"MAJOR" ANNIE JONES.

A Gallant Girl who Fought with Stahel and Custer.

[From the Boston Budget.]

One of the personages about Washington during the war was Annie Jones, who originally professed to have ran away from a boarding-school in Boston to "follow the drum," and who attached herself to the headquarters of Gen. Stahel, the commander of a German brigade. A flippant talker, she ingratiated herself into the favor of the general, and received an honorary appointment as a member of his staff, and as "Major Jones," became an institution in the army. She ate with the general, drank with the general, rode with the general on all of his hazardous forays, chatted with the general, nursed the general when he was sick, fought the general's battles when she heard him aspersed by jealous undercrappers, and when night drew the starry flag over the heavens, she slept with her beloved colonel and in the next little tent, which the general had assigned her. She thus lived and flourished. Her orders were wont to be obeyed, because she was recognized as a staff officer. She always had the counter-sign, and could pass the pickets at pleasure. She was said to be a girl of great dash and daring, and would frequently venture out beyond the outposts and for days watch the movements of the enemy, and bring in whole budgets of information from the rebel camps, as proof of her stewardship and shrewdness. Every one knew Maj. Jones; officers would doff their hats and raise their swords and stand at full "present" as she rode by in military feminine dignity. The visiting officers from other commands were introduced to Annie, and admired her, and she reigned supreme as the she-major of cavalry.

When Gen. Hooker marched into Maryland and Stahel was relieved, Maj. Annie joined her fortunes with the young and gallant Custer, with whom she remained, retaining her rank and title, until a general order from army headquarters rendered it necessary for him to dispense with her valuable services, and the major was compelled to search for a field of usefulness elsewhere. For a few days she wandered about the camp, having no particular abiding place or continuing city, until Col. Sharpe, then acting provost-marshal general, thought the interests of the service required that she should be removed to Washington. Accordingly a pass was granted her to travel as far as the military railroad would carry her, and a sergeant of the 93d New York was detailed to accompany her, to guard against any accident on the way. Arriving at Washington, she stopped at the Kirkwood house, where she sometimes appeared in staff uniform, and then in fashionable female attire. It was believed that she was a Confederate spy in the Union secret service.

Another devoted friend of the Confederates, who resided just outside of the Union lines in Virginia, managed to fascinate Gen. Stoughton, a young West Pointer, and one evening, while he was serenading her, he, with his band of comrades, were surprised, and sent as prisoners of war to Richmond. "I don't mind losing the brigadier, for they are easily made," said Mr. Lincoln, in talking about the capture, "but there were twenty horses taken which cost $125 each."

For a sprain in his ankle, says Mr. H. W. Johnson, of the Detroit, Mich. Bronze Co., he used St. Jacobs Oil and it cured him. He used it in a number of cases. Once both legs were caught in between cars, severely bruising them. These injuries were also relieved by it.

Kind words prevent a good deal of that perverseness which rough and imperious usage often produce in generous minds.—Locke.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites.

In Pulmonary Affections and Scrofulous Diseases.—Dr. IRA M. LANG, New York, says: "I have prescribed Scott's Emulsion and used it in my family and am greatly pleased with it. I have found it very serviceable in Scrofulous diseases and Pulmonary affections."

A beauty without wit seems to me to resemble a bait without any hook in it.—Disraeli.
