To-night.
 The ladies' fair and bazaar at Liberty hall.
 Election of officers at Astor Lodge to-night.
 Just the weather to enjoy skating at Ross' opera house.
 The Opheleia, Hullo, Lizzie Bell and Britannia have arrived out.
 The fines and forfeitures in the police court for April amounted to $144.
 The State arrived in and the Oregon sailed yesterday at an early hour.
 "Goli," Apponyi, who was on deck here about a year ago, is running a variety theater in Victoria.
 Capt. George M. Davis went down to anchor on the Shubrick yesterday bound for Tillamook.
 "Robert's rules" were adopted as parliamentary rulings to be observed in the deliberations of the city council some time ago.
 There's one thing to be admired about Gen Grant—he never went back on his friends. It is a good trait in any man's character to stand by his friend.
 The new steamer Multnomah got on the rocks in the Willamette near Oswego last Monday. Her boiler got her off without being badly damaged.
 The Canby minstrels will have a grand performance at the Fort Canby theater on the evening of June 5th, 1885. Prominent on the program is the wonderful entertainment of the Spanish wizards.
 The British bark Archer has been chartered by Sibson, Church & Co., to load for London, direct. She will take salmon here, beginning about the 1st prox. A. W. Barry is the Astoria agent.
 The ladies and gentlemen of the tournament committee are working hard to make the fair and bazaar which begins this evening, a grand success. Substantial encouragement on the part of everyone, is no more than their due.
 Capt. Chas. F. Powell and Lieut. Barr, who had been down on the Tom Morris inspecting the government work at Fort Stevens, went up on the State yesterday with Col. Mendell, who arrived from California on a general supervisory tour.
 The Independent Order of Chosen Friends of the Pacific coast, a mutual life insurance and fraternal organization, has changed its name to the United Friends of the Pacific coast, by action of the grand council now in session at San Francisco.
 Don't forget that at Liberty hall this evening you can, at any time from 6:30 to 8:30, get a splendid dinner served by the ladies of the tournament committee. Now, don't bother about dinner at home, but just take the young folks and get dinner at the hall.
 A San Francisco special to the Oregonian, says: At this time last year 60,000 cases of salmon had been packed on the Sacramento river. This year to date only 8,000 cases of salmon have been packed, owing to the extremely small run of fish. The season is very disappointing to canners and fishermen.
 The O. R. & N. Co. loses its mail contract from San Francisco—a little matter of $22,000 a year. A little effort could have made different results, but it seemed so busy discriminating against Astoria that possibly it now begins to find out that "curses, like chickens, come home to roost." Mr. Byrne will have to cut down still more now to make up that little $22,000. He might discharge the waters on the river boats and make the deck hands and rouabouts hand around the winds.
 The report is current that Frank M. Gray, of the Harrington Times, was robbed of the accumulated earnings of four years of journalism—$2,115, one night recently by a burglar. It is strange, says the Dallas Times-Messenger, that a gentleman of Mr. Gray's foresight and business judgment would keep such a princely sum where thieves could "break through and steal." He should have invested it in government bonds, placed it in a national bank, or, if he was sufficiently enterprising and energetic, built a standard gauge road connecting Harrington with the Northern Pacific. A money hoarder will always come to grief.
 By every canner there is a heap of scrap tin that represents considerable loss to the canners, especially as they have to pay duty on it. There is a rebate allowed on all the imported tin that goes back again in the shape of cans. Some time ago C. P. Uphar wrote to Hugh McCulloch, secretary of the treasury, and subsequently to Gen. Fairchild, and after considerable correspondence on the subject, has succeeded in getting a concession to the effect that hereafter the canners will be allowed a rebate on the scrap tin also, the intent being that any tin not put into practical use and retained in the country shall be entitled to the rebate heretofore allowed to that tin exported again. The result is a direct saving of some $11 on each thousand cases packed; not a very extensive matter, but yet a trifle that might as well be saved to the canners as not.

Notice, Drill A. B. & L. Co. No. 1.
 All members intending to take part in the company contest at the coming tournament are requested to meet at the truck-room at 7:30 sharp this Wednesday evening, May 27th.

The Villard Palace
 As I walked up Fifth avenue last Sunday observed on the Villard block a handbill saying: "These houses for sale." It then occurred to me that Mr. Villard had not built houses adapted to New York. He had put up his house on Madison avenue in the rear of the cathedral, and they were unusually ugly houses for this city, which believes in a certain Parisian refinement and pertness of exterior. Villard's block is three sides of a square and each of the houses composing it is enormously large, almost perfectly plain though built of stone, and with windows which seem very small in our country for such houses. There are no bays nor points of architecture, and the whole concerns looks something like a boarding school for young women, or a library, or possibly the palace of some German prince.—Gath.

The O. R. & N. Lease.
 The Wall street Daily News says: Parties acquainted with the status of the negotiations for the lease of the Oregon Navigation Co. say that the terms, 5 per cent. for three years and 6 per cent. thereafter, have been practically agreed upon; but several important matters remain to be fixed before the lease can be effected.

 Secretary Manning has made arrangements to meet a number of representatives bankers this week for a conference on monetary affairs. He has already stated it as his opinion that at least $100,000,000 in gold should be kept in the treasury as a reserve fund for the resumption of legal tender notes.
 The Russian minister at Washington has asked the Russian government what reply to give to the numerous offers of American Irishmen to join the Russian colors in the event of England and officers, doctors, pilots, torpedo divers and commanders of cruisers. Several Irishmen have offered to furnish privateers and torpedo boats to the Russian fleet. American shipowners have declared their readiness to man a small war fleet and volunteer for Russian service.

SEATTLE KICKING ALSO.
 "Seattle has reared back upon her hind legs and howled about the discrimination and oppression of the Northern Pacific railroad, a line which never entered the city, and not a pipe have I heard about a company upon which we largely depend for all of our transportation facilities. I mean the Oregon Railway and Navigation company. That corporation has and is practicing the worst kind of discrimination upon the city of Seattle. Don't you know that they haul freight cheaper from Tacoma to-day to any lower Sound point than from Seattle? Don't you know that if a Seattle merchant wants to ship goods to Westminister they charge him $5 a ton freight, and yet will take the same freight from Portland, over 140 miles of railroad, land it upon the same steamboat and deliver it at Westminister for $4 per ton? I know a wholesale merchant in Seattle, who received an order from Westminister house, and sent it to Portland to be filled, in order to save $1 a ton freight. Talk about oppression by the Northern Pacific! I will be glad to see it secure a lease of the O. R. & N."—Indignant Subscriber to Chronicle.

BOYNTON'S EXPERIMENT.
 Putting Torpedoes Under the Garnet—"Don't Shoot."
 Capt. Paul Boynton, the expert swimmer, tried the hazardous experiment of placing a torpedo against the English man-of-war Garnet in New York harbor recently without the knowledge of those on board the vessel. The captain's object was to show that in case of war even those ships guarded by torpedo nets would not be free from danger. He donned his swimming suit at Staten Island, and after rowing out a short distance toward the Garnet, dropped into the water. He had in tow a torpedo of the usual pattern about two feet long, with clock work at one end so arranged as to set it off five minutes after the machine was started. It was loaded with small stones instead of powder. When he neared the vessel he allowed himself to sink so as to be seen by the watch on shipboard, and also to find out whether torpedo nets were hung around the vessel. He swam under the Garnet and examined her bottom and then, satisfied there was no danger from net work, drifted up to the anchor chains at the starboard side.
 As he attacked the torpedo to the cradle he could hear the voices of sailors on board and the steady tread of the guard. Not a soul in the Garnet, however, knew anything of his movements until he began to swim away. He indignantly used his paddle, and the guard heard him. He ran to the side of the ship and shouted for the captain to stop or he would fire. There's a torpedo at your heels," the captain shouted, in reply then sank out of sight. He kept under the water until he was far away. The whistle of the Garnet's boatswain sounded and all hands were called out and half a hundred lights streamed on from the man-of-war. The lowering of some kind of craft could be seen by those in the row boat, and they began to fear they had got themselves into more serious trouble than was expected. Boynton climbed into the boat. But as he did so a steam launch manned with officers and sailors of the Garnet caught up with them. "Don't shoot," shouted Boynton's party, and a boat and a man were sent to fetch a sabre and held it at the captain's breast. "It's all an experiment gentlemen," said the captain. "I put a novel explosive torpedo at the bow of your vessel and it is here now. I'll surrender if you want me to."
 After further explanation the Garnet's officers were convinced that no wrong was intended and allowed Capt. Boynton to return to the shore. He was before reaching it they turned back to make further explanations to the Englishman. As they drew near the Garnet, however, and spoke to the guard they said they were to return to the shore further we will fire." The tide brought them nearer the vessel and a volley of blank cartridges were fired at them. They then decided to row away.
