling of respect and reverence which otherwise it would not produce.

Under these circumstances, while the press should be perfectly untrammeled in reference to the record of all events of the day necessary for general information of the people, their columns should not contain records of mere personal scandal or lapses from virtue. They should not contain the disgusting details of certain cases in court. Familiarity with the record of certain kinds of vices has a tendency to blunt the nice sensibilities of the young. We know there is a morbid craving among certain classes of society for spicy details of scandal. But this appetite is morbid and should not be catered to by the press. The newspaper should never become a stage-engineer. Private filth should never be paraded before the public eye or thrust under the public nostrils. No record of private escapades should ever be made by the press unless there is some public good to be subserved.

We all detest and despise a private person who delights in peddling scandal. Why is it any more respectable in a newspaper than in a private individual? Although too much space is given by the press to the record of daily crime, and altogether too little to the record of generous actions and noble deeds of which the world is full. By all means let us keep the good side of human nature before the public, and as far as possible let us keep out of sight the mistakes and crimes of poor erring humanity.
