COMING TROUBLE IN INDIA.
Lord Dufferin assumes the control of the government of British India in a most critical period. Influences are at work throughout that country which are hostile to continued tranquillity; the natives are everywhere restless and dissatisfied; in many sections their burdens are greater than they can bear, and, as a natural consequence, alarm prevails among the British residents and there is a cry for stations where the English can take refuge in case of a new outbreak. Happily for the English, Lord Dufferin is not only a man of large experience and conceded ability, but he has had an opportunity of acquiring special knowledge of the country he is called upon to govern. Twenty years ago he was under secretary for India under Lord Palmerston's administration. Since his six years' term as governor-general of Canada he has represented Great Britain at the courts of St. Petersburg and Constantinople, and latterly he has been, in fact, the sole ruler of Egypt. Whether he can be said to have been a success in Egypt may be a question. In view of the fact that Egyptian hatred of the English was never so general or so bitter as now. It is also worth notice that Lord Dufferin's appointment to the governor-generalship of India before the expiration of Lord Ripon's term is regarded by the bureaucracy of India as a rebuke to the conciliatory policy which Lord Ripon was pursuing.
To an American observer, the situation in India seems simply "impossible." We cannot understand how such a state of things can be endured for a day. In no country in the world, at no period of past history, has such subject misery been witnessed as that which the peasantry of the Deccan and some parts of Northern India are now enduring. Not only are they not clad, which matters less in that climate than it would elsewhere; not only do they never eat meat, which is often contrary to their religion, but they actually can only afford to eat rice on holidays and subsist the rest of the time on millet mixed with salt and water. In many sections they cannot afford to buy salt, which is a government monopoly and yields $30,000,000 annual revenue, and poor creatures who go to places where salt is indigenous and neck the ground are arrested and jailed for the crime. When the government of India passed from the East India Company to the British Crown, the latter as the descendant of the Mogul sovereigns claimed to own all the land in India. In many places, under the Forest act, the ryots were driven from their homes, their villages burned and the land inclosed for the better growth of forest trees. Where the natives were allowed to retain their holdings an assessment by way of rent was laid upon them which varies from 20 to 40 per cent. of the gross value of their crops. Persons who have known India for a long period of time say that no such universal misery as now exists prevailed under the intolerable rule of the East India Company.
While the poorer classes are thus starving to death, the race hatred of the English is steadily growing among the native residents of towns, and the richer citizens, both Hindus and Mohammedans. Formerly, before the mutiny, there was some intercourse between the rich natives and the English residents. Now there is none. No English lady will call on a native, even though she be a Christian, dressed in Parisian fashion. No hotel-keeper dare entertain a native, though he be worth millions. No native can travel in the same compartment of a railroad car with an Englishman. No native can rise above a certain subordinate grade in either the civil or the military service. Next to nothing is being done in the way of educating the natives in their own tongue and their own religions. Large bequests which have from time to time been made by wealthy Indians for the support of Mohammedan schools and churches have been confiscated by the government. The two races, in fact, live side by side in an actual condition of warfare, the more ominous because the sword has not yet been drawn.
Can such a connection last? And will not the end be all the more terrible because it is so long postponed? When the mutiny broke out, thirty years ago, it was confined to the soldiers. The people took no part in it. The whole country is ripe for revolt. From the richest to the poorest, all excrete the English and groan for the time when they can strike the blow. There are in the northern provinces fifty millions of Mohammedans, every man of whom is a soldier, who made no secret of their sympathy with Arabi in Egypt. It is a pretty dark outlook.

Tracked by Bloodhounds.
A special from Columbus, Ga., of the 9th, says: Keen-scented bloodhounds, as they followed their devious course through the city to a point half a mile up the river, attracted the attention of the people yesterday. A few minutes later, several horsemen following, gave evidence of fatigue from a long chase. Suddenly the hounds came to a stand, and a colored woman, babe in arms, stood terrified and unable to move. A little way into a clump of bushes was seen a colored man, who was recognized by Sheriff Burkett of Decatur county, and whom one of the horsemen said was Moses Keaton, the murderer of the Godwin family, in Mitchell county. Grasping a shotgun, which he had stolen on the night of the murder, Keaton was taking aim, when Sheriff Burkett pushed the muzzle of a British bulldog revolver into his face, and Keaton quietly surrendered. The story of the chase is one of the most exciting on record. On the morning of Wednesday, one week ago, Alex. Godwin went to the house of his brother, Stephen Godwin, a bachelor and wealthy stock raiser. All was still inside, and on opening the door he found his brother lying dead on the bed in a pool of blood, with his head crushed and his brains oozing out. Mrs. Gregory, the housekeeper, was lying on another bed in the same room, with a dreadful fracture in the temple and otherwise badly mangled. Dick Gregory, her son, was found in an adjoining room, lying dead from a similar wound. There was no sign of robbery about the house. Godwin's trousers were found on a chair by his bedside, with money in his pockets. His gun was missing, and his horse and buggy were also taken away. A local reward of $500 was at once offered and a vigorous pursuit at once determined upon. The pursuing party pushed the chase through swamp and morass, sometimes having sight of a track, again losing it and thus giving the criminal the advantage of time. Upon reaching Decatur county, Sheriff Burkett joined in the pursuit, and it was decided to bring in the aid of dogs to better keep the scent. Here, in the region of swamp lands, all trace seemed lost, and two days were spent in the endeavor to regain it. Hope was almost abandoned. At last another trail was struck due north and it was not long before it was discovered that it lay not more than half a mile from and parallel to the downward trip, back through to Georgia and within one hundred yards of the house where the tragedy had been committed, and still north of this until the farmhouse was reached where the discovered fugitives sold the horse and buggy and pursued their flight. On the return trip to Mitchell county with their prisoners, Keaton fully confessed his crime. The chase was over 400 miles in a straight line and must have been nearer 1,000 when the variations are taken into account. It is doubtful if he will be allowed to reach trial, so incensed are the people at his crime.

The Cow For Profit.
The most profitable cow is the one that pays the most on her cost of keeping. That will be admitted, suppose for instance, that the yield of a cow that originally cost $50, and whose keeping costs half as much as that of another cow that originally cost $100, was regularly two-thirds as much as the yield of the latter. Clearly the former would be the most profitable cow, individually considered. Very high priced cows are not practical for dairy purposes, if we only look to the individual. A $200 cow cannot be made to pay as much as the pair as a good milker of less price can, unless she is very extraordinary. A cow like the late Mercedes would pay, but she was extraordinary. But the profit from these high priced cows—from our improved breeds, is not wholly represented by their dairy products. Their offspring is valuable, and right here is where the great difference exists between the full blooded and the common cow.
The difference in the yield of milk of four quarts a day, even at two cents a quart, is equal to $24 a year, which is the interest at 8 per cent on $300. A difference of 100 pounds of butter a year is equal to the same amount. With ten cows this counts up pretty fast. A pure-bred Ayrshire or Jersey cow will easily make this difference in the value of the yearly products; as the extra cost for keeping the increase is all profit.

Steropticon Lenses.
An illuminated view of a dyspeptic's stomach would be a fearful sight and a dreadful warning. A view of the interior of a healthy stomach is not unpleasant, but, on the contrary, is a very interesting sight. There is nothing like Brown's Iron Bitters to keep the stomach healthy or to restore it when demoralized by the effects of indigestion. Miss Ida Shivers, Elliot City, Md., says: "I suffered from dyspepsia all general prostration. Brown's Iron Bitters improved me from the start."
Potatoes twenty inches in circumference have been produced in Oregon this year.
For launch, boat or chest use Shiloh's Patent. Price 25 cents. For sale by W. E. Dement.

FROM THE
New York Novelty Store
TO THE PEOPLE OF
ASTORIA AND VICINITY

Owing to the unprecedented rush of business at our Store, we find it simply impossible to write a proper advertisement enumerating the various Novelties in the line of HOLIDAY GOODS we have on hand, all of which are being rapidly disposed of and selected from. It is a well-known fact that we undersell any establishment in Astoria; as our expenses are lighter than those of any other store in town.
We adhere strictly to our ONE PRICE SYSTEM, all our goods being marked in plain figures, and we will not ask you $10.00 for an article and afterward sell it to you for One Dollar, (as is frequently done elsewhere in Astoria.)
Bear in mind also, that we are the LEADING NEWS DEALERS of Astoria.

Call, examine our Goods and Prices and be convinced of the Truth of What We Say.
