RUPERT'S LAND.

The Mysterious Island Sea Known as Lake Mistassini.

At the annual meeting of the Quebec geographical society, held on the 30th of January, a paper was read by Mr. Bignell, land surveyor, throwing additional light upon the mysterious island sea visited by him last summer in Rupert's Land, and known as Lake Mistassini. Fourn Bay or the most northwesterly of the two great arms into which the nearest portion of the lake is divided by a long narrow peninsula, is about three hundred miles from Lake St. John and the St. Lawrence. The only settlement of any kind found by him in the vicinity was the Hudson Bay company's post, a small station in charge of the factor or trader, William Miller, whose father accompanied one of the early expeditions sent in search of Sir John Franklin. The half dozen buildings comprising the station are surrounded by no stockade of any kind, a fact which speaks for the friendly disposition of the neighboring Indians. These are of the Montagnais tribe, who to the number of thirty-five or forty families, reside in the vicinity of the post and subsist upon the wild fowl and fish of the lake. In the autumn they leave for the woods on their annual hunting and trapping expeditions. They are reported to be tolerably free from crime, though an occasional murder occurs among them; but their habits are of the most filthy description. They are nominally Christian, and are visited once a year by a clergyman from Hudson Bay. They still hold, however, to a number of heathenish traditions, and their medicine men and magicians still exercise over them a very great control.

These Indians would appear, however, to be much less superstitious than some others whose camping grounds were seen by Mr. Bignell above Lake Shipshaw. There is another small lake near the last mentioned, for which some Indian tribes have the most profound veneration. On its shores the explorer found an Indian burying ground, in the shape of offerings to the departed dead, the skulls of bears, beavers, otters and caribou hung from the branches of the neighboring trees, and the graves of the dead warriors are strewn with relics of the chase, in the shape of the weapons, the canoes and paddles, and the clothing and even the tobacco and matches which belonged to them in life. One of the most remarkable features of this virtually unknown country is noted by Mr. Bignell in connection with the height of land already referred to by him, and which forms the boundary between the province of Quebec and Rupert's Land. Though, as mentioned above, it divides the rivers flowing south from those emptying themselves into Hudson Bay, it is nowhere more than six to eight feet in height, and sometimes much less. In fact Mr. Bignell found it at times more difficult to trace it at all, and it is said that one lake is so situated that it has two outlets, one toward the St. Lawrence, the other toward Hudson Bay.

The climate is reported less severe than the latitude of the lake would lead one to suppose. In 1883 the ice first took on the lake was on the 4th of November, but the main body was not frozen over until the middle of January. The ice broke up in 1884 on the 22d of May. The Indians of the vicinity have never known it to fail, and its use also prevented the pitting of the skin, which is frequently one of the most dreaded results of the disease. The ground is covered by what is known as the sub-arctic forest, consisting principally of canoe birch, or bouleau, tamarac, poplar, balsam and spruce, but no pine. There would appear to be little merchantable timber, most of the trees averaging seven to eight inches in diameter, though a few run to twenty-two inches. Mr. Bignell considers the soil well suited for agricultural purposes, and saw sufficient of it himself for the formation of at least a dozen parishes. The animals in the vicinity of the lake are the caribou, moose, bear, lynx, wolf, wolverine, otter, mink, weasel, hare, red, black, white, silver and cross foxes, and black bears of unusual size and ferocity.

No new light will be cast upon the actual extent and configuration of Lake Mistassini until the return of the expedition now engaged in its survey. Mr. Bignell ascended it for 120 miles without reaching the main body. Just as in the case of Lake Superior, however, the turbulence of its waves frequently gives warning twelve to fourteen hours in advance of approaching storms. In the opinion of Mr. Bignell, the immense body of water is an expansion of the Rupert river, just as the great American and Canadian lakes are of the St. Lawrence. - N. Y. Telegram.

LONDON, Feb. 19. - Mr. James Russell Lowell died at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

THE TEXAS PACIFIC FORFEITURE BILL.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. - Following is the text of the house bill, as amended and passed by the senate today, forfeiting lands granted to the construction of the Texas Pacific railroad:

Be it enacted, etc., That all lands granted to the Texas Pacific railroad company under act of congress entitled "An act to incorporate the Texas Pacific railroad company, and to aid in the construction of its road and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1871, and acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto, and all lands hereby declared forfeited, and the whole of said lands restored to the public domain and made subject to disposal under the laws of the United States, as though said grant had never been made; provided, that the price of lands so forfeited and restored shall be the same as heretofore fixed for such sections within said grant.

Sec. 2. That the act of March 3, 1875, entitled "An act for the relief of settlers within railroad limits," is hereby repealed.

The bill now goes back to the house for concurrence or non-concurrence in the senate amendments.

GERMANY IN THE PACIFIC.

LONDON, February 17. - The treaty under which Germany has established a protectorate over the Samoan or Navigator's islands was signed on the 10th of November last at Apia, which is the principal port of the island of Opoia and the capital of the Samoan group. The ostensible object of the treaty is to secure a good government for the islands. Germany is to administer the affairs of state and collect fees, fines and revenues from the labor of prisoners, which are to be used to defray the expenses of the administration.

Berlin, February 17. - The text of the German-Samoan treaty, is published. It provides for a council of state to consist of the German consul, two Samoans and German residents. A German officer will act as adviser to the king and judge all penal matters in which Germans are concerned. Prisons are to be erected for German offenders. The king will establish a police force for the protection of the German population, the expenses of which will be covered by fines and revenues from prison labor and taxes of Germans. Germany is allowed to give six months' notice of withdrawal from the agreement.

Schwatka's Explorations.

NEW YORK, February 18. - Lieut. Fred Schwatka described his exploration on the Yukon river, Alaska, in the summer of 1883, before the American Yacht club last night. He presented the club with an American flag which he had placed on the magnetic pole in the arctic regions during the search for the remains of Sir John Franklin. The yachtmen made Schwatka an honorary member of the club.

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 19. - Several votes were taken in joint legislative session today for United States senator. Each resulted: Logan 100, Morrison 94, Haines 4, scattering 3.

The Human Bellows.
The lungs furnish the air. They keep blowing, blowing, all day and night. Lungs must be sound if health is expected. When lung fever comes, there is danger. The Rev. A. W. Whitney, of Hingham, Wis., had lung fever and was laid aside from his pulpit and pastoral duties. He writes that after a long sickness he used Brown's Iron Bitters and gained strength and health.

Land is worth from $5 to $20 per acre, owing to the distance from town. Farm wages are from $20 to $30 per month, and work on the railroad is $2 per day, and $2.25 for men who understand rockwork, with board at 75 cents per day. - Kittitas Localizer.

My niece, states Mr. Charles T. Krebs, 737 Madison avenue, Baltimore, Maryland, "was speedily cured of severe hoarseness and sore throat by a few doses of Red Star Cough Cure. It is pleasant to take, and free from the bad effects of other cough preparations."

The secretary of the interior proposes to appoint a board of five visitors to each Indian school, to be composed of public-spirited citizens who will serve without compensation.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites.
Has all the virtues of these two most popular remedies. Made into a form that is very palatable and acceptable to the most sensitive stomach, and is without doubt, unequalled, as a combined food and remedy for lung troubles, and wasting conditions.

One of the New York papers recently used a quarter of a ton of ink in printing one day's edition.
