From the beach comes the story that certain gilded youths from Portland who started to dig clams found that a tide table was a necessary adjunct. To dig clams at flood tide is a hard job. People say that watermelons this year give one the ague. Not in Astoria they won't. No one has anything like ague in Astoria, and you can fill up on the festive watermelon with impunity. Considerable effort has been exerted to make to-night's concert a success. Pure-ly as a matter of business the concert is worth considerably more than the price of admission and the ability of the per-formers should insure a full house.

To walk around alive and thus save funeral expenses is, doubtless, a matter of economy. Time was when it used to be cheaper to die, but the difference in the price of vegetables, etc., makes it the price of vegetables, etc., makes it more profitable, purely as a matter of economy, to keep the undertaker out of a job as long as possible. At least that is the reason a prominent citizen assigned yesterday for remaining this side of the shadowy river.

Notwithstanding The Astomax warned everybody about the notorious fakir Vogel yesterdny morning, who had ar-rived in town the night before, he found rived in town the night before, he found a dozen suckers yesterday who contributed $2.50 each to his game. The only way to beat that fellow is to let him alone. He is the slickest and sharpest of the whole gang. One of the minnows who bit at the hook yesterday was squealing about "the city council giving him a license." They did just right in giving him a license. He ought to have one right along. He pays ten dollars a day for it, and it's worth that to find out how many consummate idiots there are in ate idiots there are in

A newspaper works for its own town: does something to build up the place; keeps things alive; advances the interests of all who live in the place; draws trade; of all who live in the place; draws trade; puts money in the pockets of the business men, and adds to the well-being and prosperity of all. By some this is appreciated. Wide-awake, liberal-minded men reciprocate by giving the paper their patronage. Occasionally may be found individuals, whose soul would have Lewis Co., Washington Territory.

pay nothing for it. The third annual catatogue of the Ore-gon State Normal School at Monmouth is to hand. It is full of information concerning the normal school and its re-lation to educational work. There are seven professors and teachers. There were 292 students the past year and 17 candidates for graduation in the different departments. The normal graduates receive diplomas from the state authorizing them to teach in any public school in the state without further examination. The state without further examination. The course of study is full and practical. The expenses are less than at most schools. There are 72 free scholarships, of which this county is entitled to one. Catalogues and full information will be furnished free on application to president D. T. Stanley, Monmouth.

HARD TO PAY DEBTS WITHOUT HONEY.

Considerable difficulty has been found in collecting road tax, poll tax, etc., from departing fishermen this season, which is not to be wondered at. When men can't or won't pay the grocer, the boarding house keeper and the man that fitted them out or kept them through the dull season, it is to be expected that they will dodge any form of taxation if it is possi-ble.

And yet there are two sides to the question. A good many fishermen worked hard and faithfully all through the senson that has just closed—and have nothing to show for it. Some of them only succeeded in lightening a little the burden of debt that was on their shoulders when they started in. The books of the canneries show in many places where after the whole season's work $1.75, or $2. or $3.50 is all that is due a man. This is rough on the man himself and it is rough on him who put up for him. As an inon him who put up for him. As an in-stance may be mentioned one restaurant keeper in the second ward who boarded and lodged thirteen men ever since last February. On the 1st of the month there was about $20 coming to the whole baker's dozen. They wanted to go to San Francisco, and though they owed him for board all spring and summer, the restaurant man, in the benevolence of his heart, gave ten of them $10 mises best seat in the house for a dollar.

On her last trip the State brought 90 sks malt, 412 brs fruit, 23 sks sweets, 35 cs paste, 189 brs soap, 19 hf bbls sugar, 1 cs coffee, 16 sks salt, 157 mats rice, 72 cs canned goods.

A 'certain Portland hotel-keeper says "it doesn't pay to run a first-class "it doesn't pay to run a secondhe thought that that was the best way to insure their coming back again next April in the hope of making enough to settle up all the old scores. It is to be hoped that the restaurant man's generosity will have its just reward. Certain it is that on the part of a good many fishermen nothing but their mability to pay keeps them from squaring their accounts.

"I will explain by an illustration: The little town of Plymouth, Pa. has been plague-stricken for several months because its water supply was carelessly poisoned. The kidneys and liver are the sources of physical well-being. If polluted by disease, all the blood becomes poisoned and every organ is affected and this great danger threatens every one who neg-lects to treat himself promptly. I was nearly dead myself of extreme kidney disease, but what is now War-ner's Safe Cure cured me, and I know it is the only remedy in the world that can cure such disorders, for I tried everything else in vain. Cured by it myself, I bought it, and, from a sense of duty, presented it to the world. Only by restoring the kidneys

A celebrated sanitarian physician once said to me, "The secret of the wonderful success of Warner's Safe Cure is that it is sovereign over all kidney, liver, and urinary diseases, which primarily or secondarily make up the majority of human ailments. Like all great discoveries it is re-markably simple."

A STARTLING PACT.

The next time it is undertaken to move the national capital to the geographical center of the United States due consider ation must be given to the statement made on Tuesday evening by Professor James Denman, in a lecture before the Geographical Society of the Pacific. The "What styles of advertising do you use?" I asked H. H. Warner, Esq. "Display, reading matter, and paragraphs of testimonials."

"Have you many testimonials?"
In answer he showed me a large cabinet chock-full. "We have enough to fill Boston, New York, Chicago, St. Louis, and Philadelphia morning papers."

"Do you publish many of them?"
"Not a tithe. Wonderful as are those we do publish, we have thous sands like them which we cannot use. "Warner's Safe Cure' has probably been the most successful medicine for female disorders ever discovered. We have testimonials from ladies of the highest rank, but it would be indelicate to publish them. Likewise many statesmen, lawyers, clergymen, destors of world-wide fame have been professor remarked that he had lone at all, but so the case was put by the learned professor last evening, and none of the assembled geographists said him nay. Now that this interesting fact has been

Now that this interesting fact has been thus scientifically demonstrated, St. Louis must give up, once for all, its absurd claim to being the geographical center of the country, and no time should be lost in laying deep and firm the foundations of the future White house on the loftiest crag of the Farallones.—S. IT IS A GOOD PLAY.

Regarding "The Private Secretary," which will be presented in this city next Monday by the Madison Square Theater Company, from New York, including W. this manner:

It is as much a pleasure to commend a good play as it is to witness it. "The Private Secretary" is a good play. It is well worth seeing. It advertises itself. Those who saw it last night would doubt-Those who saw it last night would doubt-less like to see it again, and they would like their friends to see it. It is very funny, but there is nothing coarse about it. Therein lies one of its chief charms. The fun begins soon after the curtain rises on the first act, and it continues un-til the end is reached. "The Private Secretary" is the character who makes all the fun, and yet he doesn't seem to enjoy it himself. In fact, he doesn't seem to know that he is the occasion of amusement. He looks upon himself as a pretty badly he is the occasion of amusement. He looks upon himself as a pretty badly used individual. There are two private secretaries—a genuine one and a false one. The false one, who is a gay young spendthrift about town, and who has a rich uncie who has just returned from India, upon whom he wishes to make a good impression, personates the true one. The scene of the main pert of the play is in a centleman's country house where the scene of the main pert of the pay is in a gentleman's country house where there are two very pretty girls who un-derstand the art of flirting remarkably well. The false secretary, in order to preserve his identity, gets the true secretary into a good many amusing positions and laughable scrapes. The rich uncle takes the genuine secretary to be his nephew, and as the genuine secretary is nephew, and as the genuine secretary is very pious and very temperate, and as the rich uncle believes in a young man sowing his wild oats, they do not get on well together. In fact, their manner of getting on is one of the side-splitting features of the farce. The play is finely mounted. The Madison Square people, however, always put their plays on the stage in good shape. Another thing they look after is that they select capeble people to present their plays. All the characters in "The Private Secretary" are well represented. Reserved seats at well represented. Reserved seats at Carl Adler's.
