

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: TUESDAY, JUNE 2, 1885

There are 3,000 people idle and starving because of the strike at North Adams, Mass.

The Washington Insurance Company of Tacoma has gone to pieces, and policy holders are charging the managers with rascality.

At Whiteoan recently, 320 thousand feet of lumber was sold for $1,900, or $5 a thousand feet; considerably less than the logs cost.

The Illinois legislature has passed a bill providing that no telephone company shall charge more than 83 per month when one telephone is used, and $2.50 when more than one is used, and fixing the charge for transmitting messages from one town to another at ten cents.

The daily newspaper is what the public want it and make it. If its publisher was just running it for his health he would often do and say a good many things differently; but, generally, he has to live by what ever little income his newspaper brings in to him and can't afford to do what his better nature and better judgment suggests. Perhaps it is just so well.

The great game that England and Russia have for months been playing appears to end by each side declaring for peace. Gladstone is the real master of the situation, and whatever appears the whole affair commands must be given the sturdy old man who was determined that there should be no war, and won his point. Gladstone's real wisdom will become more evident in a few months when the Nihilists for want of some outlet begin once more howling about Alexander's ears.

The petrified wood found in the Rocky mountain regions is rapidly becoming utilized. In San Francisco there is now a factory for cutting and polishing these petrifications into mantle-pieces, tiles, tablets and other architectural parts for which marble or slab is commonly used. Petrified wood is said to be susceptible of a finer polish than marble, or even onyx, the latter of which it is driving from the market. The raw material employed comes mostly from the forests of petrified wood along the Atlantic and Pacific railway. Several other companies have also been formed to obtain concessions of different portions of these forests. Geologists will regret the destruction of such interesting primeval remains, and some steps ought to be taken to preserve certain tracts in their original state.

For an illustration of the astonishing fall in the rate of interest, economists can point hereafter to the new Connecticut loan of $170,000, due in 1910. The entire block of bonds issued this summer for refunding purposes, has been sold to two New York banking houses at 100.575, the interest rate being 3 per cent. In other words, 3 per cent. long term bonds of an American state of undoubted honesty are worth to bankers in the present condition of the money market a fraction more than par. The ultimate holder for investment will thus realize something less than 3 per cent. per annum. The contrast between the price of these bonds and 3 per cent. British consols is suggestive. The example of Connecticut, by the way, in making its loan 3 per cent., instead of 3 1/2 or 4 per cent., is worthy of imitation by other states and by municipalities.

McLean of Ohio doesn't want any office, and thus expresses himself in his paper, the Cincinnati Enquirer: "McLean is a candidate for no office, elective or appointive, under the shining stars. He is actively engaged in the publication of the Cincinnati Enquirer, and has no time to waste on public offices. He would not accept one even with a chromo attachment. He asks for nothing but good health and a continuation of business as it exists to day at the old stand, No. 247 Vine street. At this number, second floor, he has an office which suits him better than any which king or prince might have to offer. With this he is abundantly satisfied. His newspaper collects and prints the news of the old and new worlds in advance of all competitors. A vast army of subscribers drop their golden apples into his basket and get value received every time."
