BROWN'S IRON BITTERS
THE BEST TONIC.
This medicine, combining iron with pure vegetable tonics, quickly and completely cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weakness, Impure Blood, Malaria, Chills and Fevers, and Neuralgia.
It is an excellent remedy for Diseases of the Kidneys and Liver.
It is invaluable for Diseases peculiar to Women, and all who lead sedentary lives. It does not injure the teeth, cause headache, or produce constipation—other Iron Medicines do. It enriches and purifies the blood, stimulates the appetite, aids the assimilation of food, relieves Heartburn and Bileling, and strengthens the muscles and nerves.
For Intermittent Fevers, Lassitude, Lack of Energy, &c., it has no equal.
The genuine has above trade mark and crossed red lines on wrapper. Take no other made up by DRUGS CHEMICAL CO., BALTIMORE, MD. REDINGTON, WOODWARD & CO., Portland, Or. WHOLESALE AGENTS.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS
In cases of dyspepsia, acidity, rheumatism, liver and gall bladder complaint, constipation, indigestion, and biliousness, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a tried remedy, to which the medical profession have lent their professional sanction, and which as a tonic, alterative, and blood-purifier, has an unrivaled popularity.

LYNCH LAW IN MISSOURI.
MARIETTA, Mo., Dec. 9.—Herbert Kramer, the man shot by Omaha Charley, is still alive, with good prospects of his final recovery, but the tragedy has had a sad and awful sequel. Ever since Kramer was shot there has been talk of a mob, and for three or four nights the jail was guarded. But everything seemed quiet, all alarm finally passed away. Monday evening it began to be whispered around town that Omaha Charley was to be mobbed that evening. Most of the citizens who heard it gave it no heed, thinking it an idle rumor. As the night grew on the rumor grew, and it was even said the mob was being organized down at the fair grounds.
At last three or four of our citizens concluded to go down and see. Sure enough, they found some twenty or thirty masked men on the grounds. There was also six or seven not masked, who seemed to be mere lookers on. This was near midnight. All of this time the officer in the city and county had not heard, or, if they had heard, had given no heed to the rumors. Yet as general had the talk become that some traveling men at one of the hotels had not rested the clerk to awaken them if the mob came. It was after midnight when the mob started, and it was 1 o'clock, or 1.30, when they came in front of the jail.
Knocking loudly at the door, they aroused Sheriff Anderson, who was sleeping up-stairs. Raising a window he demanded who was there.
"We have come for Omaha Charley. Open up."
"You can't have him," was the quick response of the sheriff.
"We will have him if we take him over your dead body," was the stern rejoinder, and they immediately commenced to force the door.
Sheriff Anderson aroused his brother Jack, and snatching their revolvers they rushed down stairs.
"The first man that steps inside that door is a dead man," shouted the sheriff.
The answer was a ball crashing through the door. The sheriff responded in kind, and within three seconds some fifteen or twenty shots were exchanged. The sheriff emptied his revolver and his brother fired four shots. The sheriff tried to reload, but the door was burst open and the mob came pouring in.
The sheriff ran, but they pursued him up stairs, took the keys of the jail from his pocket and proceeded to open the jail.
The jail is a revolving one, and turning it round until the cell of Omaha Charley came to the door it stopped. The door was opened and three or four of the mob rushed in. Omaha Charley saw his impending doom. With a scream like a hunted panther, he sprang on his assailants and fought like a demon. But he was soon overpowered and dragged from the cell and out of the jail. The keys of the jail were tossed to the sheriff with the remark, "We are through with them."
"Where is the rope?" asked one of his captors.
"Here it is," answered one who had remained on the outside.
The rope was placed around his neck and the mob started eastward. But little was said. Omaha Charley wanted to walk, but he was partly carried and partly dragged along for about 300 yards, when they reached a bridge over a ravine. Here they halted. The firing had aroused nearly a dozen citizens, who witnessed the proceedings but did not attempt to interfere.
The rope was made fast to the railing. "Are you going to hang me like a dog without the privilege of saying a word?" asked the doomed man.
"No," said one; "say what you want to and say it quick."
"What does it mean—that is all this about?" asked Charley.
"It is that all what you want to say?" was the reply; "over with him, boys!" and he was thrown from the bridge. With a death grasp he caught the edge of the plank. For an instant he hung, his ghastly face upturned to the moon, but he looked into the faces of pitiless men. His hands were wrenched loose. "My God!" came from the lips of the falling man. These were the last words spoken by Omaha Charley. He fell eight feet and brought up with a heavy jerk. He never moved. His neck was broken by the fall. But as it is to make sure of their work, the mob threw him up five or six feet and let him fall back. They then quickly dispersed, and the swaying body of the dead man alone remained to tell of the dreadful deed.
It was some time before the officials were on hand. The body was finally cut down and an inquest held.

It Is in the Blood.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 9.—In the trial of James Heath for larceny today a most remarkable plea was made for defence. Heath is the son of a formerly wealthy and respected citizen of Louisville, and was arrested for stealing sealskin coats from a store. The plea is that he is a kleptomaniac, and was so developed by the peculiar circumstances of his birth and childhood. Heath's father testified that the boy was born on May 21, 1863, at Lexington. His mother was an intense rebel, and boarded in a family holding the same deep prejudices. She went through the city of Lexington begging for the soldiers and accepting anything from a postage stamp up. And thus it was that the unfortunate son was born in the midst of intense feeling and prejudice consequent upon a war which was then being ferociously waged. The mother had so worn herself down by mental excitement and labor for the southern soldiers that after the birth of her child she was unable to raise it. The doctors said that unless the child received milk from the breast it could not live. A colored wet-nurse was hired, and about the time the child was old enough to be weaned she was discovered to be an incorrigible thief. This had the child drawn with the life-giving fluid, the needs of a most deplorable disease. After the war Mr. Heath and his family removed to this city. James was then old enough to toddle around, and frequently accompanied the servants to the grocery. He invariably returned with something or other, fished from the grocer's stock. Thus the development and maturity of kleptomania were traced and it was shown that the boy's father was formerly in good circumstances, but had become impoverished in consequence of having attempted to keep his son's misfortune from the world by paying for the misdeeds committed by him in his weakness. The court refused to consider the question raised, but only held the prisoner for trial on nominal bail.
Returning to Europe.
On Saturday about 800 emigrants, mostly Scandinavians, returned to Europe on a visit to their friends and relations there. The reason of this substantial exodus was narrated by one of the party to a New York Sun reporter as follows: It is getting so now that we can afford to visit the old country every year if we want to. It used to be a very expensive trip. We could get to America pretty cheap, but it took a small fortune to get back. Finally the steamship companies reflected that it wasn't very profitable to go back with empty steerages, and then one of their employees conceived that it would be a good idea to send out agents in the west to get up excursion parties. The company tried it and it was a success, and now all the lines do it. We can go from Chicago to England, Ireland or Germany and return for less than $30 now, and many of us go every fall after our farm work is completed.

Lassoing a Bear.
John Aldridge and another young man were riding after stock a few days ago in the pine timber on the upper Deschutes, when they spied a large bear. Neither being armed, they decided at once to capture him if possible with their rapiers. The first throw was successful, Aldridge catching the bear by the hind leg. The other horseman was quite successful. The first throw he made his rope settled over the bear's head and tightened around his neck. Then the stretching began. In the struggle the bear, being a very large one, was about to drag the saddle from one of the horses, when Aldridge hastily swung around a tree, and securing his rope to it, hurried to his companion's aid. With his help brain was stretched until he choked to death. After removing the huge animal's entrails they were unable to lift him on a horse, and were therefore compelled to construct a kind of derrick, which they did by placing a strong pole through the forks of a tree, in order to lower their game.—Princeton, Or., Courier.

Time Works Wonders.
So does Brown's Iron Bitters, the true iron tonic and restorer of wasted constitutions. It is not a whiskey tippie. It is not a mere stimulant. It enters this blood and gives strength to weak constitutions. It renews disordered kidneys. It invigorates torpid livers. It establishes digestion and banishes headache. It scatters chronic rheumatism and drives out dyspepsia. Mr. D. L. Nickum, of Springfield, Ohio, writes: "Brown's Iron Bitters cured me of dyspepsia, nervousness, and wakefulness." Mrs. Isabella Smith, of Booksville, S. C., says: "I was plagued with chronic rheumatism and dyspepsia. Brown's Iron Bitters relieved me of both." One dollar a bottle.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites.
In Consumption and Wasting Diseases.—DR. C. W. BARRINGER, Pittsburgh, Pa., says: "I think your Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is a very fine preparation, and fills a long felt want. It is very useful in consumption and wasting diseases."
He is a foolish man who says, "It is just my luck," when something goes against him. Don't say, "I wish I lived in a world where there is no sorrow and no disappointment." It would be a pitiable world; it would mean intellectual and moral death. No wisdom or skill can keep us from trouble; or trouble is universal and inevitable. Universal under the government of God must be good.

Holiday Announcement
FROM THE
New York Novelty Store
TO THE PEOPLE OF
ASTORIA AND VICINITY
Owing to the unprecedented rush of business at our Store, we find it simply impossible to write a proper advertisement enumerating the various Novelties in the line of HOLIDAY GOODS we have on hand, all of which are being rapidly disposed of and selected from. The public evidently know where to get the BEST ARTICLES for the LEAST MONEY. It is a well-known fact that we undersell any establishment in Astoria; as our expenses are lighter than those of any other store in town.
We adhere strictly to our ONE PRICE SYSTEM, all our goods being marked in plain figures, and we will not ask you $10.00 for an article and afterward sell it to you for One Dollar, (as is frequently done elsewhere in Astoria.)
Bear in mind also, that we are the LEADING NEWS DEALERS of Astoria.
Call, examine our Goods and Prices and be convinced of the Truth of What We Say.
