A Floating Breakwater

A new form of floating iron breakwater is to be placed as an experi-ment at Eastbourne, England. Its general nature is somewhat like this: Two rows of iron pontons filled with cork or otherwise constructed inter-nally to remain buoyant when injured by collision or by acts of war are run out to sea in parallel lines. The front facing the expected storm stress is wedge shaped, so as by dividing the mass of projected water to lessen the force of the impact and cause part of the water to ascend in a column dred each. Cranberry flats abound and are very productive of natural berries. The agency is managed by Capt. Willoughby. The population, 370 Indians, live in small villages at the mouth of the Quineault, the Queets and the Quileute rivers, from which they obtain their chief support. Some of them are quite advanced, but by far the greater number are poor, degraded to the last degree, living on boiled or roasted roots and dried salmon eggs. Their cabins are dilapi-dated and without furniture. The chool contains 24 children who are quite advanced in ordinary education. Nearly all the young children die and the health of the adults is by no means rugged, being as elsewhere scrofu-lous and fall an easy prey to con-

Mr. Davies Murdoch, 35 W. Biddle St., Baltimore, Maryland, says: I had a most severe attack of cold and cough, accompanied by irritation of the throat and hoarseness. I was advised to try Red Star Cough Cure, and did so. Three or four doses at night gave prompt relief and cured me. I recommend it.

The newspaper humorist has his own peculiar trials. His best para-graphs are unnoticed until some piratical sheet prints them as original matter. Then they are copied from Dan to Beersheba, the pirate receiving credit when credit is given.

How He Got a Position.

"I applied for a position in a banking house in Wall street six months ago, and although I proved my competency, they would not take me. I had been down on my luck and looked old and shabby. An idea struck me I got up a new growth of hair with Parker's Hair Balsam, raised a decent suit of clothes, applied again, and they took me in a minute." So writes a clerk with $2,000 salary. The moral is plain. Parker's Hair Balsam gives a person a new face salary. The moral is plain. Parker's Hair Balsam gives a person a new face

A Work of Art.

A Work of Art.

One of the neatest and most elaborately finished Writing Desks ever seen on this coast can be seen on exhibition in the window of the eigar slore, n-xt to Foster's Exchange, on Water street in this city. The desk was made by Mr. C. Constantine of this city and certainty reflects great credit on the skill, taste and workmanship of the manufacturer. The desk is about fifty-two inches high by two feet in width and is made out of various woods such as oak, asi, butternut, wainut and white holly; they were first sawed out in pieces and so cut in beautiful designs as to resemble fine bracket work. The top or cover of the desk is inlaid with cardinal and blue velvet. At the back on either side of a square recess are two handsomely carved apartments with folding doors. In the desk part are a number of pigeon holes for papers, envelopes, etc., this is surmounted with beautiful bracket work, and on the top of each side is a white door, handsomely carved; underneath is a semicircle, also carved in rich designs, inhald with gilt work. The sides are initial with crimson velvet, the bracket work being laid over it in different kinds of rich woods, the whole being surmounted with gold mouldings. A brief description of this wonderful invention conveys up idea of its elegance and fluish, one must seet to appreciate it. The desk will be raffled off and persons desirous of procuring a handsome and useful ornament for the home office should not lose the opportunity to take a chance, Mr. Constantine can be found at the store any time to show those desirous of seeing the desk.
