

The Daily Astorian. ASTORIA, OREGON: WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1884

THE CITY COUNCIL. Two weeks from to-day will occur the annual municipal election.

There seems to be a disposition this fall to make the matter more of a political contest than heretofore.

This city government of ours is simply a business partnership. Some of us pay taxes—pretty heavy taxes just at present—and in return for the payment of these taxes the community get considerable conveniences that they wouldn't get if there were no municipal organization.

The functions of a councilman are not very irksome. He votes saloon licenses, audits claims against the city and passes on street improvements.

The questions that he decides upon are almost wholly questions involving public money.
