

The Daily Astorian. ASTORIA, OREGON: TUESDAY, JULY 28, 1885

The ability to exercise influence without responsibility makes the possessor a dangerous man in any community.

Over $2,000,000 are reported to have been paid to Jno. Rouch on his cruiser contracts, leaving $400,000 due when he made his assignment.

The Iowa supreme court has decided that a hotel keeper who receives guests, knowing that there is a contagious disease in the house, is liable for damages to any guest who may contract the disease.

The Toronto Globe has printed twenty-five and one-fourth columns of a speech by a member of parliament on the Canada Pacific railroad and announces its conclusion in a fifth and final installment.

And so the Prince of Wales has "stopped his paper;" that is he has ceased taking the Pall Mall Gazette. That is probably not the worst thing Wales ever did. By the way—how do you pronounce "Pall Mall?" come now.

Mr. PALISSA has discovered another asteroid and will name it after any one who will send him $250. Cheap enough! 'Tis a brilliant idea, having a star bear one's name. Still between the two we would rather have a horse to ride.

So far the Oregonian and the San Francisco Morning Bulletin are the only two daily morning papers received at this office that had the news of Grant's death in the regular edition of the 23rd inst. The Bulletin had the exact moment—8:08.

W. H. H. RUSSELL, a member of the New York bar, affirms that the expensiveness of justice in that city amounts almost to a denial. In a simple action of his own, where there was only a complaint, an answer and a trial, involving the sum of $200, the costs were over $120.

AFTER FOUR months of an exhaustive inquiry and examination into the Chinese quarter of San Francisco, the board of supervisors report that the vice, filth, degradation and crime that they discovered among the San Francisco Chinese are appalling in their magnitude and extent.

To the credit of the great state of New York be it said that at an expenditure of $1,433,000 that commonwealth has rescued Niagara Falls from the grasp of show-sharks, and made it the property of the world. The great cataract is now possible of sight without the seer being bled at every turn. The Empire state deserves congratulation on such a splendid exhibition of public spirit.

The newspaper men of western Washington have organized a press association and are going to discuss some very interesting subjects. The list is published in the Port Townsend Argus. "How to get the best of a bill" is a good one. If the gentleman who is going to discuss that will send us his essay and it contains anything that will be of practical avail, we'll set it in double leaded brevier and run it in this column.

Among the more fastidious people there is an impression that the flavor of tea is wholly ruined by a journey on salt water. All the crowned heads and wealthy nobility of Europe use tea, therefore, which costs them three times the price paid in America for a brand bearing the same name, but which is brought by Russian traders in caravans overland from China. The trade is very profitable, and it is largely to protect it that Russia is so jealous of her Asiatic possessions.

This list of goods canned has been enlarged by a company in St. Louis, which has begun canning eggs. A factory has been erected, and is now in operation, where they will can 1,000,000 dozen annually. The eggs are put through some sort of a process by which the yolks and white are separated from the shells, and the substance is then dried and canned. One teaspoonful is said to be equal to one egg, and it is warranted to keep fresh for three years.

An idea of the magnitude of the cattle trade of the United States may be easily estimated by remembering that in 1884 we exported $40,000,000 of beef and beef products, and that this was not more than 6 per cent of the total value of these products. In other words, the total value of beef and beef products was nearly $700,000,000, and 91 per cent of this was consumed at home. Yet large as are these figures, it represents a yearly consumption—estimating the population at 55,000,000—a little more than $10 per capita per year.

RIVAL cities may be skeptical as to the accuracy of the count, but Chicago reports an increase of her population from 503,304 in 1880 to 600,000 and Buffalo boasts an increase from 155,137 to 202,909 in the same time. In this country, as in Europe, the tendency of population toward the cities is marked, and our city population increased from 2,897,586 in 1850 to 11,318,547 in 1880, or nearly 400 per cent. General Walker predicted, after completing his work on the latest census, that the census of 1890 will show a population of 64,467,000; but he predicted only 49,000,000 for 1880, and it is probable that he has underestimated for 1890, as both in city and country the increase is very rapid, a gain of 600,000 in five years being announced by Iowa alone.

THERE are but three ways by which a man can have anything—by producing it, by receiving it as a gift or stealing it. There is no short cut to relief. Henry George tells us that if we had community in land all things would be well, but Russia has such a communism, and yet has the poorest peasantry in Europe. Another reformer blames the use of machinery. Some offer protection; some free trade, but England has free trade, and the peasantry in those countries are in misery. We must find some way by which employment will be more general and remunerative, and we must recognize the principle that the laborer is worthy of a fair share of the profits of the work. As a whole, it may be asserted that the working man has received only a bare means of living. You cannot have a great wealthy class without having a large poor class. We must learn in some way to distribute the wealth which they have learned only to accumulate and concentrate. Politically our country is democratic, but industrially it is aristocratic. The poor miners in Pennsylvania complain that ten men can assemble at Long Branch over their wine and cigars, and decide how much coal shall be mined and how many men shall receive an opportunity to earn a livelihood. There must be something wrong in the system when 500,000 men seek in vain for work.
