A Brutal Step-Mother.

Journ, Ill., June 24.-A case of unparalleled and fiendish cruelty to children has just been developed in Monee, this county. Mrs. Sophia Hinton, of that place, was recently arrested by officer Williams, of the Illinois Humane society, charged with cruelty to a child, and brought to jail in this city to await trial. It appears that Mrs. Hinton is stepnother to a little boy 2 years old, and a girl five years old. The little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses in the village and told such a tale of the little girl begged for food at different houses and the little girl begged for food at different houses and the little girl begged for food at different houses and the little girl begged for food at different houses and the little girl begged for food at different hous cruelty at the hands of Mrs. Hinton that led to an investigation as to the condition of the boy. The little fellow was locked up in an outhouse where he had been placed by a wom-an. He was naked, almost dead from starvation and so weak that he could not stand. The child's body was literally covered with scars and bruises. while gaping wounds showed recent beatings. The little one was otherwise terribly maimed in a manner that cannot be described. He had been so long without food that he had eaten the grass which grew un-der the side of the shed and the hay which formed his bed on the ground. He was taken to a neighbor's house, where for a moment he was left in the doorway. A dish sat on the ground near by, out of which the house dog fed. Seeing some scraps in this dish the little fellow crawled to it, and when found a moment later he was ravenously eating, what the dog had refused. Seeing the lady of the louse coming toward him, and probably thinking she was his fiendish step-mother, he made a feeble outcry and raised his small hands as if to ward off blows. Both the child-BY THE CASH SYSTEM. ren were cared for. The case was called to-day in court, when it was found that the brutal woman had es-J. H.
