Warren Olney has an interesting article in the June Oregon Monthly entitled "The Battle of Shiloh."

Card Adler gave a free exhibition of his works last evening, that was greatly admired by a large crowd of spectators.

A convocation of the Episcopal church is being held in Portland. To-day Rev. M. D. Wilson preaches at St. David's, East Portland.

The thirty-seventh annual meeting of the Oregon and Washington association of Congregational churches will be held at Forest Grove June 18-21.

The steamer Coe, bound from Gray's Harbor for Astoria last Friday, as she hadn't showed up last evening it is probable she put into Shoalwater bay.

The townsmen executive committee met last evening and made a final report regarding business, etc. The report against the decision awarding Capitals first prize in the New York contest was previously withdrawn and they got their coin.

Eliza Smith, president of the O. R. & N. Co. arrived in Portland last Friday afternoon, ending the longest trip ever made to Oregon. He came through from New York in eighty-nine hours and forty minutes, remaining in part of the time at the rate of a mile a minute.

The Pacific Journal reports that the Shoalwater Bay Transportation company have rented their boat, the General Gardner, on the Clatsop river, the business not paying the company. They speak of it for private enterprise. The boat on Shoalwater bay is also for rent.

Drs. Fulton and Baker performed an amputation yesterday on Mr. Young, the right leg being cut off above the knee. He has been suffering from necrosis and amputation was only performed as a dernier resort. A cancerous tumor was also cut from the arm of one Frank Phillips.

The Astorian has received information to the effect that the decision is officially declaring the Astoria land grant forfeited will in no way affect whatever acquired rights settlers on that tract may possess, it being the intention to have the six months date from the period when the declaration is made and not from the time at which congress passed the forfeiture bill.

The Thresher case, at Victoria, which grew out of two tugs towing the American ship Thresher in a gale, by which crew was lost, has been finally settled by the payment of $15,000. The damages were paid at $30,000. Plaintiffs lost the case at Victoria, and took it to Ottawa and won. It was there appealed to London, and would have come up in July if a settlement had not been made.

GOVERNMENT WORK.

A Considerable Amount to be Done at Fort Canby. The government has for some time had in contemplation the building of a large bulkhead at Fort Canby to protect the fort and vicinity from the waters of Baker's bay. This was advertised for in The Astorian and were opened at noon yesterday at the fort by First Lieutenant L. A. Chamberlain.

The work consists of a single row of piles driven five feet from center capped with planks 4x15 inches and faced on the outside with three-inch plank spiked on the outer face and packed against the bulkhead on both sides, not less than three feet thick at the top and sloping downward. The whole work is about 3,800 feet long and six feet high.

There were sixteen bids in yesterday from all parts of the country. Surprenant and Ferguson and Gill & Clinton of this city each bid $8 per pile, and the bids on driving the 788 piles went from that figure up to $9 9/10 bid by Smith & Paquet of Portland. Dean Blanchard of Kanar bid $8 68 to a certain height and $1.20 for each four feet above that height making his bid $7 88 a pile. The bids for the rip-rap work varied considerably. All the bids will be sent to Vancouver to-morrow for examination and at that place the award will be made.

The job is rather an extensive one, and involves the expenditure of nearly one hundred thousand dollars. Some time ago $40,000 was appropriated for the improvement of Fort Canby, and of this amount $7,000 has been expended, leaving an available balance of $33,000. It is the intention to let the contracts and go on with the work as soon as possible. As soon as the piles are driven and the rip-rap constructed there will be a big lot of earth filling from the shore side to be done. This, however, will be done by a gang of twenty-eight prisoners, who will be brought here from Alcatraz island.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

The city council met in deferred session yesterday evening; present: Councilmen Bergman, Cooper, Denly and Gratzke; T. S. Jewett, auditor and clerk. In the absence of Mayor Hume, Councilman Denly was chosen chairman of the council. A petition was read from property holders on Arch street asking that grade be established; granted. A petition from E. Pappal and Bob' Willgren asking for liquor licenses were granted. The reports of police judge and street superintendent for May were read and reported. An ordinance granting liquor license to E. Pappal was passed; one granting liquor license to R. Willgren was read second time and laid over. An ordinance establishing grade of West Ninth street was read third time and passed. The following claims were ordered paid: M. Conley, $300.50; W. R. Ross, $123.50; Wheeler & Kipp, $32.57; M. Deveraux, $54. On motion council adjourned.

RUPERT'S RACKET.

"I have been waiting for you, Rupert." Desdemona McCaffery was a wretched strawberry blonde with dreamy brown eyes and a large, luxuriant foot that attracted attention wherever she went. Careless and trifling in most things, and little recking whether she had pie or radishes for breakfast, her love for Rupert Hetherington was the one absorbing passion of her life. When he was by her side life was like a beautiful day in June.

"I am never unhappy when you are with me, darling," she said, nestling her head on Rupert's shoulder; "but when you are away everything is dreary, and dismal, and forlorn. Did it never occur to you of what antagonistic emotions the life of woman is made up?"

"I never did," replied Rupert. "I have been too busy this week trying to figure up how I came out in those pools that Ben Worsley sold me on the Capitals of Salem."

"For an instant there was silence. The shriek of the Telephone and the blast of a gale on the hillside were the only sounds they heard. Presently Desdemona spoke again.

"But it is so, Rupert," she said. "I guess likely," was the reply, "but I really can not see why women should back-jump around so much."

"It is because you do not understand their nature. A woman loves some man with a mad, unreasoning love. She is only a girl—frail, passionate, moody girl, whose heart is a lute for every wind to play upon; who is swayed by love and honor like any reed; who in the sleepless midnight hours, when the face with dry eyes; who walks hand-in-hand with a sorrow that might so easily wear the stars of joy"—and with a convulsive sob breaking from her lips the girl turned to Rupert.

Rupert stopped her. "You are off your feed, my darling," he said, in the low, musical tones he knew so well how to use when a woman's love was to be won or the unexpected Buckle would give all the necessary information; that he could not really understand—but she caught him up before he could finish the sentence. "No, you don't understand. Oh, no! You don't understand for a pair of doughnuts what kind of laws you make, that says a woman shall be a daughter of Becky, merely because she's got a wart on her nose. That's what he tells me, and then he says I should have a medical examination, and that the last woman in his wash the dishes, when they have those stuffing jubinees. Oh, yes, it's all very nice to leave your poor old man to house on account of a wart and sore heel, but I am going to find out this business. I am going to find out whether one man can hold all the offices through the year, and set up six nights in the week, and tell his wife she can't be a Rebekah, and be an inside sentiment, or whatever you call 'em, just on account of a little thing like that. I won't trouble you any longer, as probably you want to pass and 'em' some more, but I'll watch that chap of mine, and if I find there is too much goat it, I'll forget that I am a woman and if I don't make his head look like a double-humped bunion, and he'll have to wear my wash tub over it for the next three months," and she slid into the nearest grocery and bought a dozen pickles and a store litter.—Oregon City Enterprise.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphite. Its Value for Women and Children.—Dr. R. HAAS, Jersey City, N. J., says: "I have given your Emulsion to my little boy of three years. I have also recommended it to several of my female patients and they have derived much benefit from it."

AFTER THE LODGE'S SECRET.

"Good morning, sir," said a woman, whose face looked like a boiled salmon, with a pickax nose, and a voice that sounded like a far away echo from the houseposts as she addressed a young man who trembled as he viewed her stern visage. "What I want to see you for, is to ask if you are an Odd Fellow—that is, if you belong up yonder?" and she nodded her head toward a building from which he had just emerged.

"Well," said she, "my man says he is one of you, and I want you to tell me if he is an inside watchman, and has been appointed for 300 nights to watch the jewels? And you have his meetings a week. And does he have to crawl through some of them in the daytime, and lose a day's work trying to be a noddle grand, or a past grand burglar, or some such nonsense as he tells me of?"

The young man said that she must have been misinformed, that there was something wrong, but she interrupted him with "There, you needn't try to play smart. I understand all about this grip business, and silent secrecy and mutual passwords, you can't fool me! You wouldn't tell me for a farm in Seekonk, would you? I don't suppose you would tell me when my husband catches home with a hairpin in his Loo and a lady's collar on, instead of his own, whether he has been taking a Rebekah decree or been at a surprise party? Oh, no, you're innocent," said she.

The young Odd Fellow ventured to remark that he did not really understand the drift of the inquiry.

"Oh, no; I see its no nose; you're all in for each other, and you'd say the broken earring I found in his pocket belonged to you, wouldn't you? And if I should ask you who Arminia is that I caught him talking to himself about, you'd say it was the girl you pretended to ride; and if I should ask you about this rattling I hear of—I pass—'order it up'—set 'm up and give me another hot one," and all that sort of thing, I suppose you'd say it was all connected with your infaminate degrees and necessary to the order."

The young man meekly replied, as he tried to move away, that he was in a hurry, and then he says I should have a medical examination, and that the last woman in his wash the dishes, when they have those stuffing jubinees. Oh, yes, it's all very nice to leave your poor old man to house on account of a wart and sore heel, but I am going to find out this business.
