A correspondent of the California Patron says: I think I have a cure for the "gopher evil" so prevalent in our neighborhood, and perhaps throughout the state. It is to poison raisins with strychnine, perfumed with oil of rhodium, and put into the main channel of the rodent. This perfume is attractive to all anima's and due care must be taken to get the fruit so well buried that hogs cannot root it out. This may apply equally as well to the muskrat nuisance which is so destructive to the dykes in this county.
