Notice To Advertisers.
THE ASTORIAN guarantees to its advertisers the largest circulation of any newspaper published on the Columbia river.
This paper is on file at the St. Charles Hotel, Portland, Or.
The Martha Fisher has arrived out. Judge Bellinger arrived down from Portland yesterday.
Last night of the fair and bazaar for the tournament fund.
Next in order will be the "vigil of life" open air concert, commencing.
The Mary D. Hume has been added to the river parties for $250.00.
J. W. Clements, county clerk of Washington county, W. T., was in the city yesterday.
The Iowa editors, 175 in number, are expected in Portland on June 15th and in Astoria June 17th.
It was reported last evening that the Portland postmaster had been captured by Tony Noltner.
Hon. D. P. Mason, grand master A. F. & A. M., arrived down yesterday, and last evening paid Temple Lodge No. 7 an official visit.
John Rutter will rebuild the hall and cabin on the General Canby. The Astoria Iron Works have the contract for rebuilding the machinery.
A fine dinner this evening at Liberty hall from 5:30 to 8:30. The dinner is well worth the half dollar charged. Better go than wish you had.
The American Flag canning company, is the latest incorporated packing company. M. J. Anderson, W. L. Robb and Mrs. Eliza Hume are the incorporators.
Strawberries, currants and cherries of splendid quality and at low prices fill the market. There is a hint of blackberries, but they will be held at fancy prices for some time yet.
Word came from Kappa last evening of the drowning at that place yesterday of a young man named McLeod, lately from Nova Scotia. No particulars of the accident were received.
The Elmo lodging house and restaurant, J. N. Hamilton proprietor, opens today. It is well situated on No. 67, Water street, for regular and transient custom and merits a share of the popular patronage.
The census of Seattle shows that city has a population of 9,786. The census-taker's figures are cutting down urban estimates all over the northwest, but who'd a thought that Seattle had twice as many inhabitants as Astoria!
It is rumored that the present county superintendent of public instruction, Mr. J. E. Higgins, will resign his position to the county commissioners next week. The county will be fortunate if it secures as able a superintendent in Mr. Higgins' successor.
Don't forget that at Liberty hall this evening you can see the time from 5:30 to 8:30, get a splendid dinner served by the ladies of the tournament committee. Now, don't bother about dinner at home, but just take the young folks and get dinner at the hall.
The Shubrick effected a landing at Tillamook rock yesterday and put off some heavy iron work at the new bridge for the lighthouse. While lying at the rock some of the party got some grouper and four halibut, one of the latter weighing sixty pounds. The Shubrick arrived in last evening and will take out the remainder of the bridge to-morrow.
The trial of the seven men arrested at upper Astoria on the 15th inst., began yesterday, a jury being impaneled consisting of the following: George Harman, C. W. Hamilton, P. H. Fox, A. C. West, Robert Abbott, Chas. Stahl, Jacob Stare, G. W. Wood, Dave Kindred, Peter Larsen, Dudley Blunt, E. Warmstaff. The case will be resumed this morning.
Round trip tickets to Portland and return by the steamer Telephone at $2.50 each can be procured of the agent at Wilson & Fisher's dock, or on board the boat. These tickets will be good for up trip on Friday, May 26th, and return on Sunday, the 28th, and are issued to accommodate those who desire to attend memorial exercises at Portland or Vancouver.
He has come. It took him sometime to show up but he has arrived. His name is M. D. Whitehall; he is seventy-nine years old; he walked 100 miles near West coast one day recently. He can make 1000 shingles a day. Now, then, where's that old lady that sewed 27,000 scraps in a crazy quilt since last November without glasses. These stories are overdue and cannot be noticed after June 1st.
A recent invention has facilitated firing practice with big guns, both on shore and in forts or elsewhere on shore and is being rapidly turned to good account. A plug or tonpin is pushed in the muzzle of the gun, and into this is screwed the barrel of a small-bore rifle, accurately adjusted upon the same axis. The rifle barrel only is loaded, and the big gun is sighted and laid upon the target, when a pull of the lanyard fires the shell, and the bullet makes the accuracy of the aim as effectively as though the gun had fired its own projectile.
R. E. Jackson, the city route agent of The Astorian, owns the oldest home in Oregon. It is on his place on Lewis and Clark's, about twelve miles from town. It is about 40 years old and bids fair to stand for a few generations to come. About the time that John Hanecek and those other three or forefathers were signing the declaration of independence, the top of this house, which was then a tree, blew or broke off. Its present occupant a few years ago, dug around the stump, trimmed it out, cut a door and window, and made a habitable room about 9 x 10 feet that beats nothing all to pieces.
The Ladies conducting the Fair desire all those who had been missed in the collections of the Refreshments and Fancy articles yesterday to please send them to the hall to-day.
The dinner at the hall to-day from 5 to 8:30 p. m. will be a banquet, and it is requested that everybody take dinner with the ladies at the hall.

ON THE RAIL.
One Man Drowned—Narrow Escape of Another.
The first fatal accident of the fishing season of '33 is reported by way of Ilwaco. During a heavy blow last Tuesday morning a breaker struck the boat of Frederick Nelson, who with his boat puller was drifting off Peacock spit, and overturned it. Others close by saw the disaster and with true courage hastened to rescue the fellow-fishermen. In the face of wind and wave they reached the capsized boat and making fast started to tow it into smooth water. It was a long, hard pull, and one informant who fishes for George & Barker says that more than once they were afraid it would be too much for them. While others cruised around searching for the men who were supposed to be lost, the boats in tow after two and a half hours towing and sailing got the overturned boat into smooth water and righted it. To their delight and astonishment, as the boat was righted a heavy voice sang out "Good morning!" and Nelson showed up apparently but little the worse. His first question was "Where's Sam?" (his boat puller), but that poor fellow was lost and his undiscovered body was doubtless swept to sea.

CIRCUIT COURT PROCEEDINGS.
TUESDAY, May 25, 1933.
State vs. Al. Him, jury out all night, verdict, guilty as charged with recommendation to mercy; sentence on Monday.
State vs. Robt. Leadbetter, upon plea of former conviction jury find for the state.
A. M. Simpson vs. W. G. Bass, argument on plaintiff's motion to amend commission and also on defendant's motion to suppress, taken under advisement.
W. R. Headinger vs. M. A. Kinsey, et al, motion for leave to extend time to answer allowed by consent.
State vs. Robt. Leadbetter, charge of larceny, jury brought in a verdict of guilty as charged, with recommendation to mercy; sentence on Monday.
H. B. Parker vs. M. A. Leach, argument on demurrer to answer taken under advisement.
State vs. Al. Him, argument on motion for a new trial; under advisement.
State vs. Al. Him, motion for new trial argued and taken under advisement; time for sentence extended.
State vs. Edward Williams, Chas. Lind, Chris. Viejen, P. Anderson, Chas. Veklund, Louis Peterson and Chas. Westerland, jury impaneled.
Adjourned to nine this morning.

THE FAIR AND BAZAAR.
Liberty hall was the center of attraction last evening it being the opening night of the ladies' fair and bazaar in aid of the tournament fund.
The hall was profusely decorated with flowers, and from the entrance to the back of the stage most tastefully arranged. On the tables and in the booths were displayed many rare specimens of handwork. From the opening to a late hour last evening it was crowded by ladies and gentlemen, who testified by their presence and substantial encouragement the interest they felt in making the affair a success.
In the room adjoining was set a splendid dinner, daintily served by the ladies who deserve praise for their unselfish efforts to assist in making the coming fairmen's tournament a success. A large number partook of the good things so bountifully supplied, and from the amount of fresh food that was sent in last evening it is evident that a still larger number is expected this evening. The fair is well worth a visit and any one going will spend a pleasant evening. Don't forget to tell the folks at home not to mind about dinner to-day but to put on their best bib and tucker, as you will have a splendid dinner at any time from 5:30 to 8:30 this evening and get a first-class dinner.

HEALTHFULNESS OF CANNED GOODS.
Dr. Cyrus Edson, of the health department, New York city, sends the following strong endorsement of the healthfulness of canned goods to the chairman of the canned goods committee, of the New York Mercantile Exchange:
New York, May 6, 1933.
Mr. David Hunt:
DEAR SIR:—In reply to your question concerning my opinion in regard to the canned goods scare, I would state that I am in question in regard to the foundation in fact and is due entirely to sensational newspaper articles. Since my connection with this department I have not received a single complaint against canned goods which are entirely safe and completely reliable. I do not believe that preserving food in hermetically sealed tins in any way renders it less wholesome than it would otherwise be provided, of course, that the preserving is properly done.
Yours very truly,
CYRUS EDSON, M. D.

Gymnasium Boys Class.
A class for boys from the ages of 7 to 12 years will be formed at the Astoria Gymnasium. A competent teacher will be provided. Apply at the gymnasium between the hours of 10 A. M. and 10 P. M.
W. E. JOHNS, Prop.

PRETTY BLACKMAILERS.
Some of the Smooth Schemes of Beautiful and Deceiving Women.
Among the persons who teamed over the ice box in the Pearl street undertaking establishment not long since, in which lay the body of Lyman D. Minor, the Broadway merchant who committed suicide, says a New York letter writer, was a woman of scarcely twenty-three years of age. She was soberly dressed, and when she raised her veil a modest little face and a pair of jet black eyes twinkling beneath black eyelashes were seen. With her kind-gloved hand she smoothed back the hair from the ugly bullet wound in the temple of the dead man, and when she was leaving left a bunch of lilies on the box. She came as mysteriously as she went. This woman was Annie Greenville, who, in connection with Philip White, the king of confidence men, was the unseen power that drove the merchant to his grave. Sergeant Frink, of the central police office, said Annie Greenville had a heart of iron and was a tool in the hands of White. White would never leave a man while there was a dollar in him. He was heartless, treacherous and cruel.
It is perhaps an unalluring thing to say, but in New York and large cities generally, beauty and blackmail have come to be associated in an extent that the law is scarcely clear of good-looking strangers altogether.

This blackmail is a trade that can only be placed successfully in great population cities, as there the possibilities of detection are reduced to a mere nothing. It takes an adroit rogue to be a first-class swindler; hence women, who have more tact than men, are chosen to do the fine work of entrapping the victim. Once in the toils, the plucking is done by the male confederates, and is usually an easy and safe process. Their methods are many, curious and novel. The latest and most novel is one recently come to light.

A beautiful and accomplished girl sought employment in a downtown business establishment run by a father and son. She managed to entangle both, and got up an escapade with the young man which cost him a very tiny little sum before the end was reached. He wrote her a domestic letter, made short excuses, and made a lovely time. Generally, until one fine morning an elderly ruffian stepped up, claiming to be her father. The man was only too glad to disengage himself from the plot. Then the ex charmer threatened to sue for the recovery of her letters and the balance due on her furniture to avoid a scandal he paid up handsomely. He wrote her a letter to be held to death by these vampires, he appealed to the police. A single visit, with a promise of arrest sufficed to settle the whole business.

A neat trick is for a pretty blackmailster to enter a store where there are a great many clerks. Once in the store, she picks all her feminine art on the chosen victim, and whose circumstances she has learned something about, and engaging him in conversation, she slips some stray remark, which she emphasizes with her eyes. If he smiles and retorts in the same vein, the point has been gained. After that the conquest is not difficult. A visit or two, a mince, an opera night, and then some fine day my lady suits into the store like a Spanish pirate, but instead of plundering the man looks grim, but hands out the money the treasurer has demanded. After that she reads him regularly, only at short and shorter intervals, until something goes bump! as the saying is. Either she gets in jail or a big scandal breaks out, or possibly he defies her, but as a rule he hasn't the pluck to do that, and in many cases the pay goes on for years.

A well known editor of a metropolitan press was badly done for some time ago by a pretty little widow. She first coaxed him into a hotel, and then, by her girlish face, enticed his sympathies in her cause. Then came requests for theater and concert tickets and other courtesies, in compliance with which he sent her a quantity of money. On the strength of these letters, and a confederate, it cost him $1,000 inside of three months. He was too sensitive to public opinion to land her over to the police, and had a friend of his stepped in and grappled matters with an iron hand, he probably would have been a victim to-day of either her greed or her lies.

Here is another case: A Broadway merchant who makes a specialty of silks and satins has a dark room fitted up in his store where he can show the effect of gaslight upon his goods. One day he had a lady to his room to show a piece of satin under the gas jet. Hardly had the door shut upon them than she tore off her bonnet and snatched, and flinging her arms round his neck, she kissed him on the cheek. The clerk rushed in and saw the boss struggling with a beautiful lady whose clothes were half torn off her back. Here was a pretty kettle of fish. It cost $200 to break her up, and she refused to enter that room with a lady unless accompanied by a cash boy.

There is no limit to the resources of the business, and this "silk" story is a sample of the millions in it. They have been known to invade a private wedding and come off successful. Women are invariably the principals. Men suspect men always, but they are consummate fools enough never to suspect a handsome woman. The glamour of her face, the witelery of her eyes and the soft ripple of her tongue is too much for their senses, and thereby, she is lured until too late to be of any value. One meets these women everywhere—at the theater, on the cars, in the street. All the summer boarding houses and seaside resorts are favorite stamping grounds for them. Saratoga is full of them in season, and not long since I knew one who entertained two clergymen—one a bishop in the Episcopal church—with their wives at dinner. Of course the guests had no idea of the true character of the charming hostess, and perhaps none day when I write up her brilliant but checkered career, they will rub their dead ecclesiastical optics.

Rich Mines at Nehalem.
A gentleman who recently arrived from St. Helena, reports that new discoveries at the Nehalem mines are creating considerable excitement at that place. They are situated about thirty miles from St. Helena, and some very valuable finds are reported. The ore is very rich, if the assays made by Mr. Reese, an assayer from the Pacific refinery at San Francisco, can be trusted. He finds that the ore contains 1,400 pounds of lead and $1,541 in silver to the ton. A mining expert is to be sent to the new district in a day or two from St. Helena, and should his report be favorable, there will be a large exodus from that town.—News, 27.

Girl Wanted.
To do general house work. Apply at Empire Store.

ROCK OF AGES.
"Rock of ages, cleft for me"—Thoughtlessly the maiden sang. Fell the words unconsciously From her girlish, gleeful tongue. Sang as little children sing. Sang as the birds in June; Fell the words like light leaves down On the current of the tune. "Rock of ages, cleft for me, Let me hide myself in thee."
"Let me hide myself in thee"—Felt her soul no need to hide. Sweet the song as song could be. And she had no thought beside, All the words unheeding. Fell from lips untouched by care. Dreaming not that they might be. On some other lips a prayer. "Rock of ages, cleft for me, Let me hide myself in thee."
"Rock of ages, cleft for me"—'Twas a woman who sang them now Pleasantly and prayerfully. Every word her heart did know. Rose the song as storm-tossed bird Beats with weary wing the air. Every note with sorrow stirred, Every syllable a prayer—"Rock of ages, cleft for me, Let me hide myself in thee."

"Rock of ages, cleft for me"—Lips grown aged sang the hymn Tremblingly and tenderly. Voice grown weak and eyes grown dim. "Let me hide myself in thee." Trembling though the voice and low, Rose the sweet strain peacefully, Like a river in its flood. Sang as only one can sing Who beholds the promised rest—"Rock of ages, cleft for me, Let me hide myself in thee."

"Rock of ages, cleft for me"—Sang above a coffin lid; Underneath all restfully. All life's joys and sorrows hid; Nevermore, oh, storm-tossed soul, Nevermore from wind or tide Will thou need thyself to hide. Could the sightless, sunken eyes, Closed beneath the soft, gray hair, Could the mute and stiffened lips Move again in pleading prayer, Still, eye still, the words would be—"Let me hide myself in thee."

The current number of Harper's Weekly has some fine illustrations of the eminent divines who have just finished revising the old Testament. With kindly consideration for the fastidious tastes of this day and generation the revised old Testament just issued discards the word "hell." In place of "hell" appears the word "Sheol." As the key to the pronunciation has not yet reached Astoria it is hard to say just how this word is to be mouthed. As the revisors of the new Testament have replaced the word "hell" with "Sheol," and the revisors of the old Testament have replaced it with the word "sheol," the presumption is that the old-fashioned orthodox hell has been discarded from the Bible. This is rough on old-fashioned people, but as the revisors were all godly men they certainly ought to know.
