No Fleetwood to-day.

C. W. Lurick's office has been moved to room 9, Kinney's brick block.

Tickets for the Christmas ball of the Knights at Griffin and Reed's.

Eleven ships in port at San Francisco are chartered to load wheat for Liverpool at 25 s.

Mr. Ike Bergman gives notice concerning a good bargain for a man with a little ready cash.

Read Prael Bros.' new adv't. They are enterprising young men and are deservedly popular.

It is still four days to Christmas. Let us hope that we may have some decent weather in that time.

Five feet of snow at The Dalles; two feet at Portland. A warm rain will flood the whole Columbia basin.

Several prominent Astorians who were detained in Portland and elsewhere by the storm, got home yesterday.

The stockholders of the Pacific Union Packing company will have their meeting at ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

The girls' dormitory at the Forest Grove Indian school was burned last Thursday. The children were all saved.

Considerable sickness is reported existing in the city. Such weather as that of last week is enough to make any one sick.

The delinquent tax sale of property in district No. One took place yesterday afternoon. The property was brought good prices.

Invitations are out for the ball to be given by Astoria Division No. One, Uniform Rank, K. of P., on Christmas night at Occident Hall.

The telephone superintendent has been busy repairing ever since the storm and expects to have the lines all in working order by to-morrow.

There will be a ball at Knappa Christmas night. Capt. Frank Grounds will leave with the Lilian at four o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The revenue cutter Oliver Wolcott is at San Francisco. Her upper works have been removed and she has a new boiler. She will return to Puget Sound.

The Oregon was to have sailed from Portland at midnight last night and will try to get to sea to-day. The Columbia is due from San Francisco to-morrow.

C. H. Cooper's new adv't is worthy of notice. Courteous treatment, advertising his goods and keeping a magnificent stock to choose from constitute the secret of his success.

The Nellie Boyd troupe was to have played here last evening, but rumor hath it that it was to pass in Albany. This has been a cold winter for theatrical troupes in this state.

According to the most reliable authority procurable winter begins here at twenty-five minutes past four this morning—Astoria time—and will continue 89 days, 0 hours and 56 minutes.

Pilots on vessels that arrived in yesterday report that the wind on Thursday blew the vessels 100 miles to sea. Fortunately the wind was directly off shore, occasioning only discomfort and delay.

There are but four miles of track to be laid on the Oregon Pacific to complete the road to Corvallis. A turn table for the road is under construction at Yaquina, and will be shipped to Corvallis as soon as the road is finished.

Hail, snow and sleet fell at intervals all day yesterday, and at nightfall it set in for a regular old-fashioned snow, but changed its mind and cleared off. The indications at present writing are that we will have some kind of weather by daylight.

The British bark Wm. D. Seed, 746, from Iquique, and Martha Fisher, 780 Buckingham master, 35 days from Talcahuano and the auxiliary Geo. S. Homer, 1171, Perry master, 30 days from Honolulu, arrived in yesterday. The Jessie Nickerson also arrived in.

The Congregational church choir will have a grand concert at Occident Hall to-morrow evening. It will be a musical event. The new piano recently purchased by Ross Bros. will be used, and also the organ for whose purchase the concert is given. The hall will be thoroughly warmed.

The Coos Bay has been withdrawn from the Yaquina bay and Columbia river route, and will hereafter run between the former place and San Francisco. By the withdrawal of the steamer from this route the trade of Yaquina bay, until the completion of the Oregon Pacific to Corvallis, will go to San Francisco.

The Reed came down from Kalama yesterday at 2 in the afternoon with delayed mail. Purser J. [illegible] heavy ice and slush in the river as far down as Gafton. The Thompson was at Hunter's Point, and it was thought that she might get down last night if rail connection was made with Portland. The telegraph has being down makes it impossible to tell what the situation is, but the boat hadn't arrived at half-past eleven last night.

The American ship Chesebrough was the scene of a scuffle yesterday that almost ended in a tragedy. The second mate has been trying to boss the carpenter, but the knight of the saw wouldn't be bossed. After considerable quarreling, the carpenter shot the second mate in the side, inflicting a painful but not dangerous wound. The second mate was taken to the hospital, and will probably let the carpenter alone after this. The carpenter had a hearing before Justice Goodell last evening and was acquitted.

The many friends and acquaintances of Paul D. Parker will hear with regret of his untimely death, which took place at half-past four yesterday afternoon. Deceased was a native of this city, the third son of Chas. L. Parker, and was in the nineteenth year of his age. He had been long suffering from consumption and in the early summer went to California for relief, returning about six weeks ago. He was a young man of considerable promise, and his death leaves a void in many a social circle. The funeral will be from the Presbyterian church at 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

SOME WIND.

C. B. Allen was in the city yesterday from the cape. We thought that there was some wind here Wednesday night, but it wasn't a circumstance to the breeze that blew at Cape Hancock the following evening. Mr. Allen says that on Thursday night the wind blew there at the rate of one hundred and four miles an hour. It blew straight from the east and made things hum. While we were having our big blow here the evening before there was comparatively little wind there, but when it did start in it played clear up to the limit. So the next time you read in the eastern paper about the wind blowing 100 miles an hour at the summit of Mt. Washington you can just see that 100 miles and raise it four, for the patent aneroid, hair trigger, self-adjusting wind gauge at the cape may be depended on for accuracy.

The books say that when the air is in motion at the rate of four miles an hour it is a "gentle breeze;" 15 miles, "brisk wind;" 45 miles, "very high wind;" 50 to 75 miles, "storm;" 60 to 65 miles, "great storm;" 70 to 85 miles, "hurricane;" 100 miles, "tornado." According to this there was something more than a tornado at Cape Hancock lighthouse on the night of December 18th, 1884.

A wind that blows 100 miles an hour moves at the rate of 8,800 feet a minute and exerts a pressure of 49.2 pounds to the square foot. Estimates of wind force in Colorado on the occasion of the upsetting of a locomotive that was standing on a track, were that the wind exerted a force of 41.8 pounds to the square foot. According to that if a locomotive were on Cape Hancock last Thursday night it would have been blown into the Pacific ocean.

NEW LIGHT-HOUSE STEAMER.

Captain Geo. T. Davis, light-house inspector of the Thirteenth district, has been interviewed by the Portland News. He says: I cannot tell whether there will be a new boat to replace the Shubrick in this light-house district. That is a matter which is optional with the secretary of the treasury. But there is one thing certain, and that is a better boat than the Shubrick is needed. There are five bars in the Thirteenth light-house district, which are under our jurisdiction, that have to be regularly crossed. They are Coos bay, Yaquina bay, Siuslaw, Columbia river and Tillamook. The service is considerably more dangerous than in the Twelfth district, from whence they propose to transfer the Manzanita, a vessel which is not at all suited for service in these northern waters. With the Shubrick going over the bars can only be done in the most favorable weather. We should have a vessel that would be able under any and all circumstances to replace a buoy. When a buoy is out of place it is a menace to navigation instead of an aid. Buoys become displaced frequently during gales, and there should be a steamer provided strong enough to replace these buoys in a gale of wind and on the roughest bars. Just think of it, there are fifteen light-houses and twenty-four stake lights, and a large number of buoys to be attended to. The Thirteenth district has under its jurisdiction the buoyage of all the navigable waters north of the California line. What is needed is a new and strong boat for this district, and the retirement of the Shubrick.

In the supreme court on the 15th, the case of Mary M. McCormack, complainant, vs. F. D. Winton, defendant, was argued and submitted.—Salem Statesman, 13.

The case of the British Columbia Packing Company vs. W. T. Coleman & Co. came up in the United States circuit court yesterday for hearing on a demurrer to the complaint. Raleigh Stott appeared for the plaintiff and C. W. Fulton of Astoria for the defendant. The matter was argued and submitted. The case was transferred from the state circuit court for Clatsop county.—Oregonian, 19th.

Talking about railroad connections and the present snow blockade, the Oregonian of the 19th says: The trouble is now between Bonneville and Hood river, where the snow is simply appalling. Those acquainted with the middle Columbia region know that the mountains on the Oregon side, between the upper and the lower Cascades, slope down almost to the water's edge. They can gain some idea of the extent of snow when it is stated that there is an unbroken slope of snow from the mountain top to the river bank at an angle of snow a mile high, the base resting on the railroad track. In some of the "throughs" cuts, the snow lies to a depth of twenty-five or thirty feet, and has to be backed out with plows or shoveled away; not only the snow now over the track, but that on the mountains, which falls into the "clearings" as fast as they are made.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY SALARY AND FEES.

Below is given the fees and salary of the district attorneys in this state under the existing law;

Salary per year	$800.00
For each day's attendance upon the circuit court	5.00
On a conviction, when the punishment is death or imprisonment for life	25.00
On conviction, when punishment is in the penitentiary for number of years	15.00
On conviction for misdemeanor	10.00
For prosecuting or defending civil action, when state is a party	25.00
For attending to divorce suits on the part of the state	10.00
For prosecuting or defending action or suit in the supreme court	20.00
On conviction in a criminal action, in justice's court	10.00
For conducting an examination before a magistrate	5.00

In addition to the above, says the Salem Talk, the district attorney is allowed, in a civil action, for the recovery of any fine, penalty, or forfeiture, ten per cent. of the amount recovered.

Each of the district attorneys makes from three to five thousand dollars per year out of the office. The salary was fixed when the state was sparsely settled, and not nearly so much to be made from the fees, for the reason that there was less criminal business at that time. The time has now arrived, by reason of the growth of the state and the accumulation of criminal business in the courts, when the fees are ample to compensate the district attorneys for their services, and the legislature ought to cut off, and save to the state the $1,800 now paid as salary to these officers. In order that no injustice should be done to the present officers who were elected with the understanding that they would be permitted to draw the salary, we think, perhaps, it would be only fair that the law should not go into effect until the next general election. As we stated in a former issue we believe that the best interests of the taxpayers of the several counties in this state would be attained by having a district attorney in each county of the state, as the constitution provides, and as is the case in our sister state, California, and other states. The fees, without the salary will be ample to secure the best talent in each county of the state, and the taxpayers would certainly be largely the gainers by having a home attorney to look after the criminal business and prevent a great deal of unnecessary expense, especially in our justice's courts.

TO THE END.

A child sat reading; her golden curls
Drooping low o'er the storied page—
Reading the tale with parted lips,
Of some wonderful by-gone age.
"Oh, Ned!" she cries, "what if my Knight
Should fall in this battle gory?"
"Don't fret," he shouted, "it will all come right,
I've read to the end of the story."

Sometimes at eve, as the night draws near,
That bringeth us certain woe,
Our souls gather comfort, we know not how,
We stop not to reason, or know.
An angel, mayhap, doth whisper anear,
As it points to some future glory,
"Fret not for the night, farther on gleams the light,
I've read to the end of the story!"
