Colonel Beal's Reply to a Roard of Examiners.

One of the brightest as well as most nctive and influential Democrats in Wisconsin is General Edward S. Bragg, who is spending a few days in Washington. He is a practical poli-tician and frankly confesses his con-tempt for what he would call "Professional Civil Service Reformers. and their methods. "I never think of the schoolmaster Civil Service Board," said he, "without being re-Board," said he, "without being reminded of an incident that happened during the war. I had come up from rap at my door, and Colonel Beal—who had been lieutenant governor of Wisconsin—entered. He was born and raised in Maryland, and his conversation and manners showed his southern birth and breeding. He was loyal to the core, and brave as a lion, but he had not been fortunate, and when he came to see me I supposed he was 'dead broke,' and knew that I had some money, or I would not be in Washington. After he had This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More seenomical than the ordinary kinds, and not be in Washington. "Certainly," said I.
"The 'touch' brought brandy and water, and after he had 'touched the bell' three or four times, the governor rose, straightened himself, tilted his hat back, thrust his thumbs in the arm holes of his waist-coat, cleared his voice and began:

"General, I have been seeking a commission as colonel in one of the ew regiments about to be organized in Florida, and have been before the blank board for examination.' "Well,' said I, 'I suppose you got through. "Got through! got through! Oh, yes, I got through, sir; no doubt about that, sir. You see, old Casey is president of the board—Silas Casey you know, sir. Why, I knew Casey long ago before he was as big a man as he seems to think he is now. Well, sir, I went before this blank board, sir. There he and the rest of them sat looking as wise as owls Well general, what kind of a blank fool question do you suppose that fellow Casey fired at me? Why, sir, he asked me to do a sum in decimal fractions.

I just raised my spectacles, and took a good look at him and at his board, and then I said, 'Gentlemen, if you expect to put down the rebellion with decimal fractions, you are blankedly mistaken, and I took my hat and bowed myself out, sir. Oh, yes; I got

"I have a mighty poor opinion of these civil service reformers, and their theory of administration for a great government like ours.
