The Missing Roxburgshire.

A board of trade inquiry into the loss of the British ship Roxburgshire was recently held in Glasgow. This vessel left Astoria October 7, 1883, with a cargo of wheat bound for the U. K., and has not been heard from. The ship was built of iron in 1876 by Messrs. Dobie & Co., at Glasgow (who built the Aros Bay, lately burnt); was 929 tons net register; stood in name of Messrs . T. Law & Co.; carried a cargo of 1435 tons wheat, shipped by C. Cessar & Co., and was estimated to have had a freeboard of 4 feet range to have mad a freecoard of 4 feet 2 inches. The cost of the ship was £14,-700, and after some dispute the owners stated that she was insured at the time of the loss for £13,000 on the hull and £5,000 on the freight. The court held that the vessel was in good and seaworthy condition when she left Astoria, except as to her upper topsail yards; that she was not overladen; that her cargo was properly stowed and secured from shift-ing; that the regulations of the marine surveyor had been complied with, and that the vessel, as laden, had sufficient stability. The court finally decided that there was no evidence before them from which they could form any opinion why this ship was missing.

CONCERNING ASSESSMENTS.

It was Dr. Johnson that said "Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel.' It may with equal truth be said that tax-SEPTEMBER 19 1881 ation tinkering is the last refuge of a legislator. The average state legislature is always of a highly humorous composition. Originally a legislature was intended as a medium of communication between the people and the sovereign. When we are all sovereigns the legislature is left to questions of its own privilege, and sometimes has a hard time finding enough to do. About all that our last state legislature did was to enact a new tax law-and elect a successor to Grover. They will probably enact another new tax law next winter-and elect a successor to Slater.

This whole matter of tax legislation is a favorite one with a legislator. The less he knows about it the more he likes to fiddle with it. He succeeded last session in getting that ridiculous thing known as "the mortgage tax law" on the statute book, and will in a momentary spasm of intelligence probably erase it exhaust his powers.

Just at present the members elect are pondering over a long article signed by the secretary of state, and as compre-hensive as the Thirty-nine articles of faith, regarding the present assessment law. The possibility is that at the Salem meeting there will be as many opinions as there are members.

Taxrtion, and all laws relating to taxation, should be made and kept as simple as possible. The theory is that it should be equal and uniform. The nearer it can be made to conform in practice to that theory the better for the commonwealth. So much money to be raised; so much or so little to be levied upon, the tax to be as light and fairly divided as possible. In this is required good management, which is assually called economy. The best informed man in the county on the subject of values should be the assessment The special train containing C. W. Field and party was brought across the Columbia on the new transfer beat Tacoma, last Wednesday.

There is no necessity in anyone holding up his hands and looking astonished, We all know that it is a fact. There is so much descript and strains to dodging and shuffling and trying to make the "indebtedness" as big as possi-ble about the time the tax list must be handed in that it is a terrible strain on the conscience of the individual and the community; and the assessor in any county in Oregon is not to blame. #### WHERE THE SALMON GO.

The largest market is in Great Britain. where 450,000 cases of Columbia and Frazer river salmon are consumed annually. Next comes the United States, where 350,000 cases are used. Australia calls for 40,000 to 50,000 and Canada for 15,000 cases, while the rest are shipped to various points in Europe, South America, the West Indies, India, China and the islands of the Pacific. Wherever our canned salmon has gone it has found favor, both with epicures and laboring men, while scientists have expressed the opinion that a can of salmon, properly prepared, contains more nutriment for brain and muscle than any other article should be directed. To properly develop the finer flavor of salmon requires a great deal of cooking, and this it receives in process of canning, where it is first cooked for one hour and a half in a salt water bath at the boiling point, after which it is placed in a steam retort and subjected spasm of intelligence probably erase it is placed in a steam retort and subjected next January, providing the effort of electing a United States sensior does not minutes. It is then truly a dish fit to set minutes. It is then truly a dish fit to set before a king. The average cooks in hotels and private houses consider a salmon done when it has been toolled from one-half to three-quarters of an hour, but this is wholly inadequate to properly prepare this viand, as any one will discover who will have a salmon boiled for say two and a half hours. Any one taking this trouble will discover what a salmon really is. The fish should be cooked till the bones crumble, and until this point is reached the flesh will retain a raw, unpleasant flavor.

The Lease Voted Down

The two great companies, the Oregon Railway and Navigation and the Northern Pacific, are still figuring on the lease question, and the end is not yet. A private dispatch was received in this city yesterday containing news of an important nature. It stated that at a meeting of the Northern Pacific directory held in New York the question of the lease of the O. R. & N. lines came up. Director Morgan, of the great house of Drexel, Morgan & Co., favored the lease and gave many good reasons to sustain his position. Mr. Billings opposed the lease, and succeeded in carrying enough weight by his argument to bring a ma-jority of the board of directors around to his manner of thinking. On vote it was decided not to lease on the terms proposed by the O. R. & N. Co. Mr. Morgan was so chagrined by this turn of affairs that he resigned from the directory. The dispatch stated that a new lease proposition will be prepared and submitted to the Northern Pacific directors in a few days. Postlend Naves 1800. days.-Portland News, 18th.

"Is there a left-handed barber in this shop?" asked a man as he walked into a tonsorial establishment, early in the There is week.

A reporter watched the strange customer as the left-handed knight of the brush scraped his chin, but could not dis-cover anything different from the munip-ulation of a right-handed man, but there ulation of a right-handed man, but there was just the same, and here it is:

"You see," said the barber, "when a man is shaved all the time by a right-handed barber, the beard is pushed over toward the right, and when it grows out it looks like a lopsided map. The left-handed barber counteracts this tendency and the roots are directed the way they should go. A left-handed barber is a new wrinkle, but he is a good thing to have in the house."

"Johnny," said she to the kid, "won't you please call Mr. Mann?"
Johnny knew the state of affairs, and with a ready "of course," he flew to the front door and called out in the usual loud monotone of a crier:
"John Henry Mann, John Henry Mann,
John Henry Mann, come into court."

Mr. Mann came in and Johnny with-drew to a safe place.

His Success

Financially and socially are largely due to his excellent health. If his system were clogged and feverish, no doubt he would fail as so many others do. But why not enjoy good health when one can please the palate at the same time? Svrup of Figs is not only pleasant to the taste, it also cleanses the system thoroughly, yet painlessly; it is harmiess in its nature, and strengthens the organs on which it acts so that regular habits may be formed, and the sufferer permanently restored to health and habits may be formed, and the sufferer permanently restored to health and happiness. #### DUTIES OF PARENTS.

We should so live that when the sun mons come to be a parent it will find us prepared. Like a thief in the night, at an hour when we think not, like a thunderbolt from a clear sky, the call may come to us. Let the night lamp, there fore, be trimmed and burning, and the alum where you can lay hold of it at any time. But above all, we should make ourselves conversant with those little preliminary rules which must govern the conduct of the parent in his or her social contact with the child. A few saggestions upon what constitutes etiquite, and shows good breeding in this branch of society, readily marking and contrasting of canned goods now produced. In the process of canning the salmon loses none of its juice, succellence or flavor and is by many preferred to the fresh article. This is not without a reason and one to which it is well that the attention of the public should be directed. To properly develop. inopportune.

you appear to be, and hate deception ev-erywhere. If you will fondle him and dote on him in society and jerk him bald headed in the seclusion of the home circle, he will readily understand what you mean. Children soon learn that if you hug their little gizzards flat while visitors are about, and then, when the home life is awain resumed you there home life is again resumed, you throw them down cellar and wear out a table-leg on their chubby limbs, that life is real, life is earnest, and the square-toed, open, frank policy is not generally in

Parents should impress upon their children the beauty of self-sacrifice and self-abnecation, if they know what that is: I don't. If there should be but one lis: I don't. If the should be but one piece of pie, give it to "poor sick papa." It may kill him, and after the funeral your young life may be one prolonged hallelujah and rose-tinted whoop 'emup lizajane.

Parents should not be constantly suspicious of their children. This will inevitably breed hypocrisy and unreliability. If you fear that your son is playing pin-pool, do not break down your consitution and bring on delirium tremens, hanging around the pool tables and watching all night for him. He will look upon you with distrust, and no doubt at last tell you to go and soak your head.

Do not constantly tell your boy "how tall" he is—that he "grows like a weed"—and finally make him think he is a giraffe. If you keep it up you will finally make a round shouldered, awkward, bashful beaupole out of a mighty good Parents should not be constantly sus make a round shouldered, awkward, bashful beanpole out of a mighty good looking boy. If every tall boy in this country wilf agree to lick every woodenheaded man who tells him "how he does grow," I will agree to hold the coat of said tall boy. I am now dealing with a subject of which I happen to be informed. The same rule applies to girls as well.
