BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

THE BEST TONIC.

It is invaluable for Diseases peculiar to Women, and all who lead sedentary lives. It does not injure the teeth, cause headache, or produce constipation—order from medicine druggists. It enriches and purifies the blood, stimulates the appetite, aids the assimilation of food, relieves heartache, indigestion, and strengthens the muscles and nerves. For Intermittent Fevers, Lassitude, Lack of Energy, &c., it has no equal.

It is an unfailing remedy for Diseases of the Kidneys and Liver.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to a certain kind of food or meat, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Flattering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the liver. As a Liver medicine, TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA. Sold every where. Office 44 Murray St., N. Y.

SOLE MANUFACTURER, T. J. LEITCH, N. Y.

CIVIL LAW A FAILURE.

Ending a Reign of Terror by Old-Fashioned Justice.

The miners and others in this vicinity had been without law until a few of them agreed that it was necessary for the public safety that things should be run as they are in the states, and to that end peace officers were elected, a brief but very explicit criminal code was drawn up, and a certain cabin was designated as the jail, the owner thereof, Henry Follet, being guaranteed the payment of twenty-five cents a day for the keeping of prisoners. It was not believed he would ever have many to take care of, or that they would remain long, and the price fixed was regarded by all hands as good, though perhaps not excessive when it was considered that he would have to make an addition and some repairs to his cabin right away. In the course of time several outsiders were apprehended for various offenses, and the new machinery worked to perfection. The law was explicit, the judge stern, and the jailer hungry for victims. After the crisis had been imprisoned for a few days they were escorted before the camp and warned not to come back again.

During the last winter business of all kinds was dull and a great many of the men who undertook to remain here without visible means of support had difficulty in finding enough to eat. Finally half a dozen of them committed some petty depredations and were put in jail. The judge was sick at this time and the fellows on the outside began to envy the men who were under lock and key at Follet's, and immediately an epidemic of crime broke out, resulting in less than a week in the arrest of sixty men. The miners who had been opposed to the legal institutions from the first and who had recommended the old-fashioned way of dealing with culprits, said they knew this would be the result of a new fangled lawyer and order men wanted to do so, for they knew that if the prisoners jumped the country the lynch-law men would insist on forfeiting the money. While there was a good deal of chaff going on, John Bennett, the principal opponent of the court and jail scheme, and one of the best known and solidest men in the camp, announced that he would go on all the bonds. This relieved matters, and the sixty prisoners who had been feeding at public expense at Follet's were turned adrift once more, greatly to the relief of the community.

The law and order men had just got through congratulating themselves when Bennett appeared at Follet's one morning with the sixty prisoners and announced that he wished to be relieved from his bond, and that he had therefore concluded to surrender the men. By this time seven or eight others had been taken in and the prospect of taking care of all of them at public expense fairly staggered the crowd. The surrender was accepted and a public meeting was called to determine what should be done. Various devices were suggested, but none was entertained for more than a minute, owing to the growing sentiment in favor of doing away with law, temporarily, at least, and claming out the camp in good old-fashioned style. This was finally decided upon by the chairman of the meeting, Bill Lander, announcing in a formal way the "suspension of civil law until the reign of terror now existing could be done away with." His remarks were greeted with tremendous applause, and the offenders, being formed in line by twos, were marched under guard about fifteen miles out of camp, and there, with sufficient food to last them to the railroad, warned not to return. It is now four weeks since the "suspension of the law," and though the judge has recovered there has been no effort to revive the practice, and good judges never that there will not be—Lost River, Idaho Territory Despatch.

Spelling Match.
Can you spell? Well, yes; almost anybody can spell. Then spell this, and make out what it means. If you can't, then pass it on to your next neighbor:
B-E-E-T-I-N-N-O-O-B-E-S-T-W.
Don't say it out loud, but just whisper in your pretty neighbor's ear that if she will place these letters in proper position she will have the world's great tonic, which will enrich her impoverished blood, put roses on her pale cheeks and make her strong and happy. Go to the nearest drug store with a dollar in your hand, and ask for Brown's Iron Bitters.

Dr. O'Callaghan, formerly hospital steward at Fort Douglas, but in latter years practicing medicine at different places in Utah, was convicted at Blackfoot, Idaho, of murder in the first degree, for killing, in cold blood, Thomas Breen, on the night of April 29th.

THE AFGHAN DISPUTE.

The London Times and the News give unusual prominence to a telegram from Constantinople asserting that Russia had rejected the Turkish proposals for an alliance, and it is Turkey, and not Russia, that has rejected the proposals. From the beginning to the end of the Russian difficulty Russia has been making strenuous efforts to secure at least the friendly neutrality of Turkey. In the event of war the control of the Dardanelles would give Turkey, if hostile to Russia, power to bottle up the latter's fleet in the Black sea, to paralyze her trade and to put an embargo upon the greater portion of her mercantile marine. So serious was this danger deemed at St. Petersburg that M. Nelidoff, one of the wildest and most persuasive of Russian diplomats, was sent many weeks ago to Constantinople to tempt the sultan with every bribe that Russia could offer to conclude the treaty giving Russian war and merchant vessels a right of way through the Dardanelles.

Russian anxiety on this subject was so intense that M. Nelidoff was empowered to offer, and did offer, the cancellation of the indemnity which Turkey was ordered by the Berlin congress of 1878 to pay Russia, in consequence of the Turco-Russian war. The Russian proposals, it is known, also had the powerful support of Bismarck. All this time England was making counter proposals to the sultan, and using the Soudan as a bait. The bait was offered on a golden hook, for it was understood that if Turkish troops were sent to garrison Suakem and other points in the Soudan, their expenses would be paid by England, either directly or by taking up a new Turkish loan, which amounts to very much the same thing. The porte wavered a long time. A receipt in full for the indemnity to Russia had a very tempting look, but then that debt had been so long overdue that it had ceased to trouble the conscience of the sultan, and on the other hand England offered him accessions of territory, rehabilitation of his power in the eyes of the Moslem world, and above all, ready cash. In the end British influence and British gold won the day, and the proposals of Lord Granville were accepted, just one week ago.

These facts have not yet been officially announced, for the reason that parliament was not in session when the bargain was concluded.

The steamer Onopord, which has arrived at Victoria from the sealing grounds, reports running over a whale, which it is supposed was asleep. The vessel was nearly lifted out of water, and every person on board was thrown down.

Are You Tired of Being Sick?
We want to say a word to the men, women and girls who work in stores, offices and factories. There are hundreds of thousands of you in the country. Very few of you are well. You are shut up too much and exercise too little. In this way you get sick. Your blood is bad, your digestion poor, your head often aches, you don't feel like work. Your liver, stomach and kidneys are out of order. Parker's Tonic has cured hundreds of such cases. It is pure, sure and pleasant.

A very large but partially explored cave exists in Josephine county, Or., on the headwaters of William's creek, twenty miles south of Grant's Pass. As far as this cave has been entered, only about 500 feet, sufficient subterranean wonders have been discovered to indicate a very large and interesting cave.

See Dr. W.'s Emission of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites in Lung Troubles and Cholera Infantum.—Dr. W. E. Hanson, Hartford Ind., says: "I find Scott's Emission an excellent remedy in lung troubles, and especially in Strumous children and a most valuable remedy in chronic stages of Cholera Infantum."

On June 1st R. E. Sproule, superintendent of the Kootenay mining and smelting company, shot and killed Thos. Hammill, superintendent of the Ainsworth company, in the Kootenay mines. Sproule escaped by the Fort Sheppard trail.

The Preventive of a Terrible Disease.
No disorders, excepting the most deadly forms of lung disease, involve such a tremendous destruction of organic tissue as those which fasten upon the kidneys. Such maladies, when they become chronic—and none are so liable to assume that phase—completely wreck the system. To prevent this terrible disease, recourse should be had, upon the first manifestation of trouble to HOSLET'S Stomach Bitters, which experience has proved to be highly effective as a means of imparting tone and regularity to the organs of urination, as well to the liver, stomach and bowels. Another beneficial result of this medicine, naturally consequent upon its diuretic action, is the elimination from the blood of impurities which breed rheumatism, neuralgia, gout, dropsy, and other maladies. By increasing the activity of the kidneys, it imparts the comparative efficiency of these organs, which are most important outlets for the escape of such impurities.
