THE QUEEN OF THE PACIFIC CASE.

A Probability of Appeal and Delay. From a private dispatch received last

By Judge Deady's decision the steamship owners are to pay to Astorians for the saving of the Queen the sum of $64,000. Times are tight and money is scarce. The delay in paying that money is worth $6,000 a year. Viewed as a commercial transaction, it is worth $6,000 a year to the steamship owners to delay the payment of the award.

In the event of an appeal, the case would go to the United States circuit court. This court consists of Judges Deady and Sawyer and Associate Justice Miller. It is seldom that Justice Miller gets here, so that should it come up before the first two and a difference of opinion come up, Judge Sawyer's decision opinion come up, Judge Sawyer's decision would constitute a "majority" over Deady's decision. However, should the matter come up, it is probable that it would be argued before a full bench. In case of an appeal and a reversal of Judge Deady's decree the matter would undoubtedly be taken to the United States supreme court. The fact that it would there take its place at the bottom of the calendar and the court is already behind with its business three years, does not afford much satisfaction to those who would interest as soon bould their rewho would just as soon handle their por-tion of the award this winter. However, in any event, it is not at all probable that the amount of the award will be dimin-ished. The hope of delay in the payment of that sum seems to constitute the chief

There is good reason for the club's existence and much resultant good will ensue. There are now twenty-five names on the rolls and they are all "active" The contractor for the Astoria Street Railway calculates that it will take 200 of M feet of lumber to put the readway into condition to lay the track thereon. The plans are now being prepared, and it is expected that work will begin by the 1st. prox.

The ladies of Grace Church Guild will have an ice cream sociable at the resitation. On the rolls and they are all "active" members. The next move will be to buy or lease a piece of ground in a good location, probably in the vicinity of Woody island, build a house and fit it up as a rendezvous for the club. It is also their intention to note any violation of the game laws. This is in the interest of the whole community and their action will be a protection of some of our best interests. On one occasion this director came to the school and after words with Johnston-who was a much older and physically weaker man than the director-attacked him, when a much older and physically weaker man than the director—attacked him, when Blaine, who heard the quarrel, came into the school room, and, uporaiding the di-rector for his cowardice, administered a sound thrashing, driving him from the building.

The director went off, but returned shortly with a double-barreled shot-gun.

shortly with a double-barreled shot-gun, avowing that he would kill young Blaine. several pupils saw him coming, and no-tified Blaine, who had to run around the building and in and out of the rooms to avoid being shot, when three of the boys got behind the director, disarmed him, and with the aid of several others gave the director a second thrashing.

Randall says Blaine's attentions to Miss Stanwood were open and honorable, and that the pupils of both knew the affection existed, the boys teasing Blaine about it, and that it was known for weeks beforehald that they were to be marabout it, and that it was known for weeks beforehand that they were to be married. No breath of scandal had been heard. The scholars all understood that when the session was over the couple would be married, and as it had been determined to end the session on the day of the shotgun episode, on the afternoon of the same day James G. Blaine and Miss Stanwood were quietly married, bade good bye to their scholars and went North.

A worthless fellow named Hawkins saw the shotgun business and heard of the marriage, so put the two together, telling a cock and bull story of how Miss Stanwood's father had made Blaine

Miss Stanwood's latter that he knows that Mr. Stanwood had been dead over three years before the time of this woman's marriage.

Some of the above facts came to the knowledge of Nim Norton, of Dallas, a son of Hon. A. B. Norton, and knowing that J. H. Johnston, clerk for the con-tractor erecting the federal building at tractor erecting the federal building at Dallas, was a son of Prof. Johnston, and was in a position to know the facts, went to him for them but Johnston, not wishing to be a witness in the Indianapolis libel suit, did not have anything to say, not wanting the public to know that he knew of the circumstances. Young Norton is now in Houston, a delegate to the State Republican convention, and informed Deputy United States Marshal A. N. Woody that on his return he would visit Randall and get his statement in full.

Randall, who is a Democrat and opposed to Blaine, says that the charge made by the Scatinel is infamously false. When the marriage ceremony took place the young girls brought flowers for Miss Stanwood's hair and dress and the boys gave the bridal party a farewell cheer when they bid good-by to Kentucky. The shotgun had nothing to do with the wedding, and Hawkins' own conclusions of what he knew nothing about formed the basis for the whole story.
