

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1884

A SENSATIONAL DISPATCH.

A SPECIAL to the N. Y. World from Pittsburg, Penn., dated the 17th, says: "Senator Cameron has been in the city for a few days. Cameron is positive of his succeeding himself as senator, and his conference with provincial republicans from this part of the state was satisfactory. His secondary reason was to explain to those vitally interested a plan whereby a majority of the federal offices would be retained by Republicans. The senate will be Republican, and as there are a great many officers whose terms will expire during the next term of congress, they or their successors will be immediately appointed by Arthur, and confirmed by the senate. As their official terms will extend over four years those positions will remain as heretofore, as they cannot be removed from office, except for cause, and conduct on the part of any one of them unbecoming his position would be the only act that would remove him. Cleveland may find it very difficult to get the senate to confirm his appointments of Democrats. Such refusal on the part of that body would have the effect of continuing in office all Republican federal officers whose terms might expire during the next administration, as an officeholder is allowed by law to remain in his position until either reappointed or succeeded, no matter if his commission has expired, and any refusal on the part of the senate to confirm Democratic successors would virtually continue in office all the Republicans. This may look like a steal, but it is a possibility. As a last resort another thing may be resorted to as an alternative, or rather as a compromise. There are a number of southern states pronouncedly Democratic, with little chance of ever becoming Republicanized. Democratic senators from such states may effect a compromise with Republican senators, and agree to the appointment of either Democrats or Republicans, as to the territory in which the appointment may be. Cleveland could help good feeling by appointing officials in that way. Otherwise he will experience trouble with the Republican senate. These facts have leaked out since Cameron came here."

The constitution of the United States contains a clause, whose scope has not yet been defined. It forbids any state to pass a "law impairing the law of contracts." Marriage in the eye of the law is a civil contract. However much more than this it may be, it is certainly this. It is a contract between two persons to live together as husband and wife till death parts them. In most of the states it is a contract also for the common ownership of what they have at the time of the contract, and all they are to acquire after it. Every law which authorizes a divorce authorizes a dissolution of this contract. The national government has not received by the constitution the right to pass any such law. The states are forbidden to pass it, by the clause we have quoted. Yet every state except South Carolina assumes the authority to annul marriages.

Through overland traffic will be opened on the 1st of next month by way of the Oregon Short Line to Huntington, the Oregon Railway and Navigation Co.'s line to Umatilla, and the Northern Pacific line from the latter point. It is calculated that this route will shorten the time across the continent to Portland by one day. The Oregon Short Line leaves the Union Pacific at Granger, Wyoming.

REPUBLICANS must take their defeat in good part. They have enjoyed the leaves and fishes for twenty-four years. During all that period the Democrats have been out in the cold. It is their turn now. Let them make the best of it. The Republicans ought certainly to have saved something for a rainy day.

The change in the political complexion of affairs across the river gives rise to the interesting query, are the ladies of Washington territory mostly Republicans or Democrats? The last vote cut down a 3,300 Republican majority to nothing, though the principal cause was the question of forfeiture.

It is said that the county of McIntosh, Dakota, which was entirely government land until ninety days ago, does not yet contain men enough to fill the usual offices, but they have elected themselves as far as they will go.
