No trouble to show specimens to visitors. Street railroads pass the door every ten minutes, and this is the nearest gallery to the five principal hotels.

All in the Line of Nature.
 There is nothing in the line of magic or mystery about that wonderful and popular medicine, Parker's Tonic. It is simply the best and most scientific combination possible of the essential principles of those vegetable curatives which act powerfully and directly on the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood. But there is, nor will be, any successful imitation of it. It is all the time curing those who had despaired of ever getting well. For yourself, your wife and children.

THE MANAGEMENT OF DIPHTHERIA.
 There are many cases in which at first a skilled physician cannot say positively whether it is contagious diphtheria or a simple non-specific inflammation with which he has to deal, and this uncertainty may continue for a considerable time. If Dr. Jacob's views are correct, and he is certainly very high authority on this subject, diphtheria may exist, especially in the adult, in a chronic form, not greatly disturbing the health, or at all events not preventing the person so affected from going about and performing his or her usual duties, and yet making the secretions from such persons capable of conveying the disease.
 The precautions to be taken in the management of a well-marked case of diphtheria are, or should be generally known, they have been published as circulars by many health boards, and through the secular and medical press, and may be summed up as follows: Isolate the patient in an airy room having the least possible amount of furniture, and having no carpet or curtains. Disinfect all excretions and secretions, and especially those from the throat, nose and mouth, and all articles soiled from them, promptly, while they are yet moist, and thoroughly. Use clean, soft rags for receiving the discharges from the nose and mouth, and burn them as fast as soiled. If other articles are soiled, use solutions of chloride of zinc or bichloride of mercury, under the instruction of the physician.
 Be especially careful as regards toys, pencils, or other articles which may be given the child for its amusement, or the articles used in giving it food or drink. Everything that has touched the patient's lips, or that has been touched by anything that has touched the patient's lips is dangerous.
 When convalescence has set in do not yield to soon to the importunities of the patient to be allowed to see his friends or to go out, nor to your own feelings of weariness at the long-continued confinement. Above all things do not, under the excuse of giving change of air and scene, send him off to some other place to complete his recovery; you might send him to a more unhealthy country with scarcely more risk. Do not send the child back to school in less than six weeks after the attack; about two weeks after you are satisfied that he is entirely well is a very good rule.
 If the little life is not strong enough to withstand the attack, and is cut short, do not in your grief forget the danger to other lives which the house and its contents may yet cause. Do not allow sympathizing friends and playmates to enter, do not have any funeral ceremonies in the house; treat the sick-room and its contents as being dangerously infected.
 In mild and doubtful cases follow the plan above indicated as nearly as you can, and be sure that all your care and patience will be needed if you wish to obtain security for other members of the family and for friends.
 —Sanitary Engineer.

Survey Field Notes.
 The field notes of the public surveys in this territory, of every kind, that are destroyed when the surveyor's or general's office was burned in this city, September 12th, 1883, have been recopied from the records at Washington, and are now returned to the office here. They make sixty large volumes and cost an immense sum to prepare. Transcripts of the same can be obtained by applying at the surveyor-general's office. It is one of the regulations of that department that copies of all papers, documents, maps and records shall be sent to Washington as soon as possible after being filed or prepared in the local offices through the states and territories, and by this means losses similar to the one here can be made good in the course of time. The fact above noted will be good news to hundreds throughout the territory.

Gasstria.
 That is the medical term for a troublesome ailment of the stomach, which proceeds from indigestion, impoverished blood and other causes. Its name is bad, but the disease is not incurable. Brown's Iron Bitters will drive it out, by enriching the blood and toning up the nervous system and setting the stomach to rights. Mr. M. S. Miller, Steubenville, O., says, "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for stomach troubles and derived great benefit."
