SONGS THAT HAVE MOVED NATIONS.
Who Wrote Them and What Inspired Them.

The greatest poem of the war was written at Washington by Julia Ward Howe, under the title of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." It is sung to the tune of "John Brown," and commences, "Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord." Mrs. Howe wrote it early one morning and it is said she penned the lines with her eyes shut. The night before she had been out riding in the country near Washington and her party had narrowly escaped being captured by a troop of Confederates. As they came into Washington they sang "John Brown's Body," and the tune kept ringing in Mrs. Howe's head all night. When she awoke before day light she began to make verses to it, and in the fear that she would forget them she wrote them off, according to the habit she had formed to save her eyes without looking at the paper. Mrs. Howe is still living and she ranks among the leaders of the woman's rights movement.

Speaking of "John Brown's Body," the tune itself is an old Methodist camp-meeting tune and the words were adapted to it by a glee club of Boston in 1861. It was first published at Charlestown, Mass. Capt. James Greenleaf, an organist of the Harvard church, set the notes for music, and a Massachusetts regiment made them first noted by singing them at Fort Warren in 1861.

The author of "Maryland, My Maryland," lives at Washington, and you may see him in the press galleries of congress almost any day during the session. He writes gossipy letters to the August Chronicle. His name is James B. Randall, and he is a modest looking, dark complexioned man of 40. He must have been very young when he wrote that beautiful poem. His ideas are broader now, and he is as liberal in his views as any member of the gallery.

"America" was written by the Rev. Samuel Francis Smith in 1832, and it was first sung in Boston on the Fourth of July of that year. Like the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," it was inspired by a great tune, viz: "God Save the King." This tune is in use in nearly every country, and it has been ascribed to Handel. The writer of the words still lives in Massachusetts, and he says he wrote the song at a sitting. He is now 75 years old, and he graduated at Harvard in the same class with Oliver Wendell Holmes.

John Howard Payne's "Home, Sweet Home," was written for an opera, and he never got anything for it but his tombstone in Oak Hill cemetery. It was first sung in the Covent Garden theater, at London, and made a big hit. One hundred thousand copies were sold the first year, and by the end of the second its publishers had cleared $10,000 from it.

Robert Treat Paine wrote "Ye Sons of Columbia," early in 1800, under the title of "Adams and Liberty," and he was paid $750 for it. Paine was the son of one of the signers of the declaration of independence. He was christened Tom Paine, but on account of his dislike to Tom Paine's infidel tendencies, he had the Massachusetts legislature change his name, and give him what he called a Christian one.

Foster got $15,000 for writing "Old Folks at Home." Crouch, the writer of "Kathleen Mavourneen," received $25 for the production, and afterwards became a begging tramp, while his publisher could have built a brown stone front out of his sales. George P. Morris wrote "Woodman, Spare That Tree," because the purchaser of a friend's estate wanted to cut down a tree which his grandfather had planted.

"Hail Columbia" was written by Joseph Hopkinson, in the summer of 1795, and it was first called the "President's March." It was always sung when Washington came into the theater, and one of the objects of its writing was the cultivation of a patriotic spirit among the people of the new Republic. It was first put to music by a German music teacher at Philadelphia named Roth.

"The Star Spangled Banner" was written by Francis Scott Key while watching the bombardment of Fort Mifflin, in 1814. He was in a small vessel among the British ships, and he saw his countrymen win the victory. All through the fight he watched anxiously waiting the dawn. The song was printed in the Baltimore American eight days after the battle, under the title of "The Defense of Fort Mifflin."

Many people will be surprised to learn that "Yankee Doodle" is not of American origin. Even the words date back beyond the days of Queen Anne, and the tune is still older. In the wars of the Roundheads, says Commodore Preble, in his book on the flag of the United States, "Yankee Doodle," or "Nankee Doodle," was applied in derision to Oliver Cromwell, and Professor Bimball, a prominent musician of London, wrote a song directed at Cromwell under this title. The jingle of these two songs is about the same, and the words are not much different. Dr. Shuchburg first introduced the song into this country in 1775, and this was also in contempt of the ragged colonial soldiers. At Concord and Lexington the British, when advancing to fight, bravely played "God Save the King," and after they were defeated the Yankees, as they watched their retreat, struck up "Yankee Doo-die—"Carp" in the Cleveland Leader.

English Comment.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Morning News in a leader devoted to the American political contest says: "Republicans have much in their favor. They are in power. They have governed the republic for 23 years. They settled the slavery question forever, and they have the most heroic recollections in northern and western states associated with their name. But the Republican party has done its work, and fallen into vices which long ascendancy produces in all political parties. It has become more anxious to retain office than to perform any great national services. It has had a candidate in Blaine who comes forward as the representative of the party machine. Democratic victory no longer means the return of southern men to the monopoly of power. Old sectional jealousies are cold beyond the power of warming into new life. The success of Cleveland will re-open no closed controversies, and it will simply mean a change in the man at the helm. Old issues between Republicans and Democrats have lost their force. New issues are slowly replacing them. There are many indications that the important turning point in domestic politics of the union have been reached.

The Telegraph likewise finds subject for comment in the American election. It greatly rejoices that whoever is successful no cloud in the horizon threatens to overshadow the existing amity of America and England, and Englishmen can afford to await result with entire confidence. Whether Blaine or Cleveland is elected there is no dissolution of continuity of harmony and good-will happily subsisting between Great Britain and her majesty's eldest daughter.

Potatoes intended for seed should after digging, be exposed as much as possible to light until danger from frosts requires their removal to the cellar or pit. If they could be kept in a light room up stairs at a uniform temperature of forty degrees through the winter, it would be better than any other course that could be devised. Cellars are usually kept too warm, and they are always too dark for this purpose. Long before time for planting the early kind of potatoes will need sprouting, and when the first sprout from an eye has been removed any that come after that will be much less vigorous. For storing on a large scale, dry pits, well covered with earth, secure the most uniform temperature; but potatoes thus kept should be taken up two to four weeks before planting and spread thinly in a dry room, where the sunshine can dry them out and start the eyes. The time to start seed potatoes is before the main crop is gathered. Go through the fields while the vines are yet green, and mark with stakes the hills that have strong growing stalks. Then when ripe dig these hills first, and after removing to the heap assort them by selecting those of medium size and good shape, rejecting alike those that are very large or small or that have uneven surfaces. If this treatment is made from selected hills the seed thus secured will be worth far more than if selected from the entire field, after digging has been finished. A good looking potato may come from a hill that has produced only one or two tubers. The habit of unproductive yield will be seen in diminished yield though good soil and cultivation may partly modify this tendency.

The Sunny Side of It.
Let us be sunshiny if we can. But if we have dyspepsia and liver complaint and rheumatism and several other ailments, how can we? First get rid of the ailments. Get a bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters, and put them in your pocket. Mrs. Silver, Centralia, Mo., says: "I look Brown's Iron Bitters for dyspepsia and it has acted like a charm." Mr. Seth Adams, Walworth, Wis., "took Brown's Iron Bitters for severe rheumatism, and is greatly improved."

A country merchant in Wood county, O., set a spring gun in his store every night for thirteen years without being rewarded, but the other night he blazed away and brought down two robbers. Patience will get there in the end.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites.—Dr. J. W. Burton, of Valdosta, Geo., says: "I have for several years used Scott's Emulsion, and find it to act well in Consumption and Scrofula and other conditions requiring a tonic of that class."

American canned fruits once had a ready sale over all Europe. Some manufacturers began to play safe with their goods and now some countries won't buy at all. No Yankee is satisfied with a good thing.
