ENGLAND'S PRIME MINISTER.

The Marquis of Salisbury, who yesterthe ranks. The magnets (not magnets, just plain magnets) of a newpaper office always have an attraction for those who have once been occupants, and Da Capo Erin proves no exception.

The Marquis of Salisbury, who yesterday succeeded Gladstone as prime ministration of the English cabinet, was born in Hatfield, England in 1830. He was educated at Eton and at Christ church, Oxcated at Eton and at Christ church, Oxa fellow of All Soul's college 1853. In 1853 he was elected a member of parliament for Stamford, and he represented that borough in the conservative interest until his succession to the marquisate on the death of his father, April 12, 1868, While in the lower house he was known as Lord Robert Cecil, until the decease of his elder brother, on June 14, 1865, of his elder brother, on June 14, 1865, when he assumed the courtesy title of Viscount Cranborne. In 1857 he married Georgiana Caroline, daughter of Sir Edward Hall Alderson. Beron of the Exchequer, and niece of the celebrated Mrs. Opie. #### LANGUAGE OF THE VOICE.

Nothing betrays so much as the voice, save, perhaps, the eyes, but they can be lowered, and so far their expression hid-

In moments of emotion no skill can hide the fact of disturbed feeling, though a strong will and the habit of self-control a strong will and the nation of sent-control can steady the voice when else it would be failing and tremulous.

Certain voices grate on the nerves and set our teeth on edge, and others are just as calm as some are irritating, quieting as cam as some are irresting, queeing, or like a composing draught.

A good voice, caim in tone, and musical in quality, is one of the essentials for a physician—the "bedside voice"—which is nothing if it is not sympathetic which is nothing it is not sympathetic by constitution.

Whatever its original quality may be, the orator's voice bears the unmistakable stamp of art, and becomes artificiality; as such it may be admirable—telling in a crowd, impressive in address, but over-whelming and chilling at home, partly

One of the first symptoms of failing One of the first symptoms of failing brain power is an indistinct or confused utterance; no idiot has a clear or melodi-ous voice; the harsh scream of mania is proverbial, and no person of prompt and decisive thought was ever known to hesi-tate and stutter.

A thick, loose, fluffy voice does not be long to the crisp character of mind which does the most active work, and when a keen-witted man drawls and lets his words drip instead of bringing them out in the sharp, incisive way that ought to be natural to him, there is a flaw some-

REMEDY FOR SEASICKNESS.

A correspondent of the N. Y. Evening ost tells how to escape seasickness on anlocean voyage. He says: "I should be laughed at if I claimed to have found a sovereign remedy for seasickness. I do claim, however, to have found a remedy which so far has been sovereign in my own case, and my case heretofore has been desperate; It may be considered worthy of trial. All that is needed is self-control; preserve that for five min-utes and you are saved. With the first approach of the enemy there comes invariably a bracing up of nerves and muscles against him. If at that time the potient will examine himself, he will find that he has unconsciously stiffened and tightened all his chest and abdominal muscles. Now that is exactly what he post that the exact he want to be a variety of the exact he want to be a variety what he want to be a variety what he want to be a variety when the want to be a variety what he want to be a variety what he want to be a variety was the want to be a variety what he want to be a variety was the want to be want to be a variety was the want to be wa must not do, and he must do the exact contrary. When the first symptoms are felt, undo everything that confines the waist; do not lie down, but remain quietly seated, and let your whole frame and structure respond easily and freely to the motion of the vessel, even adding swing and sway by your own effort. The stomach will soon grow accustomed to the novelty of the thing, and you will soon be knowing to the full the joy of the pepetual restlessness of the ocean's life. Have faith and you will be success-ful. There may be moments when you think the next will be your last, but it won't; and the victory once won, you triumph will be enduring. The whole pro cess is the best example of conquering through yielding that the physical world has so far shown."
