CAMPAIGN LIAIS.
How They Keep Their Hands in by Advising Women to Go Into the Poultry Business.
Who can tell how long ago it was that the agricultural, political and religious press began to advise women to go into the poultry business? This advice comes in bunches, like asparagus. For a long time there will be none in the market, and then suddenly some editor will break out in rhapsodies over a lone widow who has kept seven hens through a hard winter on a pint of corn, sold $315 worth of eggs, paid off a mortgage on her little cottage, and sent her eldest through college. This story will have the run of the press for a season, and be printed from Dan to Beersheba, and from Maine to California. Then some other venerable liar, rusting away in an off political year, will reel off one or two articles about keeping hens, and the enormous profit. We do not deny that the money can be made out of poultry, but it requires the strong mental balance, and the most vigorous constitution to stand it, and it is a business peculiarly unfitted for women. Who has not seen a woman trying to chase a hen out of the flower-bed or garden, and who can deny that all womanly graces, all loveliness and all sweetness of temper disappear in the struggle, and how terrible are the passions aroused in the war of words when the poultry breaks into the sanctity of the neighbor's yard, and the neighbor comes to the back fence to hurl forth his indignation in gusts of rugged eloquence. Strong men have thoroughbred hen come flying over the fence, followed by a string of broken bricks and old tomato cans, and profanity longer than her pedigree, and realizing the terrible ordeal to be gone through with when the enraged neighbor got his second wind and came over the fence himself. Oh, no! the poultry business is no place for woman. Still about once in three months the press breaks out in a chorus of praise of this nefarious and soul-destroying traffic.

THE NEW WEST IN THE INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION.
The older states of the Union, and particularly such states as Pennsylvania and New York, are not making much of a figure at the world's fair in New Orleans. In fact, from Delaware north to Maine, these states have not taken any great interest in the exposition. The great state of New York makes a poor show, there being little to illustrate the vast resources of that wealthy and populous state. The interest of the exposition has turned largely on the contributions of the western states, Mexico, Central and South America. The sectional feeling has not quite died out. New Orleans is a long way off. It has a commercial importance, but very little manufacturing prominence. Beyond cotton and sugar it could not contribute anything of importance to the exposition. The northern states might have done vastly more than they have for this exposition. Just what the most important fact is that the new western states have kept the exposition from becoming a failure. California, Colorado, Oregon, the territories, and all the Western states have laid down at the exposition the choicest specimens of natural resources and developed wealth. They have saved the exposition and more. These states have less sectional feeling than either the extreme southern or extreme northern states. It may be premature to say that a sectional feeling has had a controlling influence in keeping back exhibits from such states as New York and Pennsylvania. Yet one cannot quite ignore the fact that these states, by the indifference shown, assert in a negative sort of a way that this is not their affair—that it is a southern demonstration which really does not much concern them. New York, for instance, ought to have led off in the number and variety of the articles exhibited. Pennsylvania ought to have gone quite beyond her huge lumps of coal and specimens of steel.

A Governorship for a Vote.
On joint ballot the Illinois legislature has elected one of the Democrats is E. M. Haines, father of J. C. Haines, Esq., of Seattle, the law partner of Hon. H. G. Struve, and who is a trafficking politician of the "independent" sort, whose vote is very precious to the Democratic party. Morrison is the Democratic candidate for senator, and Haines is refusing to vote for him. Now comes an incident that possesses interest for Washington territory. A Springfield dispatch says: "The other day Morrison met Haines and said to him: 'You have a son in Washington territory. He ought to be its governor. I can fix that for you if I am elected.' 'That will not do,' replied Haines. 'Carter Harrison made that promise a month ago.' 'It will be well for our Democratic brethren in Washington territory who want the office of governor (and their name is legion) to take notice that they are one and all likely to be traded out of it by eastern politicians. Observing this may break the force of their coming appointment.'—Shiloh's Calendar Remedy—a positive cure for Calarrh, Diphtheria, and Canker Mouth. Sold by W. E. Dement.

THE FORTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.
WASHINGTON, March 4.—During the two sessions of the forty-eighth congress there have been introduced in the house 8256 bills and 345 joint resolutions. The following named measures of general importance have been enacted into laws: Bills to establish a bureau of labor; to establish a bureau of animal industry; to prevent the spread of pleuro-pneumonia and other contagious diseases among domestic animals; to repeal the test act of 1852; to limit to three years the time in which prosecutions may be begun against persons for violation of internal revenue laws; to establish a bureau of navigation in the treasury department; to grant letter carriers at free delivery offices fifteen days leave of absence, with pay, in a year; to provide a retired list for soldiers and marines who have served continuously for thirty years or upward; to reduce the rate of postage on newspapers and other periodicals of the second class, when not sent by others than the publisher or news agent, to 1 cent for each four ounces; to remove certain burdens from the American merchant marine (the Dingley shipping bill); to provide civil government for Alaska; to prevent and punish counterfeiting in the United States of bonds or other securities of foreign governments; to extend the duration of the court of commissioners of Alabama claims; to make all public roads and highways post roads; to make it felony for any person to falsely personate an officer or employee of the United States acting under authority of the United States; to remove the charge of desertion from soldiers of the late war who, after having served faithfully until the close of the war, left their commands without leave; to provide for the location of a branch home for disabled volunteer soldiers of the Mexican war and the war of 1812, whose disabilities were not incurred in service against the United States; to reorganize the corps of judge advocates of the army; to declare forfeited certain lands granted to aid in the construction of a railroad and telegraph line from Portland to Astoria; to reorganize the inspector general department of the army; to provide for ascertainment of claims of American citizens for stipendium committed by the Freno prior to July 31, 1801, by referring them to a court of claims.

COWBOYS' BREAK.
When the N. P. overland train, which arrived here yesterday, reached Little Missouri, the other side of Helena, on Friday, it was stopped by cowboys, who were bent on having some fun as they called it. The cowboys were on a spree, and after dragging the train took possession of it with drawn pistols. They compelled the passengers, including ladies, to dance and stand on their heads, which command was speedily complied with to the best of the individual ability of the passengers. The conductor in charge of the train, however, refused to mar his dignity by attempting to dance when he didn't know how, and the cowboys shot all around his feet to make him try. But he was defiant and refused, taking desperate chances as to the consequence. One or two balls were sent through his feet, badly wounding them. The train and depot were riddled with bullets, but no other damage was done other than to the conductor. No attempt was made to rob the passengers. Robbery was not the purpose of the attack apparently. The cowboys, after their little diversion, allowed the train to proceed. They numbered over a hundred, and it would be a hard matter to attempt to arrest any of them. It would be extremely hazardous for any officer with a fee in sight, to undertake to serve a warrant. The cowboys are starting out on the road up and want to have a good time to commence with.—Standard.

Your Good Wife, Sir.
The best treasure a man can possess is a good wife. He who has such a treasure ought to do his very best to keep her in perfect health. Invalid ladies are sometimes great sufferers. Worry and overwork perform marvels of mischief for most American women. Brown's Iron Bitters works wonders of renovation for the pale, the languid, and the debilitated. Mrs. Lulu Weston, 191 Market street, Indianapolis, says, "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for general debility and weakness, and am entirely cured."
There is now en route to this sound, a vessel which will load with spars, square timber and lumber for Norway. This will be the first cargo ever shipped to that country from this region. It must appear from this that the Norwegian forests, with timber similar to our own, and for which she was famous even in the works of Milton, are being stripped and denuded, and thus a new market has been opened for our bountiful supply here.—Tacoma Ledger.
