The Chicago Lumberman says: In our numerous Michigan exchanges we see frequent allusions to men in that state numerons Michigan exchanges we see frequent allusions to men in that state who have gone, or are about to go, to Washington Territory on prospecting tours. The larger number of these indi-viduals have been, or are now, interested in the lumber business in Michigan. They are now seeking the Pacific coast in search of new fields of operation, at-tracted by the accounts they see in this journal and elsewhere of the magnificent fir end cedar growths of the Paget sound region, or the valleys of the Chebalis and the Columbia. Men who have spent the best portion of their lives in pine log-ging and lumber manufacture in Mich-igan, and have grown more or less wealthy in their operations, are now blooking for new opportunities for their sons. Within a year we have observed a considerable increase in the number of Michigan men who have prospected in Weaking and the provider of a counta?" counts? "What real estate do you own?" What other means have you?" "What do you owe for merchandise?" etc., etc. They omitted to ask what we had for breakfast and what is the name of our oldest boy, but appear to have got in pretty near everything else. They are perfectly polite about it and say "we shall be glad to receive as full answers as you care to send us." Now these men are doing this to make Michigan men who have prospected in Washington Territory, a number of whom have become interested in mill plants. The movement toward the Pacific coast is bound to increase.

Ross' new opera house is now giving some hint of what it will look like when completed. Work on the seats has begun and the plasterers have began work. The building will be ready for occupancy June 1st.
A Victoria dispatch of the 5th says:one-third of these questions and take the chances of being fired out of the window -the door being out of repair! A tremendous splashing in one of the fish traps near Ilwaco attracted the attention of men along the shore last Tuesday evening. Hastening to the trap they found one of the biggest sea lions ever seen in the Columbia river. Procuring rifles they fired at him. The first shot enraged the monster and he started in killing all the big salmon in the trap.

killing all the big salmon in the trap. So enraged was the phoca that he tore the fish to pieces, and not till seven balls had pierced him did the shaggy monster give up the ghost. He was landed on the Argonaut and on the arrival of that ves-sel at Astoria yesterday morning he at-tracted considerable attention as he weighed between 800 and 900 pounds, and was "nearly as big as a cow." The Argo-naut took the huge carcass up to Clifton yesterday afternoon.

WANT TO KNOW.

People talk of the persistence of a newspaper man and how he will hang to you to get "an item," and ask you all sorts of questions about your business and altogether show an unwarrantable impertinence in sticking his nose into other people's business. It must be confessed that such is often the case, but it must be remembered that the reporter as far as he is personally concerned doesn't care a continental whether a man is worth §70,000 or ten cents; doesn't care whether this man's wife skipped to San Francisco, or that man paid his note, or the other man is going to be sued; purely as a matter of business it is his institues the other man is going to be shed, purely as a matter of business it is his business to find out those things; "that's what he is there for," and however disagreeable it may be to him he has to fiy around and interview and get "the bottom facts" and see that they are put in a shape that cannot be contradicted.
