In the circuit court yesterday the case of the state of Oregon vs. Geo. Manuel was argued and submitted to the jury who found the defendant guilty as charged. Two indictments were found against P. Peretta, one for alleged malicious injury and the other charging him with larceny. An indictment was also found against T. Ward, who is charged with assault with intent to kill. The case of A. Receipt is acknowledged of the catalogue of the Oregon State Normal school, situated at Monmouth, Polk county. The faculty is composed of eleven teachers, with D. T. Stanley, A. M., as president. The school last year enrolled 215 pupils, and the prospects for the present season are much better. The course of study is very practical and is composed of those usually found in the various grades of other like institutions of learning. There are sixty-four free scholarships distributed over the state in proportion to the population of the various counties, which may be had by application to the various school superintendents. Each student who takes the regular course is entitled to a diploma from the state board of education, as this is practically a state eshool.

CUM GRANO SALIS.

New York, Aug. 12,-The Sun's Wash ngton letter has the following points: It has been an open secret among Blaine's close friends that he has never recovered from the shock that Guiteau's pistol caused him. He was arm-in-arm with Garfield when the assassin fired; he saw the president totter and fall, and he be lieved the next shot would be received by himself. The effect of that shot was to give him what is known in his own state as "the hypo." He is convinced he has organic disease, and although the best organic disease, and although the best physicians in the country have assured him he is wrong, he will not believe them. Last summer he pained his friends by asking them how he looked. Somebody told him the little pools left by the ebb tide was a specific for disease. He thinks it is, and he was often seen drinking from them and bathing his face and arms in them. During the past winter, when he was visited by prominent politicians, who wanted to talk with him about his nomination, he surprised and sadcians, who wanted to talk with him about his nomination, he surprised and sad-dened them by his indifference, and he told one man he would rather live in peace than to be elected president and die in office. For a few days before the convention met he seemed to be like his old self, and after he was nominated displayed to those nearest him some of the energy that was characteristic of him in the days of his prime, but that did not in the days of hi me, but that did not last long. After the Democratic convention the old conviction that he cannot be elected returned, and with it his depression of spirit. He is now said to be despondent, and those who are nearest him believe that unless his hypochondria

"You masty thing, you're mad because no man will look at you!" "Bold hussy! I'll tear your bangs all to pieces!" were some of the shouts that came from rosy lips, while the chairwoman, a stately matron of about forty, vainly rapped for order with her youngest child's rattle.
"I think," came a silvery voice that rose above the tumult, "that we can all agree upon this subject. You seem to forget, ladies, that Governor Cleveland is a bachelor." It was like oil on the troubled waters. Smiles wreathed the faces that but a moment before were clouded with angry frowns, and almost simultaneously the Irowns, and almost simultaneously the dispatants made peace by giving each other those peculiar pecks which are, when one woman salutes another, by courtesy called kisses, and the sunny-haired young lady sat down with the vinegary maiden.

His Success

Financially and socially are largely due to his excellent health. If his system were clogged and feverish, no doubt he would fail as so many others do. But why not enjoy good health when one can please the palate at the same time? Syrup of Figs is not only pleasant to the taste, it also cleanses the system thoroughly, yet painlessly; it is harmless in its nature, and strengthens the organs on which it acts so that regular habits may be formed, and the sufferer habits may be formed, and the sufferer permanently restored to health and happiness. BLAUSE AS A PROFESSOR

Ham and Turkey Enjoyed by the Noted Statesman Late at Night.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Globe Democrat writes that paper: It was in the fall of 1851, while I was engaged in running a line between Louisville and Newport, Ky., for a railroad to connect these cities that I had my office at Drennon Springs, Henry county, Ky., the seat of the Military Institute in which James G. Blaine was at that time Latin profes

And how he did enjoy it—several slices of ham and turkey, many biscuits, pie and several glasses of native Catawha to web it all down and good natived above and several glasses of native Catawba to wash it all down, and good natured chat to keep company until 11 o'clock, and the professor rose reluctantly to go, remarking with a smile: "I am glad I happened in, but was not that rather a large spread for only you two?"

I never knew if he suspected our four visitors hid in the room, while he was en-joying the feast, but always thought his eye caught sight under the wardrobe cur-tain of the two pair of feet, belonging to two trembling and hungry endets who must quietly have enjoyed not only the supper but a huge joke on the two boys, yet he nover let on, for it would have been his duty to have ordered them under arrest for a gross violation of discipline in having been out after "taps." One of the boys is now state transport. One of the boys is now state treasurer of Arkansas, and another I believe, is one of the supreme judges of Louisiana.
