Notice to Advertisers.
 THE ASTORIAN guarantees to its advertisers the largest circulation of any newspaper published on the Columbia river.

The skating rink will be open for skating this day and evening.
 Carl Adler is now selecting one of the finest and largest stocks ever sent to this city.

Dr. Atkinson of Portland will preach to-morrow morning and evening at the Congregational church.
 A. Cleveland speaks at the Columbia cannery, at Upper Astoria, at half past seven this evening.

The British ship Harelock, Meredith master, from Buenos Ayres, in ballast, arrived yesterday morning.
 In the roll of honor of Astoria School District No. One, recently published, the name of Maggie Carr, of the second primary department should have appeared.

The Republican parade last night was the largest political procession ever seen in Astoria. Men who seldom take part carried a torch, and the estimates of several parties placed the number in line at five hundred.

The British ship Harelock, Meredith master, from Buenos Ayres, in ballast, arrived yesterday morning.
 The British bark Bessie Marckham, from Valparaiso, is reported outside.
 The Kenia goes to the wharf of the Clatsop Mill Co. to-day, to load for Montevideo.

For the first time in several months we are promised a brief season of theatrical entertainment. Geo. C. Min, the great tragedian, will appear in this city next Thursday and Friday, the 6th and 7th inst. Reserved seats at the New York Novelty store.

E. P. Hoff, president, and Aug. Danielson, secretary of the Scandinavian Blaine and Logan club beg leave to say that the procession could not march to Upper Astoria as was advertised, on account of unforeseen circumstances which would have prevented from listening to the speech of the Hon. Rufus H. Mallory.

During the presidential campaign now drawing to a close, the Astorian has faithfully and impartially reported every speech delivered in this city. Whether it was a Republican or a Democratic speaker, full synopsis of his speech has been in the following morning's issue. This has been done by no other newspaper in the state. A journal which is truly independent in the best sense of that much abused word, always gives its readers the news and gives what each side has to say.

RAILROAD RUMORS.
 The St. Paul Pioneer Press of the 25th inst. gives the following railroad news: "Owing to the absence of Vice President and General Manager Oakes, nothing could be learned at the offices of the Northern Pacific yesterday regarding the published report that the Union Pacific had secured control of the O. R. & N. Messrs. Odell and Lamborn, the only prominent officials at home, had no information corroborative or otherwise of the rumor. Neither thought it likely. A general impression pervaded the building, however, that the report was true, and this was augmented by the report that the engineering department had received telegraphic instructions from President Harris to rush the Cascade branch as fast as possible. Chief Engineer Anderson's absence made it impossible to learn definitely whether such instructions had been received or not. Crews are now at work upon both ends of the branch, but it will be impossible to complete this work within two or three years. The great trouble will be tunneling the Cascades. Connection, however, will be made at much earlier date by means of a switch back. With this branch completed, the Northern Pacific will have a through line of its own to Portland, as it has now a line running from Tacoma to Portland. The report that the company would build a line from Wallula Junction to Portland, opposite to and parallel with the O. R. & N. is nonsense, as such a road is altogether impracticable.

A GRAND REPUBLICAN DEMONSTRATION.
 Parade, Fireworks and Speech at Occidental Hall.

The present campaign has been a lively one in Astoria. Political clubs have kept everything moving and more especially during the last week has the enthusiasm been unbounded. Last evening saw the most effective turn-out of the campaign in this city. The Astoria Blaine and Logan club, the Scandinavian Blaine and Logan club, and representative Republicans from all parts of the county formed in line and marched five hundred in number in what is conceded to be the finest procession of the season. The night was a grand one, the moon almost at its full, shone brightly, the air was filled with the glare of torchlights, transparencies, rockets and Roman candles; the bands played their loudest; those in the procession and on the crowded streets gave vent to their enthusiasm, and when the procession after parading through the principal streets of the city, halted in front of the Occidental to escort the speaker of the evening to the hall, the assemblage gave three cheers which were taken up and re-echoed along the line.

Arriving at the hall, which was filled to hear Hon. Rufus Mallory, that gentleman was introduced by Frank L. Parker. Mr. Mallory said:

"To be ushered into such a presence on such an occasion ought to be a pleasure to any American citizen. When I reflect that on next Tuesday the nation's fate shall be decided; when I see such a vast concourse of intelligent American citizens as are now before me, I feel that the heart of Astoria is right on the great question."
 The test of true Republicanism is that the majority shall rule; that fearlessly, thoughtfully and with a due sense of the great responsibility of sovereignty the American citizen shall go to the polls on election day and cast a ballot for the choice of the nation.

The Republican party has for its standard-bearer the great statesman, Blaine, and the gallant soldier, Logan, into whose hands are to be placed the destinies of this nation for the next four years. They are in every sense representative men. Their nomination had been dictated by no ring; their names were the spontaneous selection of the people; and the people that selected Blaine last summer would place him in the presidential chair. We need a statesman; in Blaine we have a great statesman, a brilliant leader, a popular representative, and an honest man. His record has been read by the nation; his history is the history of the Republican party; his triumphal endorsement is but the just due that men pay to acknowledged merit. In the convention that nominated Blaine there was no glib rule as in the convention that nominated Cleveland. It was free, hearty, almost unanimous, and was indicative of the majority that would be rolled up for him next Tuesday. It was a matter of history that a candidate foisted upon a convention by a ring, a candidate who, like Cleveland, was put forward by those who would rule or ruin, such a candidate was invariably defeated. The letters of acceptance were compared, greatly to the detriment of that written by the Democratic candidate. What recommendations did this obscure man Cleveland have for the high office of president of the United States? His sole recommendation was that he happened to be the provincial that Republicans used to rebuke interference by the administration in 1882. He that year received a less number of votes in the Empire state than Hancock for president two years before. All that the Democrats wanted was to get in; it didn't make any difference who they took up so as they thought that he had a chance to pull in. This was not a hugging game. It was a choice for president, a man fit to sit in the highest place among 50,000,000 people.

But Democrats say "turn the rascals out." No matter what Republican argument was used, that was their sole plea, their only shibboleth. Simple culling of names wasn't enough. Thinking men in any party who decide according to argument and proof; they pay no heed to idle talk. The perpetuity of our government is the point to insure. When the very life of the Union was threatened the people of the United States handed over the shaping of its policy to the young Republican party, and they had never regretted the act. That party had declared that the republic could not live half slave and half free; between slavery and liberty there was an irrepressible conflict, and the Republican party had adopted and maintained the cause of the free. It was an inflexible principle they laid the ax of constitutional liberty. Shall they therefore be turned out? Give the history of that great party. Its policy has ever been for the best interests of the people. It was an inflexible principle. Some of its members had been unworthy. Is the party to be blamed for abuse? It purged itself of that abuse. It turned out its unworthy members and punished them. Sometimes a man is inflexible doing that. When Dorsey was tried in Washington, eight of the jury that failed to convict him were Democrats.

Such representative horsemen as Mr. E. C. Walker, Veritas, the Spirit of the Times, New York, and Mr. R. S. Withers, Fairland Stock Farm, Lexington, Kentucky, testify that St. Jacobs Oil, the great pain-cure, is unsurpassed for all kinds of horse ailments.

Democratic Rally.
 The Cleveland and Hendricks Club of Astoria will meet at their hall Saturday evening, Nov. 1st, '84, at 7:30, and march to Upper Astoria, where they will be joined by the Democrats of Upper Astoria and the Columbia cannery. VIEWS OF AN ASTORIA MECHANIC.
 ASTORIA, Oct. 31, 1884.

Ed. ASTORIAN: "Many Republicans have turned over to the Democrats to-night, I know." This is what I heard a naturally constituted Democrat say, after we came out of Occidental hall last night, where Mr. Fenton had unfolded the Democratic cause; and, as a Republican laboring man, I must say that he is the most respectable speaker that I have yet heard, of all the Democratic politicians. The mild way in which he expounded the great Democratic force and its harmlessness, was almost audible to listen to. He had no particular fault to find with Blaine, simply stating that he was a coward for not having shown his true colors in the Prohibition fight, and that he was well known for previously using his official influence for his private interests. He also assured us that he was for the protection of our industries. I was about thinking he was "all 'same as 'Melican man," until he referred to the Democratic unity and force by which they had extorted a confession from the tariff commissioners that a reduction of 25 per cent. was needed. This I had seen before better explained in the Democratic platform, particularly thus: "His own tariff commission confessed the need of more than 20 per cent. reduction; its congress gave a reduction of less than 4 per cent.; it professed the protection of American manufactures; it has subjected them to an increased flood of manufactured goods and a hopeless competition with other manufacturing nations."

These are the simple and encouraging words by which the Democratic platform reminds all interested, of Democratic unity and ability to extort this confession of the need of more than 20 per cent. reduction. This particularly identifies them with the Morrison blaine which proposed a horizontal reduction of 20 per cent., and was supported by five-sixths of all the Democratic congressmen. It is evident that the Republicans must cause any manufacturer to produce goods that there is no market for; but the Democrats accusing the Republicans of being the cause of this flood of goods in this country, is a position, is a proof that the Democratic force is in sympathy with free trade.

"Flooded with goods but in hopeless competition with other manufacturing nations" that explains it. These goods cannot be produced at the American price of labor and sold at the European price in market except at a loss. The ranks of our American citizens, those of Europe in most things but these goods cannot be produced for the same price on account of higher wages in America and for no other reason. According to the Democratic party, Mr. Fenton, it is proven that Democrats are in sympathy with those now in hopeless competition with European manufacturers. As it is not likely that either party would knowingly attempt to paralyze the industries of our country, we must conclude that one or the other's reasoning power as a whole is in discord with cause and effect. Tariff is a toll paid by foreigners for the privilege of selling their goods in our market. It costs the public nothing for it goes to the public treasury and is used for the public good. Twenty per cent. reduction of tariff permits a foreigner to bring his goods into our market at a 20 per cent. less cost and that is a 20 per cent. reduction in market value for such goods manufactured here and as sold to the consumer. It is a fact that it necessitates at least 20 per cent. reduction in wages. This the American laborer will not accept to but will strike as long as unions can support him, and working only when compelled to by poverty. It will send millions of mechanics out among the farmers seeking in vain for employment as miners, machinists, wheelwrights, carpenters, hatters, etc. It will effect a reduction in wages of 20 per cent. at least, throughout the country; it will reduce in value almost everything that is produced by hands, it matters not whether it be a saw mill or a brick yard, goods in store or ore in piles, for things that are produced by labor have a relative value to the cost of the labor required to produce them. This and the character of the men who have five-sixths of the Democratic congressmen have asked us to endure.

The tradition that the devil cannot trespass our country without first unlearning his cloven hoof is exact and true comparison with every public misleading question bearing on common welfare, it cannot be introduced to us without visible and palpable proof. We have listened to oratory for a false purpose comparing Blaine's faults as a camel with Cleveland's as a goat, and proclaiming that low tariff had been and would be again the ruin of the country; we have heard the deceptive cry "monopoly" "stop thief"; we have seen the deceptive circulars referring to the robberies of millions and millions by the Republicans asking remission to accept the truth without giving the least trace of proof; asking the simpletons of the country to accept their figures and compare them with the figures of the country from the poor people; we have heard the deceptive lie that we can be no worse for as laborers while we see the living proof of continued emigration of labor from worse countries for their own betterment, but for all this we cannot willingly submit to the Democratic legislation to administer laws for our welfare.
