THE ASTORIAN guarantees to its advertisers the largest circulation of any newspaper published on the Columbia river.

The Coos Bay and Walla Walla went to sea yesterday.

It is not likely that the city will accept the new hose cart.

Reserved seats for the Mascotte at the New York Novelty store.

The fall term of school in District No. 18, begins next Monday.

Leases, mortgages, deeds, blanks of all kinds at the THE ASTORIAN office.

The opening of the Kalama branch has been postponed to the 20th inst.

Blaine hats; Cleveland hats; Butler hats; St. John hats, at C. H. Cooper's.

Levy, the tailor, is at the Parker House, and will remain till Tuesday. See adv.

Judge Deady will give a decision in the Queen of the Pacific case next Tuesday.

Chaplain Scott will preach at the Baptist Church Sunday morning and evening.

The Shubrick sails this morning for the stormy seas that wash Cape Flattery's base.

Tuesday morning's San Francisco papers arrived in Astoria by overland mail last evening.

The cur catches it in this week's New Northwest, which gives the creature a stinging and well-merited lashing.

Attention is directed to the change of time in the arrivals and departures of the Gen. Miles in the I. S. N. Co.'s ad. on first page.

The Ladies' Coffee Club will meet at three o'clock this afternoon at Alert H. and L. rooms. A full attendance is requested.

The Portland grand jury has found a true bill against O. Becker, charged with burning John Stephan's saloon in that city, last May.

Hermann Wise will have an opening at his new store, corner Genevieve and Chenamus streets, to-day. He has a large stock of clothing and gents' furnishing goods.

The Stereopticon exhibition last evening, at Liberty hall was a pleasure and delight to all who attended. The views are remarkably fine and the entertainment is well worth a visit.

A forest fire near the goverement buildings at Ft. Canby last week was uncomfortably near, and the commanding officer is having fire ladders built for use in case of an unwelcome emergency.

A fire alarm was turned in about nine o'clock last evening which brought the department out in a hurry. No fire or anything that looked like a fire could be seen, and the general inquiry was, "Where is it?" The new hose cart, however, behaved admirably.

A San Francisco special of the 4th says: "An attempt made to reduce salaries on the steamer Columbia, on her arrival here, was met with a successful resistance. When the order reducing salaries was issued all the men whom it affected left the vessel. As a suitable crew was difficult to obtain at the reduced rate of wages offered by the company, the company preferred to retain the old hands at old rates."

The following is found in the new postal law, and is interesting to every one: When a letter has only one stamp and two are required it will not be forwarded, but detained at the mailing office and the postmaster will send a postal card to the one addressed for stamps sufficient to prepay the tardy letter. If the writers name be known to them he is first notified, and if neither party responds, the missive is sent to the dead letter office.

The county court met at nine o'clock yesterday morning pursuant to adjournment. Bids were opened for burial of county poor: J. C. Ross bid $17.50 and B. B. Franklin $16.50. The contract was let to B. B. Franklin for one year. It was ordered that the county purchase five acres from the city in the Clatsop cemetery, at $40 an acre, to be paid for as soon as surveyed. It was ordered that the road to the Necanicum be changed, according to report of viewers. Adjourned.

The biggest wild cat seen in these parts for many a day was brought into THE ASTORIAN office last night by John Kinney. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Kinney was getting out some spruce shakes on the other side of the Main street cut, when he caught sight of the huge cat. He started to Frenk Duval's to get a gun, and the cat followed him. He stopped. So did the cat. He started again; the cat ditto. Finally he managed to attract the attention of one of the neighbors, and with a proffered gun killed the ferocious beast. He measured nearly four feet in length and was fat, having dined daily on Mr. Duval's chickens.

It can never be too strongly impressed upon public attention that mere "cram" is not instruction, and that, after all, it is what a child does for and by himself, under a competent teacher, that really forms his education. The development of one intellectual faculty—that, namely, of memory—is by no means the highest part of school training. A whole string of names, for example, may be repeated in geography, and yet the scholar know nothing of the people, the products of the country, the local surroundings, or the commercial trade routes,— the last quite a facinating study to boys, if properly taught. No end of dates in history, again, may be given from recollection, and yet the child know next to nothing about the men and the events to which they refer. There is scarcely a drearier work in this world than for a boy or girl to be compelled to get up columns or pages of fine-spun "logical analyses" under the name of grammar, all the while practical work in the form of sentence writing or composition being relegated to a subordinate place. The true way to learn botany is from flowers, not from books; and the right way to teach reading is to deal with ideas rather than with words.

Sudden Death.

E. M. Jellison, lately employed in Geo. Hills bowling alley, was seen to reel and fall about midnight, Thursday night. Medical attendance was summoned and his stomach pumped out. He grew weaker and died at 4 P. M., yesterday morning. Coroner Ross impaneled a jury, which brought in the following verdict: "We, the jury, do find that E. M. Jellison came to his death by habitual drunkenness, exposure and lack of proper nourishment; that the deceased was about fifty years of age, and a citizen of the United States." His brother, who lives at Amity, Yamhill county, was yesterday telegraphed to in regard to what disposition to make of the body.

Rooms to Let.

STATE AND TERRITORIAL NEWS.

The Baker City Daily Sage Brush is dead.

One thousand pupils attend the Seattle schools.

The Olympian has lost $1,000,000 running on the Sound.

Harvesting is nearly finished in the Willamette Valley.

Ingersoll is traveling through southern Oregon lecturing as he goes.

Stephen J. Field, Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, is visiting Oregon.

It is reported that blackleg has made its appearance among the cattle in the vicinity of Rock Creek, Eastern Oregon.

Halibut is being caught at the reef below Port Orford, some measuring five feet in length and weighing one hundred pounds.

Whitman College, at Walla Walla, has eighty-five scholars to commence the term with, which is a larger number than ever before.

The Boaz farm, at Applegate, has been sold to Chinamen for $4,000. They will use it as mining ground, as it is said to be very rich in places.

The assessment roll of Clackamas county shows a footing of $2,472,887, or an increase of nearly a half million dollars over the previous year.

Deeded lands are held at from $8 to $15 per acre, near Alkali, while good claims, timber culture, pre-emption and homestead claims are from $50 to $500.

Ed. Reed, while at work with a threshing machine, near Wilbur, Douglas county, last week, was drawn into the cylinder and both legs cut off, from the effects of which he died.

The new furniture in the Senate Chamber of the State House is in position, carpet laid and ready for the next session. All the furniture is of Oregon growth and make. Each Senator will have a desk to himself, mounted upon castors.

It is reported on good authority that the so-called Indian Council at the Puyallup reservation recently imprisoned a white man in their jail, who happened to ask a night's lodging at one of the Indian cabins, on suspicion of criminality, and subsequently took him out and gave him forty lashes.

Superintendent Otis Sprague has issued a circular announcing that a reduction is made in wages of conductors, brakemen and train baggage masters on the Pacific division of the Northern Pacific. Passenger conductors are to receive the same as heretofore—$100 per month; freight conductors are reduced from $90 to $85 per month; passenger and freight brakemen from $90 to $55 per month, and baggage masters to $65. The reduction went into effect on the 1st inst.

Elijah Millican, of Lafayette, died on Saturday, August 30th, aged eighty-two years. Mr. Milican was one of the oldest of the old pioneers, having come to this coast in 1843, at which time he brought the first wagon that ever crossed the plains to Oregon. In 1844 he settled on what is known as the "Melican place," just west of Lafayette, and has owned it ever since. He leaves a large number of descendants, running down to great grand children. His remains were buried in the Masonic cemetery at Lafayette.

Alvey Billings, a farmer residing near Amity, Yamhill county, was instantly killed on Wednesday afternoon. He had started for the warehouse with a load of wheat, when his team, from some unknown cause, ran away, throwing him off, and his skull was crushed by one of the wheels. His wife saw the team running without a driver, and went to where her husband lay, and found a sack of wheat lying on his head, which she removed, and saw that he was dead. She was obliged to go a half mile for assistance. Mr. Billings was twenty-three years of age, and had been married about a year.

Nothing has been heard from or seen of W. D. Pittenger, the defaulting ex-county treasurer of Washington county, who absconded from Hillsboro last week. For some reason the authorities seem to be making little effort to capture the defaulter. The total defalcation to the county and state reached $22,000. His total liabilities are roughly estimated at $60,000; nominal assets, $40,000; actual assets, $25,000. Some people advance the theory that he is hiding in the immediate vicinity. Others that he has destroyed himself. Several of Pittinger's friends have been financially ruined by his defalcation. The public feeling is very bitter against him.

The construction department of the Northern Pacific, which has been working a force of men with a train of cars ballasting the Kalama branch for some time past, announces that the task is nearly completed, and that the road will be turned over to the operating department on the 10th inst. The superintendent of construction has also received order to resume the filling of Couch lake as toon as possible, and to dump into that vast hole from sixty to eighty car-loads of dirt every day for the next three weeks. After that the construction force will be put to work on the Cascade branch. Contractor Blagen also began work yesterday on the new Northern Pacific passenger depot on the corner of Front and G streets. It will be a temporary structure 30x60 feet, and cost only about $2,000 or $3,000. It will be used until such time as the proposed great union depot is built. Mr. Blagan also has contracts to build a station house and depot at Columbia City, and several tanks and other improvements along the line of the Kalama branch.—Oregonian, 5.

Temple Lodge F. and A. M.

The officers and members of Temple Lodge. No. 7, F. and A. M., are hereby notified to attend a special meeting this (Saturday) evening, September 6th, at 7:30 o'clock, M. M. degree. All Master Masons in good standing are cordially invited to attend.

By order of the F. M.
G. W. LOUNSBERRY, Secretary.

Information is wanted of William Thompson, a Scotchman, who arrived in this city on the 30th of April. He came here to draw some money, and stopped at the Norton House during his stay. He drew the money ($214), and has not been heard of since. Thompson has a cousin in Portage, Wisconsin, and a sister in Rhode Island. He is about twenty-five years of age, five feet nine inches in height, and light complexion. Any one knowing anything of his whereabouts will please send the information to the police station.—Portland News.

SALMON FISHING AT NESTUCCA.

The bay is fairly alive with wealth just now. "There's millions in it." Salmon are running lively. Five crews of fishermen are plying their nets and seines nightly among the finny host, and every day or so witnesses the departure of a wagon load en route to the Willamette valley. These fish are pronounced to be the veritable Chinook salmon, and whether they are or not they certainly cannot be any derogation to that name. Great, fat fellows, weighing from 25 to 50 pounds, are brought to shore daily, and still there seems to be no diminution of their numbers. In this interest I met on the Big Nestuc, a day or two since, a Mr. Jones, who informed me that in company with three others, he had put up a drying establishment at Sheridan, employing a newly-discovered process which he represented as greatly superior and from which he anticipated abundant success. I judge this will create a demand for all the surplus salmon the fishermen here can supply, should the Sheridan company realize in their enterprise all they now have reason to hope for. Mr. Upton, of this place, is also prepared to cure several tons of salmon a year, which he does by salting in barrels at times, and when more convenient, by smoking in a large smoke house, with a capacity of curing 2,000 fish at a time. Add to these the number of salmon consumed by others in this section, and those shipped to Portland and valley markets, and we begin to discover that the salmon interests of Nestucca is one of no mean proportions, unpretentious though at present it may appear. This situation will hardly remain long so, however. Already the big fishermen of the upper coast are casting their eyes this way. Cleveland purchased a cannery site on this bay some time ago, and Leinenweber followed suit. Both are Columbia river men, and undoubtedly will carry out their projects at no distant day.—Nestucca Corr. Yamhill Reporter.

Eastern Wages Not Satisfactory.

The directors of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, by the action taken in the meeting recently held in New York, have not gained the particular friendship of the Pacific Coast. The first move made here was to notify all of the company's employes in this city and those aboard the steamers that a reduction of from 10 to nearly 50 per cent would be made. This had no sooner been given than there were threats of a strike. Those on board the steamer California made fuss enough to induce the incorporation to continue the former rates. The reduction applies also to the steamer Columbia, and it is rumored that all hands will quit to-day if the rule is carried out. The Easterners think wages should be the same on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, and as an instance of the rate of reduction may be mentioned the fact of Captain Bolles of the Columbia having the privilege of accepting $175 a month in lieu of the $250 he formerly received. The men on the Oceanic dock yesterday notified the company that the old rates had to be maintained or they would leave, and it is rumored that all but one of the employes (cashier Smith) have quit. How the matter will terminate is as yet a matter of conjecture, but the radical step taken by the Eastern board of directors certainly causes great dissatisfaction on this coast. The hardship is felt more keenly by the waiters, who for their labor will now receive but $22.50.—S. F. Call, 3.

In Remembrance of Herman Hansel,

From his dear father, mother, and brothers and sisters: a thousand thanks to Captain Olsen and all his friends in general who expressed such sorrow and sympathy at his funeral on the first of September.

DETERMINED TO KEEP HIM IN THE FAMILY.

"Must I really go, sweetheart?"

"Yes," replied Lillian McGuire, placing her shapely white hand in his, and looking into his face with a tender earnestness that showed the true womanliness of her nature; "it is better, far better for both of us, that we should part forever," but as she spoke the hot tears of pain welled up into those beautiful brown eyes—those eyes that had witched with their bright glances and dreamy tenderness so many men—and with a little sob of pain Lillian's head was bowed upon George W. Simpson's shoulders in an ecstacy of grief.

"Couldn't you put a ten-year limit on your bill, darling?" asked the young man, bending gently over the little head that was pillowed so trustingly just under his left ear; "I certainly ought to have as good a chance as a Chinamen."

A low moan of pain and a convulsive shake of the little head was the only response.

But George was not to be denied so easily.

"Can I not have one hope?" he said. "One little nickel-plated, ten-cent hope?"

Lillian lifted her head and looked at him steadily.

"Perhaps," she said, in cold, Baffin's Bay tones, "You would drop if a house fell on you, but I begin to doubt it. Know, then, since you will have it, that under no circumstances can I ever accept your proffered love, for I am a packer's daughter, and packers' daughters come high"—this with a haughty expression that lower-case type cannot convey.

George W. Simpson saw at once that this proud beauty had been making a plaything of his love. The revelation was a terrible one, but he bore it bravely.

"Very well," he said, in husky, haven't-had-a-drink-in-two-hours tones. "You have stamped with the iron heel of scorn upon the tender violet of my budding love, but some day, when your children—little winsome brats with sunny smiles and an assortment of colic that will keep you up three nights every week—are climbing upon your knee until you are in danger of becoming knee-sprung, you will, perhaps, remember, with a tinge of sadness in the recollection, of how you toyed with the love of a loyal, trusting, Cook-County heart, and threw forever over a young and happy life the black pall of a disappointed hope and crushed ambition. I have seen the roses of my love wither and waste away until they lie shriveled and blighted by the dusty roadside of life, and you can bet that I feel pretty tough about it. I have seen my beautiful and stately ship of Hope, with its tall, shapely masts and towering wings of snowy canvas, that sailed away so buoyantly and bravely over the shimmering sea not many months ago come back to me a shapeless wreck—the tapering spars that were so white and clean now jagged and broken, and to them clinging the dark seaweeds, while of the sails that rivaled the clouds in fleecy purity there remain only blackened shreds that flap dismally in the moaning wind, whose voice seems to sound the requiem and dirge of my dead and buried love. I have got the boss wreck and don't you forget it."

Lillian looked at him steadily for a moment.

"Do you mean those words you have spoken, George?" she asked.

"You can bet your life I do," he answered in low, passionate tones.

"And, do you really love me so dearly?"

"Well I should gasp," was the reply, a pearly tear glistening in George's off eye.

"Then," said Lillian, twining her arms about his neck, "I will roost on your knee next Tuesday evening, as usual. Pa would never forgive me if I let a man who can talk like that go out of the family."—Chicago Tribune.

Its Wonderful Efficacy.

No remedy ever discovered possesses the wonderful efficacy of Syrup of Figs. The certainty with which it expels all impurities from the system, at the same time giving tone to the Liver, Stomach, and Bowels, places it ahead of all other remedies, to say nothing of its being more easily taken. It is selling very rapidly. W. E. Dement & Co. are agents for Astoria.

That Baseball Drink.

A notice was posted on the inside of a saloon, yesterday, and the bartender stood in front of the place telling the boys some of his troubles.

"It's getting so there ain't much money in the business. What with the beats and the games we don't get pay for I'll bet we've lost in the last six months $500 on the baseball drink alone."

"What's the baseball drink?"

"Why, two fellers come in and one of them says he will take whiskey and the other says he don't feel like drinking, and won't have any. Then No. 1 pours out enough whiskey to drown himself in, drinks half of it, gasps, and says 'By thunder! that's the best liquor I ever drank. It's immense. Taste of it, Jim.' Then the other feller tosses off the rest of it, a good enough drink for anybody, and in that way they get two drinks for a bit. I've smashed a good many fellers for doing that but I took legal advice, and I've found that the baseball drink is according to law, and that we can't kick."

"Why do you call it a baseball drink?"

"Didn't you ever hear that before? Because the bums make a double play, don't you see, and the bar keeper is out."
