 There is little activity in matters concerning salmon. Some trawls have been bought and there is a little knitting going on. From the amount of old web used last season it was thought that there would be considerable new net making this year, but so far there is very little. The making of cans, etc., has not yet begun.
 Fasten a nail or a key to a string and suspend it to your thumb and finger, and the nail will oscillate like a pendulum. Let some one place his open hand under the nail, and it will change to a circular motion. Then let a third person place his hand on your shoulder, and the nail becomes at once stationary. When he takes his hand away the nail or key will begin again.
 In the house at Salem last Thursday partly to relieve the tedium of the day Geer moved that a committee be appointed to report mileage allowance of members of the house. Bourne, as a joke, moved that the committee be instructed to make no allowance to those members who had accepted passes from the railroad companies. Veitch, and a few others who had evidently paid their fare, were in favor of the amended motion, but the whole matter was tabled, only nine members voting for it. The discussion made a lively breeze for a few minutes. Har's senate bill to fix the time for circuit court sessions in this judicial district, was reported from the judiciary committee, was amended so as to strike out the May term in this county, and was passed under suspension of the rules. The amendment was made at the request of the delegation from this county.
 THE HERBERT TRIAL.
 The trial of Chas. Herbert on the charge of killing Robert McDonald on the night of the 8th inst., began in the circuit court yesterday morning. At half past two a jury was secured, consisting of the following: R. Christy, F. Metcalf, G. A. Nelson, J. W. Walker, J. T. Lacy, G. Watson, A. H. Webber, H. Wood, J. C. Davis, Chas. Strauss, Jno. Rodgers and Louis Hartwig.
 Shortly after the plaster began falling from the ceiling in the grand jury room and the sheriff's office and the densely crowded court room was vacated in short order. The court adjourning to Liberty Hall, where an evening session was held.
 Martin Carlson was the first witness called by the prosecution. O. Benson was also summoned and gave testimony, after which Geo. The witness, J. A. Kepton, Dr. W. D. Baker, G. W. Recker, Sheriff Ross, H. Thomson, Jas. Turk and C. H. Stockton were respectively summoned on the stand.
 Liberty Hall was packed full, and the utmost interest was taken in the proceedings. It was somewhat dramatic when H. Thompson was put on the stand and he unrolled certain bundles containing what he swore were the dead man's clothes and the prosecution offered them in evidence. At nine o'clock a question arose as to the effect of the deposition made by Herbert, the point being whether a subsequent hope of his that he would recover would or would not vitiate the value of the deposition, which was argued until 10 o'clock, when the court directed Sheriff Ross to provide suitable sleeping accommodations for the jury and have them and the witnesses on hand to continue the case at nine o'clock this morning. The witnesses are kept separate and are not allowed to hear the testimony given by any of their number on the stand. By request of the court no report is made of the testimony given.

A PLEASANT AFTERNOON.
 A large number of ladies and gentlemen were present at the Friday afternoon exercises in Mrs. Martin's room in the Court street school yesterday afternoon. The main feature of the afternoon was a composition contest, which was admirably participated in by several members of the department. The idea was to write on the home, with all that that good old English word implies. The matter was fully elaborated, subjects pertaining to the home being divided among those who took part in the contest. For instance, one took the site, another, the building, a third, the furnishing, a fourth, the decorating, etc. Discussion of the subject embraced a wide field from the materials used in building the home to the manner of receiving company in the completed edifice. The compositions as read were of a high order of literary merit and evinced good taste and mature judgment than would be naturally expected in young heads.
 A committee consisting of Mrs. I. E. Parker, Mrs. A. C. Kinney and Mr. E. C. Holden after careful deliberation decided that the following were entitled to special mention: Miss Minnie Brodie—"Plain Cooking"—Miss Maud Saffarans—"The Kitchen and Dishwashing"—Miss Josie Bryce—"Hospitality in the House"—Miss Katie McKean—"Children"—Rose Clinton—"The Home"—The subjects were all practical ones and were well handled.
 An excellent composition on the subject of "Mending" was read by Miss Minnie Sherman and would have been specially noticed by the judges but for the fact that she is not now on the school roll. The reading of the essays was interspersed with short declamations and songs by the school, followed by remarks from the members of the committee, a source of encouragement to pupils and teachers to have interest manifested by the patrons of the school. In one sense such visits are an aid to the efficiency of the school and the teachers extend a cordial invitation to the citizens to visit the school, that they may lend the aid of their occasional presence to the work of educating the child, which is rightly the joint labor of parent and teacher.

THE CITY CHARTER AMENDMENTS.
 ASTORIA, Jan. 23, 1885.
 EDITOR ASTORIAN:
 It would seem from your editorial this morning that the members of the city council have forwarded a false statement to Salem—at least one that is calculated to create false impressions.
 The council say the bill of the chamber of commerce was not submitted to the people nor their representatives. The chamber of commerce has been in existence eight or ten years. It is composed of over forty members residents of Astoria, among whom is one member of the council. The council is composed of only six members. Which body, then, most fully represents the people of Astoria? In which body is there the greatest number of the people's representatives? Again, the chamber did not act within itself. On the suggestions of citizens through your paper and otherwise, it took up the consideration of amendments to the city charter for the purpose of promoting the peace, quiet and good government of the city; to lessen taxation so that capital could be induced to come to the city.
 The council met. A resolution was carried naming a number of persons to act upon a committee to propose amendments. A portion of those persons belonged to the chamber of commerce and the remainder were taken from the citizens who did not belong to the chamber. The proposed changes were offered and appeared in THE ASTORIAN next day. The committee met and made a report, those not members of the chamber taking part as well as the members of the city council. The report again appeared in THE ASTORIAN. The chamber again met, the report was read and by sections voted upon and adopted. A week or two thereafter the bill was engrossed and forwarded, while then appearing in full in THE ASTORIAN.
 On the other hand who knows what the six councilmen have been doing? Nothing has ever appeared in print as to what amendments they proposed and yet it would seem they have sent up a bran new charter.
 Do they propose to do away with the present one entirely? Ought not the people to know what it contains? Is it only necessary for six men to know what it is? Those men were chosen to conduct the affairs of the city under the present charter. What business have they to ask the legislature to change it? No such issue was made in the city election. As citizens we have the right to know of other citizens but they have no right to prostitute their office for such purposes.
 It would seem, Mr. Editor, from your article that the principal amendment is to enforce certain ordinances now on the city statute books which are unconstitutional, i. e., not in accordance with the provisions of the charter. Is it necessary to repeal the present charter and get up an entire new one in order to enforce some illegal ordinance?
 Why not ask for an enabling act to enforce those void ordinances and leave the charter alone? These councilmen were chosen to administer the city affairs under the present charter, not in violation of it. What right have they to pass illegal ordinances and then privately try to get the legislature to legalize them without the people knowing anything about it? Who outside of these select six know what ordinances are to be repealed by the amendments they propose? The powers of the council are so great now that they can rob the people and instead of being increased they should rather be curtailed. The amendment proposed by the chamber of commerce is not to take effect for one year, yet in that short time if the same city management as the past shall be carried on, property owners will be so nearly bankrupt that neither J. K. Wirt nor any other laboring man will be able to get a day's work in the city.
 Within the last year property in this city has depreciated fifty per cent and the bottom is not yet reached, unless the present speed down hill can be checked.
 NOT A COUNCILMAN.

REPRESENTATIVE LEINENWEBER'S VIEWS.
 In an interview with a representative of the Portland News last Thursday, on the matter of the mortgage tax law, Hon. C. Leinenweber said:
 "Whenever we legislate against money we retard general prosperity and prevent the interest of foreign capital in manufacturing enterprises, which are so much needed. It is clearly in the interest of our prosperity to encourage home manufacturing. We have the raw material to enable us to successfully compete with domestic and foreign imports. But unless our methods of taxation are such as to admit of foreign capital, we cannot reasonably look to the promotion of our home industries. I, myself, know of several branches of business each employing a large number of men. These need nothing but the foreign capital mentioned which would be obtained at a low rate of interest, were it not for the mortgage tax law. It is to be regretted that the present sectional feeling exists, in some degree, in the interests of the state since our interests are identical. Certainly nothing could further the farming interests more than by the building up of manufacturing. Every dollar earned would almost immediately be placed in circulation again. All farm produce sold and retained in the state. Whereas, if it has to be imported, it will always be subject to fluctuations. While there was just cause for complaint of the former manner of taxation, it cannot be denied that the mortgage tax law is a purely local and existing evil, since it went to the other extreme, without furnishing any corresponding benefit. Money is the medium of exchange, and whatever checks it by legislation, must be felt in all branches. Men with capital want to employ it, for without being employed it ceases to be remunerative. Where, I claim, that while unemployed, those will feel it the most are the laborers. Thereby deprived, it cuts off their daily support. Take any manufacturing city in any state, and you will find a prosperous and thriving community. Take the same city, and close the doors of the factories, and the first effect will be upon its operatives; next to its wholesale and retail business, the farmers, who supplies such a community, will also feel it immediately. He is told by the merchant and manufacturer that no more produce is wanted. The bill on assessment now before the legislature can be so framed as to prohibit the existing evil. An equitable assessment law, covering as nearly as possible that of 1882 and 1884, is also needed. For the above reasons I hope the mortgage tax law will be repealed in full."

Is It Not True?
 There can be no argument as to the qualities essential to a perfect remedy for the ill arising from a disordered or inactive condition of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels. Everyone will admit that it should be perfectly safe for old and young of both sexes, at any and all times; that it should be acceptable both to the taste and the stomach; that it should never fail to act promptly and thoroughly, yet painlessly, and it should give strength to those organs. It is now well known that Syrup of Figs possesses these qualities in a pre-eminent degree. W. E. Dement & Co. are agents for Astoria, Oregon.
