TIMBER LAND.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12, 1885.
Senator Dolph's bill amending the timber land act was to-day reported favorably from the committee on public lands. The measure is one of great importance to Oregon and Washington territory, and there is every promise that it will soon become a law. In reporting the bill back Mr. Dolph said:

"The act of June 3, 1878, for the sale of timber lands in the states of California, Oregon and Nevada, and in Washington territory was intended to authorize the sale of lands chiefly valuable for timber for commercial purposes. In the first section of the act the words 'and not fit for agriculture' occur. They were evidently put in the law for the purpose of excluding from the operation of the act lands which, although timbered lands, are of such a character as to be suitable for homesteads, and which may be profitably cleared and cultivated. The secretary of the interior has construed the law to mean that, if the lands when cleared of the standing timber and stumps would be fit for cultivation, they cannot be purchased under the act, and has suspended all entries of such lands. The result is that the law under this construction is useless and fails to accomplish the purpose for which it was intended to accomplish. All the land in western Oregon and in western Washington upon which valuable timber grows is good land and will, when cleared, if it ever is, of the timber and stumps, be suitable for agriculture. The natural wealth of western Oregon and Washington is largely in timber, and the timber will never be extensively cut down and burned to clear the land for agricultural purposes. In most cases the man who takes a pre-emption claim upon such lands intends to secure his title for the timber by an evasion of the law so far as cultivation is concerned. The settler who would make the necessary bona fide improvement upon a quarter section of this heavily timbered land, such as is sought for its timber, and should comply with the requirements of the homestead law, would prove a damage rather than a benefit to that portion of the county. The cost of clearing such land is at least $100 per acre, besides which the clearing would endanger the valuable timber upon public and private lands by the liability of the spreading of fires which are always set in the clearings during the dry season. Under the present ruling of the interior department the most valuable timber cannot be purchased under the act of June 3, 1878, provided the land could be cultivated after the timber is removed. To expect any one to make a home upon such land until the timber is removed for commercial purposes is idle. To allow parties to secure such heavily timbered land under any law upon the pretense that it is for a home is a farce. It is not taken for agricultural purposes and will not be. It should be sold as timber land. In western Washington it is stated that land can be purchased from private parties, from which the timber has been either cut or burnt off, for $1 per acre. The amendment proposed by the bill to the existing law is to strike out from the first section the words 'and not fit for agriculture,' and from the second section the equivalent words 'units for cultivation and' so that the land in the states and territory mentioned in the law, which is chiefly valuable for timber, and which, in its present state, is unfit for agricultural purposes and cannot be rendered fit for cultivation except by an outlay many times greater than the value of the land after it is cleared, can be sold for its timber, and the timber, instead of being wantonly destroyed for the purpose of clearing the land and made the means of wholesale destruction to the forests of the country, may be manufactured and made to add to the wealth of the country, and the lands by that process fitted for agricultural purposes, so that parties can purchase this land of the government for commercial purposes and not be compelled, if they secure it at all, to take it under the homestead and pre-emption laws, and in most cases to evade the law as to cultivation, to procure title."

READING BACKWARDS.
An interesting little volume, entitled "Shall We Read Backward?" has recently been published in London. The introduction of Mr. B. Carter gives much useful information on the subject of training the eyes from infancy in order to obtain the full benefit of perfectly developed sight. This is only possible by a judicious use of the eyes, which, however, does not consist in abstaining from work in which the eyes are used, "idleness of the eyes," according to one of Mr. Carter's former works, "being in every way hurtful to them." It is, therefore, necessary to develop the vision by that "proper and varied employment which is eminently conducive to their preservation in neatness and efficiency." How, then, can we arrive at the highest possible stage of the development without injuring the eyes? Reading is undoubtedly one of the commonest means, and "the most readable" print is that by which we may obtain the maximum of reading with the minimum of injury to the eyes. The experiments which have been tried by many eminent authorities to settle the question are various. Light and color are of course, two chief considerations, to which a good deal of attention is paid in the little book; another is the way in which the type is set. European nations print, as a rule, from left to right, but whether this is the most readable style is by no means certain. In ancient writings there is much variety in the way of writing. Among these, the Mongolian columnar style is not suitable for European languages, because of the varying length of words, as may be seen in the annexed illustration:

CHESTNUT HORSES THE MOST ACTIVE.
The Arabs of Sahara are very particular as to the color of their horses. White is the color for princes, but does not stand heat. The black brings good fortune, but fears rocky ground. The chestnut is the most active. If one tells you that he has seen a horse fly in the air, ask of what color it was; if he replies "chestnut," believe him. In a combat against a chestnut you must have a chestnut. The bay is the hardest and most sober. If one tells you a horse has leaped to the bottom of a precipice without hurting himself, ask of what color he was, and if he replies "bay," believe him. Ben Dyab, a renowned chief of the desert, happening one day to be pursued by Saad el Zenab, turned to his son and asked: "What horses are in front of the enemy?" "White horses," replied the son. "It is well; let us make for the sunny side and they will melt away like butter." Some time afterward Ben Dyab again turned to his son and said: "What horses are in front of the enemy?" "Black horses," cried his son. "It is well. Let us make for the stony ground and we shall have nothing to fear. They are the negroes of the Soudan, who cannot walk with bare feet upon the flints." He changed his course and the black horses were speedily distanced. A third time Ben Dyab asked: "And now what horses are in front of the enemy?" "Dark chestnuts and dark bays." "In that case," said Ben Dyab, "strike out, my children, strike out, and give your horses the heel, for these might perchance overtake us had we not given barley to ours all the summer through."

Postal Cards Will be Made no Longer!
That is because they are just long enough now, being exactly five inches long. Brown's Iron Bitters will not be made in any respect different from what it now is. Because experience has shown that it is exactly suited to the needs of sick people, and that it conquers dyspepsia and a whole lot of other troublesome complaints. Dr. N. S. Ruggles, Marion, Mass., says: "I recommend Brown's Iron Bitters as a valued tonic for enriching the blood and removing all dyspeptic symptoms."

Oh! the 2,739,928 people found in Paris at a recent census only 700,000 were born within the walls. The metropolis drains the smaller towns.
Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites.
For Bronchial Affections and Lung Troubles.—Dr. A. B. Poore, Cedar Rapids, Mich., says: "I have used your Emulsion for several years, in my practice and have always found it thoroughly reliable, pleasant to take, and most valuable for throat and lung troubles."
