JOHN SMITH.

The Extraordinary Vagaries of This Numerous and Illustrious Man.

John Smith is one of the most peculiar men I ever knew, and I have known him from his infancy. He has followed me from the time I first formed his acquaintance until this hour. When I was married, over 500 miles from the place of my birth, he was at my wedding, having been acquainted with my wife's people long before I ever heard the name. When our first babe was born he officiated as minister of ceremonies, although when I first knew him he was a section hand on a railroad, and at the time of my marriage was a rising young sign painter. He was my schoolmaster for a considerable period between those two dates, and when I joined the church he baptized me into the faith.

John Smith has never been a hundred miles away from me in my life. When I was practicing law at White Hall, Ill., he ran a farm less than four miles from the village. When I was principal of the village school at Iuka, five of his boys reaped off the harvest of knowledge I was sowing.

Although John Smith's five sons were my pupils at Iuka three months before, when John Smith sailed me down the gulf coast of Florida in an open boat, he was a bachelor. It is strange how soon he amassed a family. In about nine weeks after I found him a bachelor in Florida he had been a married man in Iuka for nearly nine years. I could not help looking upon him with suspicion; but, a year later, when I found him in the legislature at Springfield with four blushing daughters swarming around him, I was astonished. He has been where I could get him on an hour's notice for more than twenty years, and in spite of this fact I am told that he has committed a large number of crimes and misdemeanors. While I was sitting in the gallery of the Illinois house of representatives listening to a speech from him on the Harper high license bill, he ran away with the wife of a prominent physician in Chicago. How he managed to do so without being discovered is more than I can understand. While the Sheriff of Macoupin county was looking for him with a posse for horse-stealing he was preaching in one of the most prominent churches in that county, and one day, while he and I were watching bass out of Long Lake, over in Green county, he fell from the top of the new postoffice building in St. Louis and was killed, and while his funeral was in progress, he robbed a bank and escaped to Canada from northern New York.

When I came to Bloomington he was a passenger conductor on the Chicago and Alton railroad; but I had hardly got settled when he came to me in the guise of a tramp printer, but he had been in so many scrapes that I declined to have anything to do with him. It was less than two weeks afterward that I saw a dispatch in the daily papers stating that he had fallen heir to $40,000 by the death of a rich uncle in Australia. A year ago he was driving a team of street-car mules in Bloomington, but it was only a year later that I got a draft from a Colorado bank containing his signature as cashier.

John Smith never gets up in the world, however, but what he comes down again in a remarkably short time, and I hardly had my draft cashed when I saw a dispatch announcing his election to Congress from South Carolina. During the same week a mob got hold of him in Wyoming and hang-d him to a telegraph pole for driving off cattle belonging to another man; but before the coroner could summon a jury to inquire into his death, he had taken a contract to build a new jail in one of the back counties of Indiana.

John Smith is one of the most unsteady men I ever knew. The jail he contracted to build could not have been more than half done when he was appointed postmaster of a northern town in Ohio, and before he had qualified by filing his bond and taking the oath, a Mexican greaser lassoed him and dragged him over the prairies until he was a calm and harmless corpse, whose bones were left to bleach on the sandy plains of Arizona.

During the last month he seems to have done much better, however. It appears that he married a rich widow and her five grown daughters in Tennessee, and was on his way to Utah, where he was to be installed as one of the apostles of the Mormon church. Oh his way out, however, the train ran off the track, and killed him one-sixth widower, having killed his wife and mother-in-law combined. He is now probably safely arrived at Salt Lake.

Later, Dispatches state that he was killed yesterday at a fire in San Francisco.

Still later.—He was arrested at the New Orleans exposition the other day for dropping counterfeit money in the fare box at the entrance.—Bloomington Through Mail.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites For Affections of the Lungs and Wasting Diseases.—DR. J. SIMONARD, New Orleans, La., says: "I can candidly declare Scott's Emulsion is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice. In affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases we may consider it our most reliable agent. In a perfectly elegant and agreeable form."

CURRENCY.

Friction matches are now made at the rate of 24,000 per minute, and the children can have plenty to play with.

The Rev. Tom Beecher has made a request in his will that his body be cremated and that his widow avoid wearing black. Nothing captious about him.

What on earth the army wants of a $10,000 balloon is a mystery, but the ordnance board has ordered one made. Perhaps it is to give the officers an airing.

The building inspectors of Chicago have held an inquest on a structure which tumbled down, and come to the conclusion that "it was not substantially erected."

They took three ounces of brains away from a Pennsylvania man with out injuring his smartness in the least. There is a great deal of waste about the human body.

The Boston Post says that the rumor that a leading resident of a New England village is about to set a hen or get his boots tapped will stir up as much excitement as a presidential election.

A horse at Charleston tipped over a couple of bee hives to see if they contained bees or bees. It pained him considerably to discover that oats weren't left lying around in that shape.

One reason why England shouldn't allow Russia to seize Herat is because she intends to give it a new name in case of possession. It will be called Popoffkoskovich or some such thing.

Several New Yorkers are talking about jumping off East river bridge in case a purse of $50 can be raised by outsiders. There is room in the east for lots of additional idiot asylums.

The other day a Boston lady stated that the principals of nine of the ten schools she visited affirmed that not less than forty per cent of their boys between 6 and 10 years of age use tobacco already.

Rugg, the Long Island murderer, who is to be hung Friday, has received over 200 bouquets of flowers from sympathizing females, every one of whom ought to be sent to the workhouse for thirty days.

The newspapers in Liberia have formed a ring and run the price of advertising a lost cow or oak wanted up to twenty-five cents. The excitement is intense, and indignant crowds are holding public meetings.

A New Yorker wants a divorce on the grounds that his wife, who was a widow when he married her, said nothing about her children, but had five whom she suddenly rushed in on him before the honeymoon had waned.

Young Lady at Boarding School.
At some of the French boarding schools in Paris, the girls are fed on weak soup, two or three degrees stronger than hot water; meat, from which nearly all the nourishment is extracted by boiling; coarse veal watery carrots and gray, sour bread. The young lady who comes home after a few terms of this sort of diet may be very learned, but is pale and poor-looking, lacking vigor and health. Give her Brown's Iron Bitters—the best tonic in the world for young ladies with impoverished blood—and bring the roses into her cheeks.

Two Dangerous Seasons.
Spring and fall are times when so many people get sick. The changes in the weather are severe on feeble persons, and even those naturally strong are apt, in these seasons, to be feeling miserable. Then they are just in condition to be struck down with some kind of fever. A bottle or two of Parker's Tonic will invigorate the digestion, purify the liver, kidneys and blood in perfect order, and prevent all more serious attacks. Why suffer and perhaps die, when so simple a medicine will save you? Good for both sexes and all ages.

It takes two weeks to recover from the effects of pepper thrown in the eyes. Be satisfied to take these figures instead of the pepper.
