The Nasel and other streams are running high.

The A. B. Field arrived in from Tillamook yesterday.

There will be a regular meeting of the Blaine and Logan club at eight o'clock this evening.

The A. B. Field will leave the Main street wharf at six o'clock this evening with freight and passengers for Tillamook.

Fifty men were looking for the missing Mrs. Tenhunen yesterday, without finding the slightest indication of her whereabouts.

From date to the 23rd inst. the Fredwood will issue tickets for a round trip tickets from Astoria to Portland and return for $2.50.

The Alice took the Geo. F. Mansson up stream last Sunday. She has been chartered by Balfour, Guthrie & Co. to load wheat for U. K. at supposedly 45c.

The schooner Lottie, at Gray's dock, is being fitted up for the deep-sea fishing expedition, in which Messrs. Gray, Berry, Exon, Compton and others are interested.

From the Placidifier it is learned that N. Johnson and son, who were badly burned in the Roseburg fire recently, are rapidly recovering and will be able to start for home this week.

Fred Beerman was in the city yesterday and says that on his place near Seaside from which he cut three tons of hay to the acre, the aftermath is now almost knee deep in red clover.

The Tillamook Packing Co. closed operations Saturday after a brief session. They ran three weeks and put up about 4,000 cases.

As many as eighteen boats have been out on the sands at one time last week catching the succulent smelt, the festive porgy and the toothsome tom-cod.

A private letter has been received in this city from Capt. Rogers, who is in the S. Starbuck, from Liverpool, in which he says that he had a splendid run on his outward voyage, in one instance walking away from the South America, a noted flyer.

He thinks that all his business needs is a favorable opportunity to enroll her among the list of first sailors.

Judge Denay gave a decision in the Corcoran case last Saturday. It was a "decree of distribution." After the payment of clerk's and marshals' fees, the remainder, amounting to $793.70 is ordered divided. The libellant got $500, the claimants $293.70, the virtual result being that every one who had anything to do with the wreck is out of pocket.

The new transfer boat Tacoma will be ready by the 1st of October, which is the date now fixed upon for opening the Portland-Kalama branch. She cost $450,000; $300,000 to build her and $150,000 to set her up. It is thought that Smith Bros. & Watson, of Portland, who "set her up," made $50,000 on the job and that the eastern firm that built her cleared $175,000 on their contract.

Adolphus C. Frick, a fisherman living near Coquille City, engaged in a quarrel a few days ago and received a stab in the abdomen which was pronounced necessary fatal. The wound was inflicted by a fisherman engaged in the coronal, and it is not positively known who did the stabbing. Frick accuses Frank Sheridan of stabbing him and Sheridan says George Horton is the guilty party. Sheridan was subsequently arrested by Constable Cartwright and taken to the county jail at Empire, where he is now held awaiting the result of Frick's injuries and the action of the grand jury. The wounded man is 27 years old, a native of Jackson county, and resided at Sun's valley, on Rogue river, near Coquille City.

The Astoria rod and gun club was organized last evening. The object of the organization is primarily for the preservation of game and to see that the game law is properly observed. Complaint is frequent that game of all kinds from pheasants to deer, are killed out of season, and the society intends to take such action as will prevent the extermination of fur and feather in Clatsop county. The object of the club was stated to be the enforcement of the game laws. The name adopted is "The Astoria Protective Rod and Gun Club." It was organized by the selection of W. Suprenant as president; C. H. Cooper, vice-president; T. S. Jewett, secretary and treasurer; F. W. Ferguson, corresponding secretary. Directors: J. W. Suprenant, C. H. Cooper and T. O. Trullinger. The board of directors were instructed to incorporate. On motion J. E. Ferguson, J. S. Jewett and Thos. Byrne were appointed a committee to draft constitution and by-laws. On motion the corresponding secretary was instructed to correspond with the secretary of existing rod and gun clubs of the state for information, and the meeting adjourned to Wednesday evening, September 17th.

WORKED THE CONFIDENCE GAME TWENTY DOLLARS' WORTH.

About ten days ago a man and his wife, whose names for the present are not given, went down to Portland from Walla Walla in search of work. They were not very particular so that the employment was honest and they could be together. They had been but a few days in Portland when the husband made the acquaintance of a man at the hotel where they were stopping who told him that he was the owner of a cannery at Tillamook. "And by the way," said he, "there's the very place for you. I'll give you $75 a month as watchman and general helper, and your wife will have no trouble in finding employment of some kind down there."

The matter was so arranged and the proprietor of a Tillamook cannery, who gave his name as C. P. Johnson, furnished directions as to how to get there. "You go to Astoria, and from there take the A. B. Field. I'll give you a pass from Astoria to Tillamook and a letter to my Tillamook partner. But I hired a man the other day and when he got to Astoria he sold his pass. You can't get that kind of a fellow are you?" The man who really wanted employment said that he would do right and meant all right. "I don't know," said "Johnson," "I guess you'd better deposit $20 with me as a guarantee. I don't want to give men passes from Astoria to have them sold." The poor fellow handed the swindler $20, and in return got a piece of paper marked: "Pass bearer and wife by A. B. Field from Astoria to Tillamook."

"C. P. Johnson & Co." He also gave him a letter to his "partner," telling him to put him to work immediately and to pay him the $20 that he had taken as a guarantee that he would go. The man and his wife paid their fare to Tillamook and got up at the Parker house. The next morning they went out to Badollet & Co. and presented the "pass" to Mr. Higgins, who, of course, knew nothing of "C. P. Johnson & Co.," and so told them. To add to the man's plight in which the contemptible swindler from Portland had placed them, the unfortunate couple said that after settling their bill at the Parker hotel and paying their fare down here, they had but $3 left.

THE UNIONTOWN ROAD.

A good deal of the road fund the past season has been spent in building a fine road along the base of the hill on the river bench from the Union Packing Co.'s premises westward toward Smith's point. The road is built now as far as the Seaside Packing Co.'s property, work being suspended. A gate at the turn in the road near the junction of the private road recently built with the county road, stops all public travel over that thoroughfare. Some time ago the Cutting Packing Co., the Washington Packing Co., and the Union Packing Co. jointly leased from J. C. Trullinger a strip of beach lying contiguous to their property, for five years, for $500. Over this they built about 1,700 feet of road, costing between $3,500 and $4,000. This road was built for the convenience of those three companies and is owned by them, but as it connects Concomly street with the county road running to Smith's point, it becomes a sort of link in the matter of communication. As it is at present, with the gate there, the county road, which is excellently built, is no good to anyone. It is, however, a question whether the strip of beach, suitably located for public use, even if satisfactory arrangements could be made with the parties claiming it. It is too narrow and has too many corners and turns in it to be a good public thoroughfare. The matter is an important one, for the city needs some outlet in that direction. An extension of Chenamus street on its present line would run it about on a line with the Cutting Packing Co.'s premises. An extension of Squemoqua street would cut it further to the west. The growing demands of the city renders necessary some solution of the question, for the matter cannot continue as at present.

ON OONALASKA'S SHORE.

Mr. Tallant, the Astoria manager for the Dallam Packing Co., received a telegram yesterday from San Francisco, saying that the company's vessel, the Corva, had just arrived from Cook's inlet with 21,000 cases salmon.

Nearly one thousand miles to the northward, opposite the island of Kodiak, in lat. 60° north, lon. 151° W., the Pacific ocean is a vast, empty, and on its shore is built the fishery and most isolated cannery in the world. Every season the vessel puts in and lands Chinamen, a few whites, material and stores, and through the brief season, the silent shores are the scene of busy life. There is no ceasing; the short twilight of the Arctic circle soon gives place to day, and as all hands are paid "by the piece," and daylight is but briefly interrupted, the work goes unceasingly on. From the time the vessel leaves San Francisco in the early summer, till she returns with the season's catch, there is no word nor tidings from her. This is the third season that this company has packed in Cook's inlet, and the result is stated to be entirely satisfactory in every way.

Charles H. Hawkins, a boyish-looking fellow, was a guest at the county jail yesterday. He is from The Dalles, and goes to the Salem penitentiary for 15 years. During a drunken row he killed a man named Jones on White River hill, near The Dalles, last summer. Hawkins' victim was his partner, and he says, threatened to kill him unless he gave up $2,500 that he had in his possession. Jones escaped to take the money away from Hawkins, and during the scuffle the latter picked up a rock and killed Jones. The trial, however, developed evidence of a damaging character, and the court gave him the full penalty of the law—fifteen years and to pay a fine of $5,000. —Portland News, 15.

VOICES HEARD 8,000 MILES. Telephone Communication Between London and New York.

"Hello, London!" "Hello, New York!" "How's things in merry England?" "Ow's things in your blooming Kentucky?" "We manage to stand it. How's Queen Victoria?" "Wary well, h'I thank you. 'Ow's President Butler?" The cities, the one on the Hudson and the other on the Thames, will thus soon be talking across the ocean to each other on the telephone.

A company of New York capitalists has been formed to establish a telephone line across the Atlantic ocean. It is to be supplemented, if the patent-rights of the Bell company permit, by a telephone line from New York to San Francisco. Among the stockholders and directors are Mr. J. H. Reed, of the firm of Bates, Reed & Co.; George M. Green, vice-president of the Metropolitan; William Foster, Jr., formerly the president of the Metropolitan Elevated Railway company, and several Boston capitalists. The company is to use the new Mackay-Bennett cable. In a few weeks one will be able to whisper under the sea to friends in England. In the course of time George Francis Train, at his office in the Metropolitan building, in the private ear of Dennis Kearney in California.

The first experiments in submarine telephoning will be made as soon as the Mackay-Bennett cable is extended from Halifax, Nova Scotia, to Gloucester, Massachusetts. The distance between these two ports is 850 miles. If the experiments on this part of the international cable are successful, the same instruments will at once be sent to Valentia, Ireland, and attempts will be made to telephone across the Atlantic Ocean. Expert electricians say that the same force sound may be transmitted twice as far on wires under water as on wires above the air. The new apparatus for telephoning which lately been invented by the Transatlantic Telephone Company stand the force of sixty batteries. More than two batteries would destroy the instruments of the Bell telephone system. The Transatlantic Telephone Company first made experiments with its newly invented instruments on Long Island. Messages were sent by them from one end of Long Island to the other, a distance of 125 miles. The longest distance which conversation is transmitted by the Bell system is twenty-five miles. There is a telephone line forty-five miles long between Boston and New York, and the Bell company, but only on favorable days are words sent over it distinctly audible. Experiments were next made with the new telephone instruments between New York and Meadville, Pa., a distance of 500 miles. Songs sung by a tenor singer in the office at Meadville were distinctly heard by half a dozen listening stockholders in the city of New York. A song was sung by a stockholder in New York, and the encore in Meadville was distinctly heard in this city. Successful experiments were next made between Boston and New York, and afterwards the stockholders in the new enterprise talked back and forth with doubters in Chicago, over 1,010 miles of wire. The experiments with the new telephone system were made between New York and St. Louis, over a wire 1,500 miles long. They were in every respect successful. Gentlemen partly deaf, who were unable to hear the Bell telephone at any time, talked with men by the Mississippi river as easily as they might carry on a conversation with men at their elbow.

TEN TIMES TEN THOUSAND MORE.

When Freedom from the realms of light looked down on Oregon, She robed herself in garments white, as radiant as the dawn, And roused the people for the fight as only Freedom can. And with her hallo, pure and white, she appealed to every man; But when the ballots all were in, and votes were counted o'er, She shook her head and sadly said, "We need ten thousand more."

Then freemen heard her stirring cry, and with a godsend shout They raised the stately banner high, resolved to put to rout Her every foe, both far and nigh, as only freemen can. And a snags of triumph through the land were sung by every man. And this the glad refrain they sang, in chorus o'er and o'er, "We're coming, mothers, sisters, dear, ten times ten thousand more."

You've called us, and we're coming fast, in strength and hope and pride, To stand for Freedom to the last, our arms to hold the Bell. We care not for the cruel past, nor for the coming man; We only care for Liberty, as loyal freemen can. And next time, when the votes are in, and all are counted o'er, You'll hear again the glad refrain, ten times ten thousand more.

From Clatsop and from Cheakamus, from Linn and Tillamook; From Grant, Multnomah, Lane and Cook, and Benton, Lake and Crook; From Josephine, Columbia, and loyal Washington, And Union, Baker and Yamhill, and proud old Marion; From where the Cascades mountain streams their forming water pour, We're coming, mothers, sisters, dear, ten times ten thousand more.

From Klamath's hills and Wasco's plains, and Jackson's rolling hills; From Douglas with her mines of gold, and Carry with her miller's fields, and hills and dales of Polk. We're coming with our votes and songs to break the tyrant's yoke. And in the ears of Liberty this song of joy we'll sing, ten times ten thousand more. We're coming, mothers, sisters, dear, ten times ten thousand more. —New Northwest.

SISTERS OF CHARITY

FRISBIE BOUND OVER.

Yesterday afternoon Frank Frisbie was arraigned in Justice Bybee's court. He had been shaved and all traces of travel removed, and presented a natty and unconcerned appearance. The complaint, sworn to by Henry Failing, charging him with larceny in a banking house of $2005 in coin and currency, was read to him by Presenting Attorney Gourin. After a brief consultation with Mr. Hedges, his attorney, Frisbie entered a plea of not guilty. He waived examination and was bound over to await the action of the grand jury in the sum of $5,000. He was then escorted to a carriage and driven back to jail, and thus ended some fourth of the drama in which Frisbie is to play a star engagement. Extravagant habits and a faculty of not being able to live within his income has been his ruin. A few years ago he was engaged in the hosiery business on Broadway, New York, and was prosperous and respected. He had a fine residence in the suburbs of New York, drove a pair of fast horses, and was considered worth $150,000. His father was considered worth half a million, and he married a young lady whose mother was supposed to be worth about the same sum.

But he lived too fast and failed in business and his father's fortune disappeared as he did that of his wife's mother. He had some stock in a Montana mining company, of which he was secretary, and after his failure he came out to Helena and found that his stock amounted to nothing. He was in the liquor business there for a time and then came down here and was taken into the First National bank. There was no vacancy, but as he needed something to do and was out of funds, and desired work at any price, he was put on as assistant to the exchange clerk at $75 per month. At Christmas, although he had only been there a few weeks, he received the sum of $1,215. He was a very competent man, and if he had been honest and content to live honestly for a time, would doubtless have been promoted and might now have been living happily with his family instead of being a disgraced and dishonored prisoner, with the doors of the penitentiary yawning to receive him.—Oregonian, 15th.
