The transfer of the inspectorship of light houses of the Oregon district from Astoria to Portland would seem to indi-cate that the Portland collector of customs would be allowed to retain his place for some time. It is not clear what other meaning can be attached to the change, nor is it clear what practical good can re-sult from the new order as Astoria is manifestly the proper place in which to perform the duties of the office. The delay in notifying Register Barin of the forfeiture of the Astoria land grant justifies the suspicion that some shenanigan is going on. The president signed the forfeiture bill February 3rd, and as yet no official notification has been received out here. Can it be that Teller the corporation secretary of the interior tried to do on a small scale what he succseded in doing on a large scale in the case of the backbone grant? It looks very shaky. The six months given settlers dates from the forfeiture and if there is any holding back it will be bad for the perpetrators, for they will most surely be found out.

The late Charles Chitberg, of Seattle did not leave a will. He carried a life insurance policy of $5,000, which will go airs that interior towns have put on over the possession of a ghost, and we want those Willamette folks to understand that there is a genuine ghost and a real haunted house in this place.

There has been a case before Justice been a source of interest to a few who

It appears that on the Nekanikum, about twenty-five miles from here, two men, B. Burke and Victor Hansen, have adjoining claims. Hansen swore out a warrant against Burke for alleged threats and violence, and Constable Beasley went out to arrest him, this being the nearest justice precinct where the last elected justice of the peace had qualified. Beasley got to Burke's house at 6 o'clock Saturday morning and had considerable difficulty in coaxing him to come along, he finally having to insist and enforce the warrant by a display of arms as a stand-off to Burke's declaration that he wouldn't go and couldn't be made go.

F. D. Winton appeared for Hansen and J. A. Gill for Burke, and the evidence fills sundry folios. It ended in most elaborate legal argument at the close of which out to arrest him, this being the neares legal argument at the close of which Justice Goodell held Mr. Burke in the Justice Goodell held Mr. Burke in the sum of $500 to keep the peace. He fur-nished bonds for the amount and left for home with his ideas considerably modi-fied regarding the ability of an Astoria constable to bring what he went after.

A General European War Probable!

Complicating the Prominent Foreign Governments.

Making a Great Demand for Canned Salmon and all other Products of the United States.

The latest dispatches indicate a general war in the near future, in Russia, India, Egypt, China, and all other parts of Europe, complicating England, Russia, France, Germany, Austria, China and other monarchies, which effect on the products of the United States, will advance them greatly in price, especially canned salmon and all other meats. Fresh meats cannot be transported and kept in the desert and arid countries.

With the advance of salmon fishermen of the Columbia river will be greatly benefitted, especially if they purchase their Gum Boots, Oil Clothing, Shirts etc., at C. H. Cooper's, who is selling the best brands in the market as low as is often charged for inferior goods. He carries the genuine Boston Boot, made with the patent stand loops, adjustable strap, improved knee patch, and has equaled or excelled any gum boots manufactured, which also comes in pure gum. Mr. Cooper also carries one of the best brands of Cape Ann Oil Coats, Pants, Aprons, Sleeves, etc. The best brand he carries are absolutely waterproof and very durable, having a waterproof coating that will not become sticky or peel off; the buttons are metallic and securely lastened by an ingenious wire fastening. Fishermen before purchasing such goods, Llamas (blanket over-shirts), underwear, clothing, and all other kinds of men's goods should see Cooper's and get prices before purchasing, as these goods are first class and cheaper than in all former years. Cooper also has the genuine Grain Leather Waterproof long legged fishing boots at his store, in the Pythian Building, Astoria, Oregon.
