This paper is on file at the St. Charles Hotel, Portland, Or.

Well, where are you going on the 4th? The Fleetwood has been improved and repaired at Portland and is again ready for business.

Economy is only another name for good management and the exercise of common sense in business, public or private.

The Astoria loaded with combustibles went up stream yesterday. She takes the place of the Idaho on the Alaska route.

There will be a grand ball at the Germania Hotel next Saturday evening, the 4th inst. Tickets fifty cents including supper.

There will be a meeting of the Astoria Ladies' coffee club this evening, at their hall at 7 p. m. All members requested to attend.

The A. C. H. Calhoun is the new name of the old tug Astoria, now transformed into a schooner and running between San Francisco and Honolulu.

T. G. Rawlings has moved his fruit store to Main street, below Clatsop, where a good assortment of fruit, snappers' articles, candies, etc. will be found.

Hankins, who tried to kill his wife a few weeks ago in Portland, has been sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary at hard labor. Hank had no money.

The Congregational church society will be attended; there were good music, chorales, recitations, songs, refreshments, etc., and all present thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Mrs. Furtado, a resident of Lewis & Clark's, died in this city yesterday, of consumption in the 26th year of her age. The funeral took place at four o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The tern Alcide, unloading at Kinney's dock, brought from San Francisco 1,000 lbs tin, 100 lbs nails, 6 lbs tallow, 200 lbs salt, 20 lbs rice, 2 lbs yeast, 100 lbs acid, 300 lbs benzine and turpentine.

"A Mountain Pink" will be presented at Ross' Opera House next Monday. It is spoken of as a successful American play and one thoroughly agreeable to an audience. Reserved seats at the New York Novelty store.

W. J. Ingalls, who has been selling county rights in California for his invention of axle cutter, returned on the last steamer. He sold eleven county rights while away and brought up a fine team of horses that he took out to his place on Lewis & Clark's yesterday.

Del. Ferguson tried to kill himself at the Commercial house at Dayton last Thursday by swallowing morphine, but that has nothing to do with Del. Ferguson of the Astoria office, who is turning off job work with never a thought of such foolishness. But if that namesake of his would kindly put an end to himself and be done with it, it would save himself and many others.

The Rev. J. D. Wilson, county superintendent of public instructions, desires the committee appointed for and having charge of the coming state teachers' association (as published in the Astorian of Sunday last) to meet him in the parlors of Mr. E. C. Holden, to-day, July 2nd, at 2 p. m., promptly. Members of the committee on entertainment are earnestly requested to bring with them such lists as they may have of friends willing to entertain teachers and teachers that are specially provided for.

The Firemen's Contest. Sheriff Thomas A. Jordan, who has charge of the firemen's contest on the Fourth of July, was seen yesterday and a short talk had with him regarding the tournament. Mr. Jordan says the prizes of $175 to the first company and $75 to the second are plenty large enough, but he doubts whether five contesting companies will be on the ground as required by the rules made by the Fourth of July committee. He feels satisfied if this rule is rescinded that three companies will be on hand. Three, it is thought, will be sufficient to make the race interesting. Letters have been received from several interior fire companies, but nothing definite has yet been learned. It has been suggested that the firemen of this city increase the fire prizes $150 or $200. Such a move, it is thought, would stimulate the interior firemen so that there would be a larger turnout than is at present anticipated. -News, 30.

A WORTHY CHARITY.

E. T. Dooley, of San Francisco, whose Children's Aid society in San Francisco is doing such good work, passed through here on his way to San Francisco on the State of California. While here Mrs. A. E. Osgood who has been interested in the work of aiding unfortunate children to shelter, directed his attention to the case of Angelo Peretti, at present serving a six months' sentence in the county jail for theft. Some of Portland's citizens under Mr. Dooley's supervision have lately organized a Children's Aid society in Portland. The main object is to locate and care for criminal children before they become fixed in vice. The idea commends itself so favorably as to require nothing beyond mention of it. As a case in point young Peretti affords an example. Only thirteen years of age he has already been before our courts on criminal charges. The boy is not wholly bad, nor is he now irreclaimable. What he may become if left to himself may easily be conjectured. It is a kindness to the boy, positive benefit to society, an indirect aiding of one's self to lend a kindly hand. Mr. Dooley has consented to receive him into the San Francisco institution; to surround him with good influences, to give him a fair show to make something of himself. He is now in rags in the jail. He needs a few clothes and a few dollars to send him to San Francisco. Will you please leave what you feel you can afford with N. E. Goodell, justice of the peace, or Jos. A. Gill, and aid in the good work. Don't let it pass and think "some one else" will tend to it. See to it yourself, to-day.

STATE AND TERRITORIAL.

Pears are ripe in Washington county. The Willamette wheat harvest will be immense.

Albany has eight churches and wants two more.

Portland is overrun with tramps and men out of work.

Oregon pencils are better than California pencils this year.

Clemens Caesar, of Portland, has been appointed German consul for the state of Oregon.

The Salem Statesman is resplendent in a new dress, which adds to its value as a newsy journal.

As yet work on the new light station to be built near the entrance of Gray's harbor, has not been begun. Everything is ready except the purchase of the land by the government.

The work of surveying the entrance to the harbor at Yaquina, under the direction of Captain Charles F. Powell, U. S. engineer, has just been finished, and a map of the surroundings will soon be made. Captain Powell has also ordered a similar survey to be made at Coos bay.

The news that Mr. Hood is to be illuminated on the night of July 4th with red calcium lights, is already exciting much surprise in the east. The idea that a snow-capped mountain, 14,000 feet high, is to be made all ablaze in honor of a national holiday, is taken as a signal indication of the patriotism of Oregon people. Already the eastern papers are discussing this novel "modern instance," and it appears that the state, before the matter is ended, will get a great deal of prominence from it.

It is learned that the Oregon Pacific railroad company is making satisfactory progress in adjusting its debts on the basis published in the News last week, viz: 15 and 20 per cent. on the $100, and notes payable in full in four months with 6 per cent. interest per annum. It is stated the road will shortly resume operations. It was completed in December, 1884, from Yaquina bay to Corvallis, 71 miles, but since April 1884, no trains have been run, for lack of funds to pay its expenses. Losses by flood and otherwise, followed each other and the climax was capped by a strike of the employes, and the partial destruction of the big tunnel by fire. It cost $1,750,000 to build the road, and as it runs through a very fertile and productive country, the line will some day become a valuable and paying property. The people of Corvallis and Yaquina bay are much rejoiced at the news that the road is to resume operations.

TO STOP SEASICKNESS.

While a young man helped a sailor to do a job of splicing on board a ship lying at an East river pier, yesterday, he said: "Captain, why don't you invent a combination of drugs that will cure sea sickness or prevent it altogether?"

"I am no inventor," said the skipper, "but I have a remedy for seasickness that works like a charm in nine cases out of ten. I got it in Liverpool three years ago, from the captain of a coasting steamer, who said he had made his boat very popular among the passengers by including a free dose of medicine with the price of the berth. Here is the recipe:

"Mix 2 1/2 ounces of dry chloride of lime with 8 ounces of water, and add 10 1/2 ounces of alcohol to the mixture. Boil this mixture down 5 1/2 ounces. Dilute with 35 ounces of water, flavor with a few drops of bitter almonds, and color with a weak solution of cochineal."

"One or two tablespoonfuls taken before going on board the ship, or before it leaves the pier, will nearly always wholly prevent seasickness," the skipper said. "A spoonful taken while the ailment is running its course will always relieve the pain of vomiting, and usually stop it altogether." -N. Y. Sun, June 14.

CAUSES OF CANNED SALMON POISONING.

Editor Bulletin: In the telegraphic news from New York, your issue 16th inst., was given a case of poisoning from eating canned salmon. Child dead. Man very sick. The article specially announced that the contents of the can was exposed two days in a hot atmosphere before it was eaten, and knowing what a hot atmosphere in New York in June means, the result is not surprising, as only salt enough is used in preparing the fish in cans to make it palatable, and not for preserving qualities.

A case was reported in our own state within a few days of poisoning from eating canned salmon. Investigation at once showed the cause of death to have been heart disease. But a few months ago, a case in New York was telegraphed all over the country (to which we called your attention at the time) and investigation showed the family had used a solution of lead in place of vinegar.

We enclose a letter from H. Lassing, M.D., editor of N. Y. Analyst, touching this last case reported. We have been connected with salmon-packing in tin for twenty years and we never knew, and never expect to know of a case of a poisoning from canned salmon, when used properly, and as common sense would dictate.

A SALMON CANNER. SAN FRANCISCO, June 22, 1885. DR. LASSING'S LETTER.

Messrs. - SAN FRANCISCO- Dear Sir: We have had a case reported of poisoning from eating canned salmon. A family on Staten Island. One child died. As is my custom I investigated it and secured a sample from the same case and upon examination found it sound. My investigation showed that the can was bought and opened on Saturday and allowed to stand in a warm room till Tuesday in a humid atmosphere; hence the illness. The symptoms were those of eating decayed animal matter and not of tin. Please inform the packers, I shall publish the explanation as I always do. Very respectfully, H. LASSING, M.D., Editor. Office: N. Y. Analyst, June 11, 1885.

ADVICE TO A YOUNG MAN.

Give the poor man a chance? My son, the poor man takes about all the chances without having one given him. If you give him any more chances than he takes he will soon own everything, and run Ohio man out of the country. The fact is we must curtail the poor man's chances a little. We must sit down on him and hold him down, and give the rich man a chance. The poor man has had his own way too long. He has crowded the rich man out. But for the poor man this old world would have cast anchor 6,000 years ago and be covered with moss and barnacles. Let me tell you a story of a States man-of-war. George Peabody was a boy in a grocery; Edgar Allan Poe was the son of a strolling player; John Adams was the son of a farmer; Benjamin Franklin the printer; and the son of a tallow chandler; Gifford, the first editor of the Quarterly Review, was a sailor; Ben Johnson was a bricklayer; the father of Shakespeare couldn't spell and could not read; the printer who printed the Bible; even his illustrious son couldn't spell it twice; Robert Burns was a child of poverty, the eldest of seven children; the father of a poor bankrupt; John Milton was the son of a poor bookbinder; Andrew Jackson was a tailor; Andrew Jackson was the son of a poor Irishman; Garfield was a boy of all work, too poor even to have a regular trade; Grant was a tanner; Lincoln a school-teacher and a common farm hand; and the Prince of Wales is the son of a queen. It is his misfortune, not his fault, he couldn't help it, and he can't help it now. But you see, my dear boy, that all there is of him; he's just the Prince of Wales. He is only that because he can't help it. Be thankful my son, that you weren't born a prince; be glad that you didn't inherit the crown. If there is a patch on your knee and your elbow are glossy there is some hope for you, but never again let me hear you say that the poor man has no chance. True, a poor lawyer, a poor doctor, a poor printer, a poor workman of any kind, deserves to have none, but the poor man monopolizes about all the chances there are. Put Lyan and Jacob in business together anywhere, and in about fourteen years Jacob will not only own about four-fifths of the cattle, but he will have married about one-fifth his partner's money. Go to, my son, let us give the rich man a chance. -Bob Burdette, in Brooklyn Eagle.
