

The Daily Astorian. ASTORIA, OREGON: THURSDAY, MAY 28, 1885. HUMANITY AND THE TRAMP.

A newspaper reporter the other day giving an account of the death of an unknown man who had been run over by the cars, closed the account with the remark "he was only a tramp." The remark may have been true in that particular case, but the expression is being tossed about too easily to be consistent with the humane and altruistic virtues.

The world at large has no sympathy for the tramp and this is as it should be. The professional hummer and vagabond should not be recognized by respectable people. To feed great louts and loafers is to encourage them in their idle and dissolute ways.

Mr. George Augustus Sala, an eminent English journalist, wants to form an association for the protection of the English language. He thinks the slang that has crept, and is creeping into the language, is spoiling it.

Well, there is a good deal to be said on Mr. Sala's side of the question. But there is considerable to say on the other side. Slang never gets into any standard literary work.
